CARDINAL FARLEY GIVEN TO HIS PEOPLE

Solemn Pomp and Splendor Marks the Installation Service in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

ROBED PROCESSION IN STREET

Second Throne for Cardinal Gibbons—Vast Throng Outside—Cardinal Farley Utters a Warning.

Amid a splendor and impressiveness never before equaled at any Catholic Church service in the Western Hemisphere, Cardinal Farley was installed yesterday in St. Patrick's Cathedral as the Cardinal Archbishop of the Province of New York. Present at the service, to see the new Cardinal given to his people, were Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, Archbishop Prendergast of Philadelphia, twenty Bishops from all parts of the world, one hundred Monsignori, the entire Faculty of the Catholic University of America at Washington, a thousand clergy from ecclesiastical seminaries, a specially appointed Cardinal's Committee of two hundred, three hundred choir boys, a thousand representative members of the various Catholic societies, and a host of loyal Catholics who had come from far and near. The assemblage numbered 5,000 persons, the fortunate ones of the 200,000 applicants who had asked for seats.

For three hours and a half solemn music sounded through the Cathedral's vastness, while the Pontifical high mass was being celebrated. Trumpets announced the triumphal entry of the priests, soft strings accompanied the chanting of the liturgy, praises of the new Cardinal were sung by clergy and laity, and when it was all over the much-honored Cardinal was so moved that it left him speechless, he said, to respond to the honor done him by his people.

Every participant in the service was vested in the most gorgeous raiment of his office. Such a variety of varicolored garments had never before been seen in New York. The Cathedral, too, was in the attire of a holiday of holidays. The arches of the gray stone walls, lighted by hidden lights, were festooned in cardinal and green, whole trees of cedar and spruce growing high up, as it were, out of the stone walls themselves. Hangings of cardinal velvet with fringes of golden tinsel hung from the galleries and chancel, and at intervals blazoned forth the shields of Cardinals and Archbishops. Flowers entwined the stone pillars and the chancel was inclosed with a solid bank of lilies. High above the altar hung a shield with the inscription "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus."

Admission Tickets Scarce.

To see this wonderful setting many had come to the Cathedral at 8 o'clock in the morning. At 10 o'clock hundreds were crowding the four entrances. Little red tickets which entitled holders to a seat in the Cathedral were the most prized of possessions. Yellow tickets which gave entrance after all those who had seats had been disposed of were a rarity also. There were several thousand in the crowd who had no tickets at all, and the police pushed them back. Such had to be content with seeing the Cardinalate procession outside the Cathedral, and they grew to a mighty throng before the service started inside.

The procession started at the Cathedral College, Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street, at 10:45. First came the dress-uniformed color brigade of the Knights of Columbus, each man with his sword drawn. The committee of two hundred of the laity followed, all in frock coats, silk hats and cardinal neckties. The procession moved in double file in Fifty-first Street, thence toward the Fifth Avenue entrance of the Cathedral.

It halted at Fifth Avenue and waited for the ecclesiastical division of the procession, which issued from the Cardinal's residence at the rear of the Cathedral. The second division filed slowly by the first, the altar boys, carrying a cross and censer, crossing the threshold of the Cathedral at exactly 11:10 o'clock. Inside the crowded Cathedral heads were turned to the rear as the procession started up the aisle toward the altar.

Following the altar boys came the lay guard of the Cardinal, the students from the ecclesiastical seminaries in their quiet robes and plain surplices; the members of the various religious orders, each organization headed by a standard bearer carrying its insignia; the clergy of the Province of New York, about seven hundred of them, in the black cassocks and white surplices ordinarily used at the celebration of a mass, and the Monsignori, in purple robes and black caps topped with purple tufts. After them were the faculty of the Catholic University of America, and then came the impressively attired Bishops in scarlet robes, escorted by twenty choir boys, also in scarlet robes.

Twenty Trumpets Sound.

The moment Archbishop Prendergast entered the Cathedral the organ and orchestra in the rear choir loft began the War March of the Priests, twenty trumpets marking the time for the procession. The Archbishop, who was to be the celebrant of the mass, was clad in vestments of yellow, embroidered on the back with crosses and keys, and on his head there was the yellow mitre. With him walked the Deacon, the Rev. Edward Sweeney; the Sub-Deacon, the Rev. Otto F. Strach; the Assistant Priest, Mgr. Burtsell, and his Deacons of Honor, Mgr. Keasney and Mgr. McMahon.

At the last the personal escort of the two Cardinals appeared in the Fifth Avenue doorway. The Knights of Gregory in evening dress, the garb of the Papal Court, headed by a massive gold cross and escorted by acolytes bearing candles, walked directly in front of Cardinal Gibbons, supported by his three Chaplains, Mgrs. McGean, Flood and McCready. Cardinal Gibbons walked down the aisle, which was lined with vested students, with slow and measured step, his long train of cardinal silk held up by two boys in black silk knickerbocker costume. A hundred paces behind walked Cardinal Farley, the junior Cardinal. At the first glimpse of him nearly every one in the Cathedral bowed in reverence, and the Cardinal, as he passed along, blessed all the people in the great Cathedral, extending his hands so close to some in the aisle seats that he touched them in passing. The procession led to the chancel, Cardinal Farley, attended by his Chaplains, Mgrs. Mooney, Lavelle and Edwards, being seated in his regular throne on the left or gospel side of the altar, and Cardinal Gibbons occupying a specially erected throne on the left of the altar and directly across from Cardinal Farley.

The second throne was hung in cardinal velvet, faced with gold silk. Both of the Cardinals wore the capa magna, consisting of ermine cape and long red train.

WOMAN DIES IN CATHEDRAL.

Stricken While Viewing Decorations, She Receives Last Rites in a Pew.

Mrs. Anna Nugent of 132 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, died suddenly last night while viewing the decorations in St. Patrick's Cathedral. There were no services last night, but owing to the interest manifested over the celebration in honor of the installation of Cardinal Farley and the illumination of the Cathedral the building was open to visitors and ushers were in attendance to show them about the church.

Mrs. Nugent's daughter, who was with her, informed John O'Brien, one of the ushers, that her mother was very ill in one of the pews. O'Brien sent a messenger to the rectory and asked that a priest be sent to the woman at once and also dispatched a messenger to Dr. Robert Cooke of 24 West Fiftieth Street.

Mgr. Lavelle and Father Bernard McQuade responded to the call and administered extreme unction. The cathedral was at once cleared of all visitors and the doors closed. When Dr. Cooke arrived Mrs. Nugent, who was 56 years old, was dead.

GIRL'S SCREAMS BRING HELP.

Attacked and Dragged Into Lot Near Where Agnes Waugh Was Found.

The shrieks of a frightened woman brought persons living in the vicinity of Ovington and Seventh Avenues, Bay Ridge, to a vacant lot in that section last night. They arrived in time to see a man run away. The screams had ceased and the men hunted until they found an unconscious woman. A Norwegian Hospital ambulance was called and Dr. Carter revived her.

She was Hannah Blixt, a dressmaker, of 7,206 Seventh Avenue. She said she was on her way home from work and had left a Bay Ridge Avenue trolley car at Sixty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue to walk two blocks to her home. As she was passing some bushes, she said, an Italian sprang at her, struck her over the head with a blunt instrument and dragged her struggling into the lot. Her face was covered with blood from a deep wound in her scalp and her clothing was badly torn.

Miss Blixt was taken to her home, where she will need care for several days to recover from nervous shock and her scalp wound. Her father, Fred Blixt, a lace salesman, employed in Manhattan, expressed his thankfulness that his daughter, who was attacked less than half a mile from where Agnes Waugh was attacked, had been able to fight off her assailant until help came.

The police of the Fort Hamilton Station are at work on the case. Miss Blixt was able to give them only a most meagre description of her assailant.

SILAS N. PHELPS EXECUTED.

Council Refused to Longer Reprieve Murderer of Deputy Sheriff.

BOSTON, Friday, Jan. 26.—Silas N. Phelps of Monroe, Mass., the murderer of Deputy Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins, was put to death by electricity in the Penitentiary here at 12:29 o'clock this morning.

The long fight to save Phelps finally failed at 1:40 P. M. yesterday, when the Executive Council, by a vote of 7 to 1, refused to commute the death sentence.

Phelps entered the office of the Ramage Paper Company at Monroe on the afternoon of June 11, 1910, and, following an argument with Superintendent William Penman, of the mill, about his work, was ejected. As Penman was walking home with Paymaster Andrew McIntyre, of the paper company, he was met by Phelps. The Monroe Bridge man drew a jack knife and stabbed Penman beneath the right shoulder. A serious, but not dangerous wound was inflicted. Phelps succeeded in escaping from McIntyre.

The authorities were notified and Deputy Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins, accompanied by a posse, started for Phelps's home in Monroe Bridge. Phelps shot Deputy Haskins as he entered his house.

REVIVES PANAMA CHARGES.

Rainey Declares Colombia Revolution Was Fomented by American Interests.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—American interests, with the knowledge and cooperation of the State Department, "fomented" the revolution of 1903 in Colombia, which resulted in the independence of Panama, Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, declared to-day before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which began hearings on Mr. Rainey's resolution for an inquiry into the taking of the Panama canal strip by the United States.

"I propose to show in this hearing that the Declaration of Independence of Panama was prepared in New York in the office of William Nelson Cromwell, and that Nov. 3, 1903, was the date agreed upon for the beginning of the revolution in Colombia," he said.

"Our contention is that the part the United States played for months prior to this revolution is a stain on the history of this Government and that we should make some financial reparation to Colombia for the damage done her."

The Committee adjourned until next week without acting.

TO BEAUTIFY PARK AVENUE.

Grass and Shrubs to Fill the Space Over Central Tracks.

According to an agreement that has been reached between the city and the New York Central Railroad Company, space in Park Avenue over the railroad tracks from Fiftieth to Fifty-sixth Street is to be reserved for the planting of shrubs and grass in order to beautify that portion of the avenue.

The plans provide for a central promenade through the middle of the avenue, with planting spaces on either side. The city is to provide and care for the grass plots and shrubbery, and the railroad company is to provide the space.

Controller Prendergast, Borough President McAneny, and Chief Engineer Lewis of the Board of Estimate have acted for the city and Ira A. Place, Vice President of the New York Central, for the railroad.

BRYAN'S 'PRESSING BUSINESS'

Missing Train, He Visits a Tailor's to Have His Trousers Ironed.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 25.—William Jennings Bryan became so absorbed in his talk here to-day with ex-Gov. Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, aspirant for the Democratic Presidential nomination, that he missed his train. He registered a protest against the Roosevelt boom.

"The third term objection is a vital one," he said. "It applies regardless of party. I do not believe any President should have a third term."

When Mr. Bryan found out he had missed his train he went to a tailor's shop and removed his trousers for pressing. He sat trouserless while a tailor applied the iron, and those who sought an interview were told Mr. Bryan had pressing business.

Here are the sixteen books which Mayor Gaynor believes have had the largest effect on his life. They are mentioned in the order in which the Mayor thinks he has been affected by them. The list does not include certain works on what Mayor Gaynor calls the "philosophy of history" and from which he has also derived great satisfaction. The Mayor says, however, that if he had taken more time some other books might have been included in the list.

This list is contained in a letter which the Mayor wrote to R. A. C. Smith, member of the Chamber of Commerce and Harbor and Pier Commissioner, some time ago. There is a story in the way Mayor Gaynor happened to write the letter.

A few months ago Gov. Dix appointed Mr. Smith on the New York State Harbor Commission, which is considering the economy of space in New York Harbor, the length of piers, &c. Mr. Smith already had been officially connected with other of this city's river and harbor projects. Dock Commissioner Calvin Tomkins and State Engineer John A. Bensel were the other members of the commission. Mr. Smith was Chairman, and as Chairman he last November accompanied Mayor Gaynor to Washington and Richmond, where the Mayor was to make addresses at certain waterway conventions.

In the parlor car on the way back from Richmond the Mayor and Mr. Smith fell into a book talk. Mr. Smith mentioned the "Don Quixote" of Cervantes, and described the enjoyment he had found in reading it in the original Spanish. Mr. Smith found that Mayor Gaynor was just as great an admirer of Cervantes as he was, and the Mayor confessed frankly that his inability to read "Don Quixote" in the original Spanish was one of the great regrets of his life.

Mr. Smith enjoyed the conversation so much that as soon as he returned to this city he bought the handsomest edition of "Don Quixote" in the Motteux translation he could find and sent it to the Mayor.

The Mayor's Letter and His List.

Here is the letter which the Mayor wrote to Mr. Smith in reply and which, besides thanking Mr. Smith for the present, contains a list of the Mayor's sixteen most helpful books:

Dec. 4, 1911.

Dear Mr. Smith: I thank you exceedingly for the edition of "Don Quixote" which you send me. The illustrations by Doré are grand. The translation, I notice, is by Motteux. Of the four English translations extant I deem that by Jarvis the best. It is so deft and nimble. I imagine that it approaches the spirit of the original more nearly than any of the others.

When a younger man, I often entertained the intention of trying to learn Spanish, in order to read "Don Quixote" in the original. I envy your being able to do so. In translating a work of imagination it is almost always necessary to depart from literalness in order to give the genius and spirit. This Jarvis does, while Motteux is often painfully literal.

And yet his literalness brings out some things that should not be lost. For instance, in the account of Don Quixote's manner of living and what dishes he ate each day of the week, Jarvis says, "an omelet on Saturdays," which is certainly commonplace enough, but Motteux gives the original exactly, namely, "griefs and groans on Saturdays," which was some kind of a mixed dish which evidently caused bellyache, or something like it.

But cases like that are few, and the nimble and light touches of Jarvis, which let you right into the spirit of the narrative, are often departures from the literal rendering of the original.

At best a translation of a work of imagination bears about the same resemblance to the original as the reverse side of a tapestry does to the true side. That is why I am sorry I do not understand Spanish as you do. If I did we could continue that discussion of the writings of Cervantes which we commenced on the train on our way up from Richmond.

Compares Motteux With Jarvis.

Let me cite a passage or two to show how much more attractive the translation of Jarvis is. After Don Quixote is knocked down by the sail of the windmill, Sancho Panza comes running up on Dapple and says, according to Motteux:

"Mercy on me, did not I give your Worship fair warning? Did not I tell you they were windmills, and that nobody could think otherwise unless he also had windmills in his head?"

But Jarvis more nimbly says: "'God save us,' quoth Sancho Panza, 'did not I warn you to have a care of what you did, for that they were nothing but windmills, and nobody could mistake them but one that had the like in his head?'"

And again, speaking of the company at

HOW $20,000 WENT IN CHAMPLAIN FETES

Knox Discloses Items to Committee—One Banquet Cost $3,748—Another to Ladies $243.

THE RAILROADS GOT $5,219

Items Included Cigars, Wines, Automobiles, and Lilies for Canadian Postmaster General's Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—How the $20,000 Federal appropriation toward celebrating the 300th anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain, in the first week of July, 1909, was spent became known late this afternoon when Secretary of State Knox appeared before the House Committee on Expenditures in the State Department and submitted the original vouchers covering the disposal of the fund.

The matter came up in open session, the ban of secrecy was removed, and, incidentaly, members of the committee developed a keener appreciation of the cost of inviting international participation in anniversary celebrations. Every item, from the cost of cigars and wine, autos and banquets, to the purchase of lilies of the valley for the wife of the Canadian Postmaster General, carefully itemized and properly indorsed, was shown in the vouchers presented.

Their production relieved a strained situation between Chairman Hamlin's committee and the State Department. Secretary Knox had been summoned, and it was understood that if he failed to bring the vouchers the committee was ready to cite him to appear before the bar of the House for an explanation.

Secretary Knox on Tuesday had refused to produce the vouchers without written authority from the President. Meanwhile he had conferred with President Taft and received the latter's direction to produce the vouchers. The correspondence which passed between President Taft and Secretary Knox on the subject was submitted to the Hamlin committee by Mr. Knox. In this correspondence Secretary Knox makes it clear that the State Department did not urge the appropriation, but had merely laid before Congress a memorial from the joint Commissioners of Vermont and New York, asking for one, that Congress appropriated $20,000 of its own free will, and that the vouchers, which the State Department required to be furnished before final payment, were not legally necessary. The State Department left the expenditure of the money to the judgment of the Tercentennial Committee.

The vouchers show that every cent of the $20,000 was spent, and they were indorsed by Walter C. Witherbee, representing the New York Commission, and Gov. Prouty, representing the Vermont Commission.

The largest single expenditure was $9,468.48 for the entertainment of British and French guests at the Hotel Champlain. This outlay is itemized thus: For 360 guests averaging $14.88 each, $5,369.98; banquet, $3,748; ladies' banquet, $243; livery, $75, and telegrams, express, and freight, $24.

The vouchers also show that Gen. N. H. Henry, Adjutant General of New York, allotted $300 to three members of Gov. Hughes's staff, detailed as military aids, and that $231.80 of this amount was spent. Commander Robert P. Forsnew, Second Batallion, military aid to the French Ambassador, spent $59.15 in accompanying the latter from Washington to the celebration. Major Oliver B. Bridgman spent $60.50 in going to Mount Desert for the British Ambassador and serving as his military aid; while Lieut. Frederick M. Crosset of the Coast Artillery Corps, who was sent to Montreal to escort the Canadian military contingent to Lake Champlain, spent $112.15. In Montreal, Lieut. Crosset gave a dinner to a party of six at the Windsor Hotel, which cost $69.55. Cigars for this dinner cost $6. Lieut. Crosset also spent $2.50 for two bunches of lilies of the valley for Mrs. Lemieux, wife of the then Canadian Postmaster General.

Three days later, according to the vouchers, Lieut. Crosset spent only $1.50 for a dinner and $1.10 for a breakfast at Lake Champlain. This is quite in contrast with Commander Forshew's trip to Washington for the French Ambassador. Commander Forshew gave no dinner party, but contented himself with a $3 room at a Washington hotel, $2.90 at the café, and $4.60 for livery. Major Bridgman was equally frugal in his journey to Mount Desert for the British Ambassador.

While the principal banquet at the Hotel Champlain cost $3,748 and that for the ladies cost $243.50, the expense of entertaining the "legislative party and guests" on the steamboat Ticonderoga during the celebration, at 50 cents each, cost $150.

The second highest item covered by the vouchers is $5,219.72, for transportation, of which the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, the Pullman Company, and other lines received $4,503.72 and the steamer Ticonderoga $716. The cost of transportation for the French Ambassador, his staff, and party from Washington to Plattsburg and return in two Pullmans was $1,291.65. It cost $898.52 to transport the British Ambassador's party from Mount Desert to the celebration and return, and $39.85 for the trip of Senator Root from Washington to the celebration and return.

PRESIDENTIAL CHOICE NAMED BY GOVERNORS

Four Republicans for Roosevelt, but Each Democrat Has a Different Candidate.

MARYLAND STANDS BY TAFT

Four Democrats Wire The Times That They Have No Preference to Express Just Now.

In reply to telegrams asking the Governors to inform THE NEW YORK TIMES of their preferences for the Presidential nomination a number of expressions of opinion have been received. It is evident that so far opinion throughout the country has not crystallized and that the nomination of neither party is as yet a foregone conclusion.

Three Republican Governors, Aldrich of Nebraska, Glasscock of West Virginia, and Osborne of Michigan, have come out for Col. Roosevelt and to them must be added Gov. Hadley of Missouri.

Gov. Goldsborough of Maryland wishes to see President Taft renominated, and Gov. Hawley of Idaho, though a Democrat, expresses the opinion that the Republicans of his State will support the President unless Roosevelt makes an open fight, when he might have the chance of capturing the delegation.

Eight Democratic Governors have expressed their views to THE TIMES and no two of them have agreed as to their choice. Four—Gov. McCreery of Kentucky, Gov. Hawley of Idaho, Gov. Marshall of Indiana, and Gov. Brewer of Mississippi—prefer to stay on the fence at the present time.

Gov. Blease of South Carolina would like to see Judson Harmon nominated, Gov. O'Neal of Alabama, is for Mr. Underwood, and Gov. Cruce of Oklahoma, though he personally favors Gov. Marshall of Indiana, says that the Democrats of his State are likely to select Champ Clark.

Here are the messages from the Governors:

Gadsden, Ala., Jan. 25.

My choice for President is Oscar W. Underwood. He will have the unanimous support of this State and his nomination will secure a great Democratic victory.

EMMET O'NEAL, Governor.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 25.

In rely to your wire I am for Judson Harmon and expect South Carolina to give her vote to him.

Col. L. E. BLEASE, Governor.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 25.

My personal choice for nominee for President on the Democratic ticket is Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana. I favor his nomination, because I believe he would give to the country an administration of affairs commensurate with the needs and desires of the people and that future Democratic success would be made easier.

The sentiment in Oklahoma at this time is in favor of Speaker Champ Clark.

LEE CRUCE, Governor.

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 25.

I have not concluded who is the most available among the many able and earnest Democrats mentioned as candidates. The Idaho Democracy delegation will probably go unpledged and open-minded.

Republicans are for Taft, unless Roosevelt makes a fight in the open, when he might secure the delegation.

JAMES H. HAWLEY, Governor.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 25.

Harmon, Wilson, Marshall, Clark, or Underwood are all worthy statesmen, and either if elected would make a good President, but I think the Democrats should wait until the time arrives for holding State conventions and nominate the Democrat who is regarded as the strongest before the people. This plan, I think, will insure the election of a Democratic President next November.

JAMES B. McCREERY, Governor.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 25.

My choice for President is the man whom the Democratic Convention at Baltimore will nominate, and I believe he will be satisfactory to the Democrats of this State.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL, Governor.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 25.

EARL BREWER, Governor.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 25.

The Republicans of Nebraska can unite on Roosevelt. In case he says that he will accept if the nomination is tendered him, that will settle it.

The office is bigger than the man. The man cannot refuse. This is the situation.

CHESTER H. ALDRICH, Governor.

Charleston, West Va., Jan. 25.

I am in favor of the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for President, and believe he is the choice of a very large majority of the Republicans of West Virginia.

WILLIAM E. GLASSCOCK, Governor.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 25.

I am for Roosevelt for President first, last, and all the time. Roosevelt sentiment predominates in Michigan.

CHARLES E. OSBORNE, Governor.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 25.

I am for President Taft, and believe the predominant sentiment in this State is likewise so.

PHILLIPS LEE GOLDSBOROUGH, Governor.

PRESIDENT MITCHEL WORSE.

Had a Relapse and Must Make His Stay in Hospital Longer.

President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen had a relapse about three days ago at St. Luke's Hospital, where he has been confined with typhoid fever.

It was said at the hospital last night that his temperature had been rising each day since the relapse, and that he would remain in the hospital probably three weeks longer than had been anticipated, but that there was no reason to doubt his ultimate recovery.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 25.—Prof. Jamieson of the Edmond branch of the State Normal School system announced to-day that he will make further experiments in the way of rain-making as a result of his recent experiment made on a foggy morning from a high platform. He released liquid air in the form of a spray—result, rain. Next time Prof. Jamieson says he will use an airship for the experiment and rise above ordinary cloud height, where he expects the liquid air spray to condense the moisture and cause considerable precipitation.

MARGARET ANGLIN ILL.

Suffers Nervous Breakdown and Is Unable to Appear in Jones's New Play.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 25.—Margaret Anglin, who was to have appeared in the leading rôle of Henry Arthur Jones's new play, "Lydia Gilmore," at its first production this evening at the Academy, is suffering from nervous breakdown at her hotel. A large audience was assembling, and nearly every seat in the Academy had been taken when the announcement was made.

Miss Anglin has been rehearsing the new play here for over a week. Her rôle is a very exacting one, and at the last moment she gave way under the strain of overwork and nerve tax. Her physician reports that she may be able to appear to-morrow night.

A number of theatrical managers and critics were in town to see the production.

HEN LOSING MOTHERLY WAYS

Prof. Curtis Says Incubator Is Causing Decline.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 25.—Prof. M. M. Curtis, head of the departments of psychology and philosophy at Western University, says the maternal instincts of hens artificially bred show decline.

"If permitted to return to the old-fashioned methods of raising chicks by means of setting hens," he says, "the hen will come into her own again. Hens showing a decline in maternal instincts should be made to hustle for their livelihood. They may thus regain their powers of reproducing their kind."

OELRICHS SUES RELATIVES.

Seeks to Recover Money Alleged to be Due Hermann Oelrichs, Jr.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Charles M. Oelrichs of New York, brother of the late Hermann Oelrichs, became a contestant today against the widow, Mrs. Theresa A. Fair Oelrichs; her sister, Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt; W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and F. E. Farmer, administrator of the California estate of Hermann Oelrichs for a minor son, by bringing action to recover $58,363, alleged to be due the son.

The cross-complaint filed by Oelrichs intimates that an effort may be made to have an accounting of the money spent in the construction of the Fairmount Hotel. The money alleged to be due Hermann Oelrichs, Jr., now stands in the name of the Fairmount Hotel at a bank.

MARTIAN CANALS DOUBLING.

Interesting Process on Planet Is Being Watched from Arizona.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Jan. 25.—Two Martian canals, Ganges and Jamuna, in the process of doubling have just been detected at the Lowell Observatory. Each is composed of a definite line on the west. In both cases it is the westernmost line that is already developed.

The canals extend a thousand and fifteen hundred miles, respectively, in different directions across the Martian desert.

McDEVITT HAS A RIVAL.

Youth from Wilkesbarre Here to See Broadway Without a Cent.

Inspired by the escapade of "Dutch" McDevitt, who made a meteoric spurt from Wilkesbarre, Penn., to New York City two weeks ago, Robert Clark, a young man of the same town, is endeavoring to show to the world that it is not necessary to spend $2,500 to see Gay Broadway, as McDevitt did.

To prove it, the young man set out afoot at 11 o'clock last Saturday, on a wager of $500, to reach New York City within five days. He arrived last night, having made the trip of 190 miles in forty hours' actual walking time. He states that he has been entertained free all along the way and that the journey has been ideal except for a severe snowstorm he encountered while crossing the Pocono Mountains, shortly after he left Wilkesbarre. Clark says he will return the same way he came.

OPERATION WINS PAROLE.

Forger Convict Set Free After Treatment for Old Injury.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Having undergone a surgical operation to cure him of criminal tendencies, and having been a model prisoner for a year, Edward E. Grimmell of Buffalo has been released from prison at Dannemora, where he was committed in 1908 for nine years after a conviction for forgery. Whether he has been cured, the prison authorities will not say. They have noticed a change for the better in his conduct and he is now on parole.

Grimmell is about 34 years old. He comes of a good family, and when he was 14 years old his skull was fractured during a quarrel. Prior to this he was said to have been of normal tendencies, but since then he declares he has had an irresistible impulse to commit crime. He had been convicted several times.

At Grimmell's request Dr. Dewitt G Wilcox visited the prison in 1909 and operated on Grimmell's skull. Gov. White commuted Grimmell's sentence so that he might be released in February, 1910, but Supt. Collins was not convinced he had been cured.

Grimmell has had a continuous record of good conduct for a year and his application for parole was recently granted.

"We are not running any real risk in releasing Grimmell," said Supt. Scott tonight. "He will continue under the jurisdiction of the Parole Board. If he returns to evil ways, he will be taken back to prison. If he doesn't, so much the better."

STUFFED TURKEYS WITH LEAD

Ginsberger Got 30 Cents a Pound and 3 Months in Prison for the Stuffing.

Because of his having inserted a pound or two of lead sinker in every turkey that he sold last Thanksgiving, Jacob Ginsberger, a butcher of 1,594 Third Avenue, was sentenced yesterday to three months in the penitentiary by Justice Steinert of the Court of Special Sessions.

Acting on the complaint of the neighbors, Inspector Albert Lutz of the Bureau of Weights and Measures entered Ginsberger's shop the day before Thanksgiving to buy his next day's dinner. Smilingly the butcher selected a fat bird for him, and tossed it on the scales.

"Shall I clean it for you?" he asked, after reading the weight, and straightway started for the backroom.

"Not so quick," said Lutz. Swinging a small axe he clove the fowl through before the butcher could rescue it. The edge of the axe was severely notched, for it had struck on a lead sinker weighing two pounds. A rapid investigation showed that all the other turkeys in the shop were similarly freighted.

DUKE LIKES US AND OUR WAYS

Gives The Times, Through His Aid, His Impressions of New York and Its People.

MARVELS AT OUR ACTIVITY

TAKES A TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Royal Visitor Exchanges Visits with Our President and Dines with the British Ambassador.

Although the Duke of Connaught cannot give interviews direct to reporters, on account of Court etiquette, which prevents royalty from being quoted, he gave some of his impressions of his American visit through one of his aids to a reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES and the correspondents of three London newspapers on the Pennsylvania train, on which he journeyed to Washington yesterday to call on President Taft and dine with the British Ambassador James Bryce. The Duke showed his interest in the proxy interview, walking up and down the corridor outside the room where the aid and the newspaper representatives were sitting, and calling his aid out to emphasize points that he wished to be brought out.

The first was with regard to the visit to President Taft, which the Duke through his aid categorically denied was in any way inspired by the Colonial Office in London. He rather intimated that the suggestion came from Ambassador Bryce, as the list of guests at the British Embassy remains the same as it was three weeks ago, with the addition of the names of Mrs. Leiter, mother-in-law of Lord Curzon, and Miss Boardman, head of the American Red Cross Society.

Glad to Meet Champ Clark.

The names of guests invited to the reception after the dinner were submitted to the Duke by Mr. Bryce, including that of the Speaker, Champ Clark. When asked if he had any objection to the Speaker's coming, the Duke laughed and replied:

"Certainly not. I shall be pleased to meet a gentleman of whom I have heard so much."

It will be remembered that one of Champ Clark's speeches, much quoted in the Canadian newspapers a year ago, stated that he hoped to see the Stars and Stripes wave from Panama to the north pole.

Another point the Duke wished to emphasize in giving his impressions was the pleasure he had felt in receiving so great a number of letters in New York from British subjects, welcoming him to America. Many of these were from old soldiers and others who remembered his visit to New York forty years ago. He was deeply touched by a number of the letters, which the writers left unsigned in order to eliminate any idea that they were seeking autographs of the Duke and Duchess and Princess Patricia.

The Duke sent a cable dispatch to the Colonial Office in London, stating that he proposed to visit President Taft privately and asking if there was any objection, to which a reply came promptly that there was none. In the same way he notified his Government of his proposed visit to Ambassador Whitelaw Reid in New York.

Gratified at New York Reception.

The Duke has been very much gratified with the reception accorded to him in New York in every way, and says that they could not have made more fuss over him if he had been the President of the United States or Theodore Roosevelt. He has been much interested in the mechanical appliances he has seen here—electricity applied to machinery, the coal being shot from a wagon down into the cellars instead of being carried in sacks, the rapid construction of steel-frame buildings, and the evidence of busy brains working every hour of the twenty-four, the wonderful labor-saving inventions, and the tall buildings in the Wall Street section.

The Duke approves of the easy ways of Americans and Canadians, and does not mind in the least being called "Dukey," as he sometimes is by persons in the street. He prefers the democratic manner to the stiff formality in England, where many of the people stand as if petrified when they see a Prince or a Duke at close range.

He has also noticed the neatness in dress of the average woman in the streets, the general air of prosperity, and the richness of the costumes of the society women he has met at banquets and receptions since his arrival.

At the Ogden Mills dance on Wednesday night the Duke, the Dutchess, and Princess Patricia were astonished at the vivacity and beauty of the young women present and the display of wonderful jewels that flashed and dazzled the eyes of the spectators as if the whole were a view of the grand hall of Aladdin's palace in the "Arabian Nights." The Duke said he had never seen such a collection of brilliant gems at any Court function.

Amused by Turkey Trot.

The turkey trot, which was danced in modified form, amused the distinguished visitors very much. As the Princess was about to try the new dance, Nicholas Longworth, who was standing close by, said:

"This is awfully funny to me. Twenty years ago in San Francisco we used to hire guides and detectives to go and see these dances performed, and now we have great difficulty in evading teachers who want us to learn how to do them gracefully in society ballrooms. To my mind, the grizzly bear hug means getting as close to your partner as you can, while in the turkey trot you try to walk through your partner."

Princess Patricia has been very much gratified at the interest the general public has taken in her movements in the city. She has been vexed only once, and that was on Tuesday when the royal party visited Grant's Tomb. The rush of photographers was so great when the Princess was trying to get into her automobile that she was nearly knocked down the steps, and said: "This is too much! I think that the photographers go a little too far in America." That cloud soon passed away, however, and the whole visit has been thoroughly enjoyed.

Enjoyed Eluding Reporters.

The Duke especially enjoyed eluding the reporters when he arrived in New York Monday morning, and again on Wednesday morning early, when he slipped out of the kitchen door of Mr. Reid's house with Capt. Rivers Bulkeley and left the reporters and photographers waiting for two hours on the sidewalk, until he returned in a taxicab, much to their surprise.

The Duke had not heard anything about the King and Queen of England visiting the United States when they go to Canada, but he thought they would want to come after they have heard his account of the people, their warm welcome, and the interesting things to be seen in the United States.

The Duke wished it to be entirely understood that his visit to New York was his own idea, following an invitation given to him by Mr. Reid eighteen months ago in London, when the American Ambassador said: "When you are over on the other side of the water, I should like you to come to New York and see me." Mr. Reid wrote to the Duke that he was going over to New York and asked him to come when he liked, and the whole thing was arranged about four weeks ago. Col. H. C. Lowther, who was in New York two weeks ago last Sunday, did not know the date had been fixed until he got back to Ottawa.

The trip of the ducal party from New York to Washington was uneventful. The Duke arrived at the Pennsylvania Station in New York fifteen minutes before the train started, and inspected the building, under the escort of Stationmaster Egan, expressing his appreciation of its magnificence. He went later to the platform, where the 11:08 express was waiting, with the private car Cygnet attached to the rear for his accommodation. The Duke walked to the head of the train, accompanied by the Superintendent and the engineer, to inspect the motor. While walking along the Duke chatted with the train people. Mr. Egan pointed out the diner, and said: "I guess, Duke, you will eat in your own car."

Duke Rides in Electric Engine.

Before the train started the Duke mounted into the cab of the motor, and there rode through the tunnel under the river. He expressed great interest in the working of the motor, the first of that kind he had ever seen.

On the journey from New York Alison Armour and his sister took luncheon with the Duke in the private car. Later the Duke changed his gray suit and derby hat for the conventional black frock coat and silk hat worn in all diplomatic visits.

The Duke and his party will leave the Grand Central Station Friday night at 7:25 on the New York Central train in a private car, and will change at Montreal Saturday morning, on his way to Ottawa, where he arrives at 1:30 P. M.

The Duchess and Princess with their host left the opera shortly before the close of the last act of "Orfeo," and motored over to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James F. D. Lanier, where a small dance was being in progress.

They remained here only a short time, returning to the home of Ambassador Reid by midnight.

The royal party have accepted a third invitation for luncheon to-day, and will start for Ottawa late this afternoon.

The Duchess is somewhat fatigued as a result of the various sightseeing trips and social entertainments. Princess Patricia has stood the strain wonderfully well, and is most enthusiastic over her first visit to New York.

VISITS THE PRESIDENT.

High Honors Paid to Duke at the National Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—With high honors befitting his rank and position, the Duke of Connaught was welcomed to the capital of the United States to-day and received at the White House by President Taft. The exchange of greetings was simple, genuine, and enjoyable to all who participated. The Duke was manifestly pleased at all he saw, and displayed a hearty satisfaction at the attentions that were shown him.

He came to Washington, accompanied by his military aid, Col. Lowther and Capt. James Parkinson of Ottawa, Chief of the Dominion Police. The train arrived on time at 4:20 P. M., the Duke's private car being at the rear, so that he might as he pleased step out on the observation platform and get the air. He was met at the Union Station by Ambassador Bryce, who was accompanied by Capt. C. F. G. Sowerby, Naval Attaché of the British Embassy, and Lieut. Col. J. D. McLachlan, Military Attaché.

The Ambassador and his aids went far down under the train shed where the end of the train would be. The Duke was first to alight, and was at once greeted by Mr. Bryce. Mr. Bryce presented Major Butt, the President's personal aid, who said:

> Your Highness, I am directed by the President to welcome you to the capital of the United States, and to say that any attentions or honors that he can pay you he will most gladly extend as an expression of his admiration for your country, your family and yourself.

The Duke thanked Major Butt, and said that he appreciated deeply the honor shown him. The Duke then presented Col. Lowther to the Ambassador and the latter presented his aids to the Duke. The Duke then started toward the exit to the waiting room. Mr. Bryce fell a pace to the rear, but the Duke, with a quick movement, turned and asked the Ambassador to walk with him, and together they came down to the Concourse Hall, where thousands of people were waiting to catch a sight of his Royal Highness. As they approached, the Duke was talking animatedly. Mr. Bryce, walking with his hands clasped in front of him, the right ungloved, listened attentively.

Keenly Interested in Sights.

The regular passengers on the train strolled along in front and behind the ducal party, but at the exits the force of station men directed the Duke and his party across the concourse to the President's room, at the east side of the station. The Duke stopped in this room and expressed his admiration at the good taste shown in providing such an apartment for the convenience of the Chief Magistrate—something, he said, that might well be copied abroad. He lingered there several minutes, seemingly loth to leave the place. Then the White House limousine drew up to the door and the Duke entered it, being followed by Mr. Bryce, who sat at his left. On the seat in front of them Col. Lowther and Major Butt took seats. Capt. Sowerby and Col. McLachlan took seats in Mrs. Taft's landaulet.

As the automobiles rolled out from the portico through the waiting crowd the Duke lifted his silk hat and bowed to right and left. As they swept out in front of the station Mr. Bryce called the attention of the Duke to the view of the Capitol, with its white dome shining in the afternoon sun. The day was bright, if chill, and the city, the Potomac, and the distant hills of Virginia lay before them from the station plaza a beautiful picture. The route was up Massachusetts Avenue to Dupont Circle, past many beautiful homes, then down Connecticut Avenue to the Embassy.

His Royal Highness was keenly interested all the way in what he could see of the new Washington. He told Mr. Bryce of his visit to the city in 1872, when for four days he was the guest of President Grant at the White House and was entertained by Lieut. Gen. Sherman. Later he visited Virginia and met Gen. Robert E. Lee, of whom, as of Gen. Grant, he spoke in the warmest praise.

At the Embassy the automobiles passed through a squadron of the Fifteenth Cavalry under command of Major Fred S. Foltz, sent as a military escort to accompany the Duke from the Embassy to the White House. The party alighted and went into the Embassy, Major Butt returning to the White House. Chandler Hale, Third Assistant Secretary of State, arrived a few minutes later to accompany the Duke to the White House. At five minutes to 5 o'clock the Duke, Mr. Bryce, and Mr. Hale emerged from the Embassy, entered the limousine, and started for the White House.

Welcomed With Anthem.

The mounted band of the Fifteenth Cavalry had been stationed on the lawn in front of the mansion and as the Duke came up the drive the notes of "God Save the King" sounded on the air. The Duke was seen within his automobile to remove his hat, and a moment later as he alighted the trumpets of the cavalry blew four flourishes—as many as a President or a King would have received. As Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, he would have received but three.

On the portico of the White House Major Butt stood to receive the party. The Duke, bareheaded still as the notes of the national anthem of his own country died out, saluted. In a line from the steps to the door stood as special aides to the President Capt. Louis M. Little, U. S. M. C.; Lieut. E. St. J. Greble, Third Field Artillery; Lieut. C. K. Rockwell, Engineer Corps; Lieut B. A. Long, U. S. N.; Lieut. Francis Harrington, Engineer Corps; Ensign Stephen B. McKinney, U. C. N.; Lieut. C. B. Matthews, U. S. M. C., and Lieut. J. S. Pratt, Coast Artillery.

The aids saluted and then formed by two preceded the Duke. The Duke and Mr. Bryce removed their hats and coats and, escorted by Major Butt, went to the Green Room to wait for the appearance of the President. Major Butt then went to announce to the President that the Duke had arrived and accompanied him to the Blue Room. The President took a position at the south end of the room, with his naval and military aid standing behind him.

Duke and President Meet.

Lieut. Long then went to the Green Room and announced to the Duke that the President would be pleased to receive the Duke. With Mr. Chandler Hale escorting, the Duke and Mr. Bryce entered the room and were presented to the President. The doors were closed and they spent the next fifteen minutes conversing.

The President and his guest remained standing throughout and talked evidently with pleasure in the interchange of greetings. When the conversation ran its pleasant course, it was announced in the Green Room that the President was ready to receive the staff of the Duke, and the latter presented Col. Lowther and Mr. Bryce presented the attachés of the embassy. All of the party was in plain dress out of deference to the Duke, who, although a Field Marshall of the British Army and a soldier of renown, was in civilian clothes.

When the presentations had been made the President asked the Duke to join Mrs. Taft in the Red Room, where by her invitation were assembled the ladies of the Cabinet, who had been asked to come with their husbands. All were there together with Postmaster General Hitchcock, the bachelor member of the Cabinet, and the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Wilson, who is a widower.

Mr. Taft first presented the Duke to Mrs. Taft and then Miss Helen Taft to the Duke. Major Butt then presented each lady and gentleman of the Cabinet party to the Duke. Mrs. Taft wore a dark strawberry satin gown looped with gold filigree work. Miss Helen was very charming in a blue gown ornamented with gold.

Besides the Cabinet there were present Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, Assistant Secretary of State Adee and Mrs. Harriet Anderson of Cincinnati, a friend of the President's family. Miss Helen served tea to the guests, assisted by two of the younger aids.

Nice Etiquette in Departure.

The Duke moved about among the gathering and conversed with all the members of the Cabinet and ladies present. For a considerable time he stood and talked with the President and Secretary Knox.

The signal for the withdrawal of the Duke's party after a stay of forty-five minutes came from Ambassador Bryce. This was a nice disposition of a matter of etiquette. A member of the royal family has the right to indicate when guests shall take their departure. The President of the United States, on the other hand, remains at a function till the last have gone. To-night the suggestion came by Mr. Bryce shaking hands and bidding Mrs. Taft and the President good-bye. Then bowing to the others, he made his way out. The Duke then bade host and hostess good evening and withdrew.

As the Duke came out on the portico again the four flourishes sounded, and the big limousine rolled up to the steps. The half-frozen band on the lawn played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Duke and the thousands of persons out along the sidewalk and the group of newspaper men and secret service men near the portico all uncovered at the strains of the National hymn born of a time when the Duke's forbears and ours were not exchanging social compliments.

At a sharp trot the party returned to the embassy. There again flourishes were given, and the squadron formed in line as the Duke alighted. Here a nice incident occurred which illustrates the fine sense of obligation that a soldier feels at a military honor paid him. As the Duke was half way up the embassy steps he stopped and turned, and a messenger ran out to where Major Foltz sat on his horse. The Duke had sent, asking him to receive his thanks for the honor shown him in the squadron escort.

Major Foltz rode up to the driveway leading into the embassy and dismounted. The Duke shook hands with the Major and thanked him for his courtesy and complimented him on the soldierly appearance of his squadron, all the time remaining bareheaded as he talked with him. For several minutes the two stood talking, and the rest of the party waited on the steps until the Duke should proceed.

President Returns Call.

The Duke having as it were passed from British soil to that of the United States and again returned to British soil, the squadron of cavalry was dismissed and the automobiles were sent back to the White House. Within fifteen minutes the automobile again rolled up to the Embassy, this time bringing President Taft and his aid, Major Butt to return the Duke's call. The President remained twenty minutes, talking with the Duke and Ambassador Bryce in the main drawing room of the Embassy, and partaking of refreshments as he talked.

When the President came out, he dismissed his automobile, as he had not had a chance to take his usual evening walk and he and Major Butt walked to the White House.

At the British Embassy in the evening, where the Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce had weeks ago planned a dinner party of twenty-six covers, the original company was increased to forty-two by reason of the coming of the royal visitor and his suite. In the dinner company were, in addition to the Duke and his staff, the Ambassador from Austria-Hungary and Mme. Hengelmüller, the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the German Ambassador and Countess von Bernstorff, the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Knox, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. MacVeagh, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Meyer, Senator and Mrs. Rayner, Col. and Mrs. McLachlan, with several non-official guests and members of the embassy staff. Something like 100 additional guests were invited in after dinner, this company being selected from the diplomatic and official circle.

Democratic Call at Press Club.

During a twenty-minute visit to the National Press Club just before midnight, and prior to his departure for New York, the Duke of Connaught demonstrated his democracy of character and sentiment in a way that won him the good will and friendship of the Washington correspondents

One end of the assembly room had been cleared. Behind a row of chairs in which a dozen of their craft sat stood a hundred representatives of newspapers from coast to coast. At the door the Duke and his party were met by a committee in evening attire. After being divested of his cloak he was ushered into the assembly room, where the correspondents were in mufti. There was a spontaneous outburst of vigorous handclapping, and the Duke, radiant with smiles and evidently well pleased, bowed several times before proceeding to a small mission table in the space reserved for the royal party. Upon the table rested a pad with a sheet from the Press Club register, new pen, and clean inkstand, but before utilizing them the Duke reached for a match and lighted a cigarette.

This broke the ice at once, proving he was a good fellow, at least in the opinion of the correspondents, who, in anticipation of the arrival of the visitor, had discarded their cigars and cigarettes and opened the windows to clear the chamber of smoke. When the visitor lit his cigarette there was a buzz of approval among the correspondents, the Duke turned with a nod that seemed to say he understood, and the hosts likewise lit their weeds. The guests attached their names to the club register as follows:

Arthur, Governor General of Canada.
James Bryce, British Ambassador.
H. C. Lowther, Lieutenant Colonel, Military Secretary to the Governor General.
James D. McLachlan, Lieutenant Colonel, Military Attaché.

Makes a Little Speech.

Frederick J. Haskin, President of the club, welcomed the Duke and expressed the hope that, now that "we have become better acquainted," the visits would be more frequent. Another burst of generous applause for the club visitor, and the Duke, smiling and evidently pleased with his reception, responded in a few words, full of meaning.

"May I thank you for your kind welcome," he told the correspondents. "I assure you that it is a very great pleasure to meet you gentlemen, who wield such very great influence, and hope that you will always use it for the good of the world. I convey to you also the hope that England and the United States will always remain the very best of friends for the good of the world."

Immediately after his visit to the club the Duke returned to the embassy to change his clothes, and caught the train for New York.

COMMENT ON THE TRIP.

Washington Inclined to Ask Why It was Left to the Duke to Suggest It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The suddenness with which the Duke of Connaught's visit to America was changed from the private character intended by his host, Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, to a formal call of respect upon the President has occasioned some comment here. Edge to this comment is given by the fact that it now appears that the Duke's visit was arranged by Mr. Reid as far back as last Summer and that in his preparations for his royal guests no account was taken of the possibility that the Duke's failure to call upon the President might popularly be construed as a slight to our Government by the near kinsman of England's King.

The President has known for months of the coming of the Duke and his plans to make the trip entirely private, appear to have met with the President's approval. He certainly did not feel slighted and local diplomats, realizing the few precedents for a visit of royalty to the American capital, thought nothing of the matter. That is how it happened that up to three days before the Duke's arrival not a word was said officially of his visit, and technically the President was ignorant of the Duke's expected presence in this country.

For a day or two before that, however, irresponsible Washington dispatches began to report that the Duke's programme with its four days under Mr. Reid's roof was interpreted here as a slight to the President. That interpretation certainly was not official, but there was a deal of talk here about the wisdom of Mr. Reid's attempt to bring a royal Duke and his family into the country—the uncle of the King of England—and keep the whole visit private and personal to himself. Then suddenly, after the Duke's arrival in New York, it was announced that he was to come to Washington to call on the President and dine with Ambassador Bryce.

The British Embassy had planned a dinner for this evening to unofficial persons of merely social importance. The President was engaged for a dinner at the Postmaster General's and nearly every Ambassador in Washington had some engagement for the evening. The President naturally could not change his engagement on so belated a notice, even if he could have attended the dinner at all. The dinner arranged by the Bryces was extended to include distinguished guests, and the guests in question broke all their engagements to meet the Duke.

While absolutely no feeling of pique existed in official circles here that the Duke's visit should have been planned without including a call upon the President, the comment is frequent that his host should have known his countrymen well enough to be aware that they would expect a royal visitor to call upon the President, and should therefore have taken diplomatic precautions to avoid embarrassing his guest, on the one hand, or his Government, on the other.

However, there is now a general feeling that everything has come out all right.

ROYALTY AT THE OPERA.

Duchess and Princess Attend Two Performances, a Tea, and a Dinner.

The Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia were occupied socially yesterday during the absence of the Duke of Connaught in Washington. They attended both afternoon and evening performances of the opera, the assembly at the opera last night being especially brilliant.

Shortly after the Duke left for Washington in the morning the Duchess and the Princess, with Miss Annie Pelley, the lady-in-waiting; Mrs. Reid, and Capt. Rivers-Bulkeley left the Reids' home for a short motor trip, during which they called at the private art gallery of Benjamin Altman. Afterward they were driven to the residence of Mrs. Vanderbilt, 2 West Fifty-eighth Street, where the Duchess and the Princess had accepted an invitation for luncheon. There were about fifty guests at the luncheon.

From Mrs. Vanderbilt's the Duchess and the Princess, with their host and hostess, and Capt. Rivers-Bulkeley, were driven to the Metropolitan Opera House, where they occupied the Ambassador's box, No. 20. There was a special matinée on for the benefit of the employes of the Opera House, and every seat and box was taken.

The audience was expecting the arrival of royalty, and as the Duchess and Princess took their seats there was a buzz throughout the house and hundreds of opera glasses and lorgnettes were leveled in their direction.

Mrs. Reid was in gray velvet, with a white lace guimpe and a short string of pearls, topped by a small gray hat, with shaded gray ostrich tips. When she entered the Opera House she wore a loose gray cloak and one-button gray suede gloves.

Costumes of Duchess and Princess.

The Duchess was in brown velvet, the bodice of brown chiffon over cream satin, trimmed with velvet. Her large black hat was trimmed with ostrich plumes of emerald green. When she arrived she wore a long brown velvet coat, trimmed with sable, and carried a sable muff. Her lorgnon chain was thickly studded with diamonds, but the lorgnon itself was of tortoise shell.

Princess Patricia wore a pale gray satin frock with a bodice of gray chiffon striped with gray trimming over white, and a guimpe and undersleeves of white lace. She also wore, like the Duchess, long white gloves, a narrow, flat stole of chinchilla, and a large black hat with black ostrich plumes. She carried a chinchilla muff. It was noticeable that neither of the muffs carried by the Duchess or Princess was of the large pillow shape. The Princess's coat was a long black caracul.

From the opera house they were driven to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers Winthrop, 23 West Fiftieth Street, where they remained for tea. Other guests were asked in by Mrs. Winthrop for the tea, which was very informal.

Before last night's opera the Duchess and Princess were entertained at dinner by the son and daughter-in-law of their host, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, at their new home, 7 West Fifty-first Street.

There were about thirty guests at this dinner, including President Arthur Hadley of Yale and Mrs. Hadley, Mrs. Lewis Thompson, Admiral Cowles, Oliver Harriman, Robert Bacon, and Phoenix Ingraham.

Mrs. Reid wore a white satin gown embroidered in pearls, with a coat overdress of gray chiffon. She wore a diamond band in her coiffure, a diamond necklace, and a string of pearls.

The Duchess was in pale gray chiffon over pearl gray, embroidered and worked in ribbon and chiffon bands and ornaments. Her hair was done low, and her diamond diadem was worn like a band. She also wore a superb pearl dog collar with diamond slides and diamond plastron on her corsage.

Princess Patricia wore a white satin brocade, the bodice covered with white chiffon, trimmed with crystal and pearl fringe and having folds of pale pink satin over the shoulders. Her hair was banded with a silver ribbon, and a string of pearls was wound several times around her throat. Her opera cloak was lined with black and white striped satin and edged with ermine.

FARLEY AND GIBBONS AT CATHOLIC CLUB

Host of Prominent Citizens Offers Homage to Both Cardinals at Big Reception.

MAYOR GAYNOR PAYS TRIBUTE

Each Cardinal Makes a Short Speech —Governor's Military Aid Clears a Passageway for Them.

At none of the affairs given in his honor since his return from Rome has Cardinal Farley seemed so happy and radiant as he did last night at the reception tendered him by the Catholic Club in its clubhouse at 120 Central Park South. Fifteen hundred prominent guests were present, including representative men from almost every State in the Union, and for nearly all of them Cardinal Farley had a personal greeting.

It was a dual reception, in a way, for Cardinal Gibbons was there also, and shared the honors with the junior Cardinal. They wore their house gowns, with the red cape and hat. Both made a short speech, and each chatted for a few moments with Mayor Gaynor, who, likewise, addressed the guests. Speeches were also made by Michael J. Mulqueen, President of the Catholic Club, and Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, who had charge of the work of the New York Archdiocese during the Cardinal's absence. Gov. Dix was to have come, but illness prevented him, and his military secretary, Commander de Kay, read the Governor's speech.

The clubrooms were so crowded that many who wanted to see Cardinal Farley were unable to approach him during the evening. The two Cardinals did not arrive until 9:30 o'clock, and they had such difficulty making their way through the waiting crowd that the military staff of Gov. Dix was called upon to clear a passageway. The two Cardinals walked together from the board room, on the second floor, through the foyer hall and into the ballroom, where a speaking platform had been constructed amid a bower of roses and appropriate decorations. Cardinal Gibbons sat to the left of Cardinal Farley, and on either side were Mgr. Mooney and Mayor Gaynor. Chairman Mulqueen formally welcomed the guests and introduced Cardinal Gibbons.

Praise from Cardinal Gibbons.

The senior Cardinal not to the surprise of those who knew him, was jovial, and soon had his hearers in happy humor.

"Cardinal Farley seems to be a popular man," he said, "and he seems to be getting ahead of me. But I want to say that I am still eight years his senior, and I am determined that he shall never catch up with me on that score at least.

"To be serious, however, what impresses me most in his eminence, Cardinal Farley, is the man. I have known him long, and I know his qualities. He is a popular man, but he has always placed principle before popularity. Although not in the arena of politics, he is nevertheless a statesman and patriot. He is a lover of his country and we need Cardinal Farley to protect us against the evils of sedition and other dangers which beset us.

"Now, I think the Cardinal needs a rest, and I think you ought to give it to him."

At this there was laughter and applause, and Cardinal Farley took off his red hat in assent and shook his head in laughter.

Mayor Gaynor said that he had never in his life seen a finer demonstration given any man than had been accorded Cardinal Farley. He said that he was particularly honored to participate in this welcome.

"Cardinal Farley is a big man," he said. "He is not puffed up. Even the Cardinal's hat has failed to change him one bit. He is a great man, because he did what Jesus did. He lifted up the poor as Jesus did. There is no pomposity about him, but all sincerity and all simplicity. He has a large heart. That is why he is a man. If you took those red robes from him, I am not sure about the color, you would find the same man under them. All these honor him."

Mgr. Mooney was asked to speak for the clergy of the New York archdiocese.

"As representing the clergy to which this signal honor has come from our Holy Father, the Pope," said Mgr. Mooney, "I must express our gratification also, no matter how fully that gratification has already been expressed throughout the land.

"This magnificent outpouring is but the outcome of the spirit which was ever in the cup. This elevation, above everything else, will mean the promotion of genuine, true Americanism."

Man Faints in Warm Room.

It had been difficult to maintain order in the various rooms in which the guests were assembled, due, not so much to inattentiveness as to the oppressive heat which prevailed in the absence of open windows. Commander McKay, speaking for Gov. Dix, had hardly begun the Governor's short address when a guest fainted only a few yards from where the Cardinals sat. Commander McKay continued reading, however, and the guest was carried out with as little commotion as possible, those in the adjoining rooms not even knowing of it. The Governor's words, in part, were:

> The celebration in which we participated to-night I regard as an epoch. Intolerance has passed to the land of the forgotten. The observances of the past few weeks seem to me to erect one other great milestone in the pathway of human progress, which milestone is at the same time a gravestone, marking for all time the departure from our American civilization of that unnatural mental Bluebeard, bigotry.
>
> We to-night celebrate the wisdom and success of the founders. The American Constitution is really pregnant with religion, for its basis and pervading thought is confidence in man's self-control, which, after all, is the fulfillment of religious thought and purpose.
>
> In my capacity as executive servant of the cosmopolitan people of this State, it has been my duty and my pleasure to address bodies of citizens of different races and religion, and upon them I have tried to impress my conviction that, the truer one is to the faith of his fathers, the better American citizen is he.
>
> To one among us has come a great honor, nobly won and beautifully bestowed. It has come to a citizen of the greatest political democracy on earth, from the first historic democracy of the world.
>
> To you, John Farley, Prince of the great Roman Catholic Church, our greeting and a hearty welcome! And to you, John Farley, American citizen, our congratulations! Your enrolment among the Princes of your Church has brought honor and education to your fellow-citizens here. In the progress of the world, education comes to us in many guises. It has in recent years assumed no more impressive and no more illuminating guise than its embodiment in the elevation of New York's humble, great and beloved Archbishop to the exalted dignity of the Cardinalate.

Kiss the Cardinal's Rings.

After the set speeches the Cardinals were seated on specially constructed thrones in the south wing of the ballroom, and a line was formed to give all a chance to meet them. On the plea that they were too tired by the day's strain, however, it was requested that none stop to kiss the rings of either of the Cardinals. The Reception Committee soon discovered, however, that it had little power over the desire of most of those present, and the rings were kissed by hundreds of men and women.

Among those present at the reception in addition to the visiting clergy and the members of the Papal knighthood, were: United States Senator and Mrs. James A. O'Gorman, Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Conway, State Engineer John A. Bensel, State Controller William Sohmer, Attorney General Thomas Carmody, Mayor Gaynor, Controller William A. DENTISTRY

Dentists know better than any one else that only by specialization can the highest results be attained in dentistry. Dr. E. H. Angle, a dental authority, says: "The hope of the future for dentistry lies along the lines of specialization. I believe the greatest progress from now on will be effected by following this plan."

Eighteen years ago I opened this office and introduced the employment of specialists in each of the six dental branches. My departure met with remarkable success, resulting in the largest and most discriminating practice in existence to-day.

There is one other reason for my success—painlessness.

Send for "Dentistry by Specialists and the Gentle Art of Painlessness," and read what others say about my methods.

The little pages placed silk cushions on the two thrones, and immediately the mass began in the glow of a thousand candles in clusters of seven on the altar.

The Bishops and Monsignori occupied places on the gospel side of the chancel, and the other clergy, as many as could crowd into the limited space, were on the side occupied by Cardinal Gibbons. Archbishop Prendergast and his Deacons sat in the centre of the chancel.

Following the processional and the introit, intoned by the celebrant Archbishop, the epistle was sung by the Sub-Deacon and the Gospel read by the Deacon.

Greetings From the Pope.

Then Auxiliary Bishop Cusack entered the pulpit, and after reading two cablegrams received from the Pope, through his Secretary, Cardinal Merry del Val, both of them thanking the laity and clergy of New York for the hearty welcome given the Pope's representative, preached the sermon, taking for his text Ecclesiastes, xiv., 7, 8, 9. In part he said:

> An honor is measured according to the dignity and station of the one who confers it. For this reason a great principle lies at the root of this celebration to-day. Ritual and ceremonial must always rest on doctrine to have any meaning, and the doctrine which gives point to this celebration is for Catholics a most fundamental one. Our natural desire to honor our beloved Cardinal for his own sake, for his personal qualities, for his earnest zeal, for his fidelity to priestly ideals, as a teacher of public morality, as the protagonist of Christian education, as the successful administrator in difficult affairs—our desire to honor him for his personal worth would eminently justify an impressive celebration and give an outlet to our jubilant thankfulness.
>
> But over and above that natural desire and underneath that natural impulse of children to express their joy at their father's enrichment, there is our faith in the doctrine of the divine authority of Peter's successor to rule the Church of Christ—that he is the Vicar of Christ—which belief so enhances every gift and every honor from Rome that its appreciation becomes an act of religion, which does not indeed rest on Peter's chair as its object, but is translated to the throne of the Most High God and Jesus Christ His Son.

Then followed the Credo, sung by the main choir. During the singing of the offertory Cardinal Farley and Cardinal Gibbons left their thrones and, meeting in the centre of the chancel, knelt together in prayer in preparation for the elevation of the Host, sung by the celebrant of the mass. The main choir then sang the "Pater Noster," followed by the "Agnus Dei."

The "Pax Tecum" Given.

Then Archbishop Prendergast gave the "Pax Tecum" to the deacon, the deacon passing it to Mgr. McGean, and he, in turn, passing it first to Cardinal Gibbons and then to Cardinal Farley, from whom it was given to all in the chancel. This part of the mass was by far the most impressive, and was followed by the communion and the reading of the last Gospel by Mgr. Lavelle. All of the clergy, including the two Cardinals, followed the order of the mass from their breviaries.

With the ending of the eucharistic part of the services Mgr. Lavelle formally welcomed Cardinal Farley to the Cathedral, speaking on behalf of the clergy. He read his remarks from a cardinal-bound book, and when he had finished he offered the book to the Cardinal and kissed his ring. Mgr. Lavelle in part said:

> Happy as children whose father has been crowned, triumphant as soldiers whose General has led them to glorious victory, honored as though each of us were himself the recipient of the Pontiff's highest bounty, your thousand priests of the archdiocese of New York tender you our congratulations, rejoice in your elevation to the Cardinalate, pray for your long life, happiness, prosperity, and grace; offer you our hands, our heads, and our hearts, and stand ready with even more alacrity than ever before to follow your lead for the glory of God, the extension of Christ's kingdom, the perfection of the Church's work, our own sanctification, and the welfare of immortal souls.
>
> Our most fervent prayers go up for you to-day and all days that the happiness and success of your life shall constantly increase and last for many years. We hail you as the great ecclesiastic who has exercised every function in the sacred ministry, and shed splendor upon them all, as the father of the poor, the shepherd of the people, the ideal of your priests, the wise and able counselor of the Vicar of Christ, and, well and deservedly, the beloved Cardinal Archbishop of New York.

Justice Dowling for the Laity.

Justice Victor J. Dowling of the Appelate Division welcomed Cardinal Farley on behalf of the laity. He also presented his book to the Cardinal and bowed before him in reverence. He said in part:

> Would that we might convey to the Holy Father an adequate appreciation of gratitude which fills our hearts for the recognition so generously extended by him for the great services your Eminence has rendered to the cause of religion in this Western World of opportunity. Would that we might convey to him an adequate assurance of that unfailing devotion to him and to his sacred office which animates every layman in this country and which makes him glory in his attachment to the ancient Church. Believing that God, in His infinite wisdom, has preserved you to us until this day that you may be the means whereby still further good shall be accomplished, we pray that you may be spared to us for many years to come. On behalf of the laity of the archdiocese, we pledge you their unfaltering and continued loyalty, their profound affection and respect, and their readiness to respond with hearty unanimity to every call which your Eminence may make upon them in the cause of religion and morality, and thus for the greater glory of God.

Cardinal Thanks His People.

Then Cardinal Farley arose, and in a voice clear and distinct repeated what he had said at the previous celebrations, that he could not tell in words how the appreciation of his people, and of non-Catholics, too, had affected him. He paid high tributes, first to Cardinal Gibbons, then to Archbishop Prendergast, then to the Bishops of his own province, and to those who had come from afar, and also to all the clergy. He thanked them for coming, but begged them to understand that the honor they were doing him was not intended solely for him, but rather for the general cause of religion which he represented.

"For fifty years I have worked for the Church and for God," he said. "For thirty-five years I have prayed with Cardinal Gibbons in the common cause of Christianity and humanity.

"How shall I say the things which fill my soul to-day? I can simply content myself with a motion of my hand, a motion of sincere gratitude. When I left here last November amid the singing of the little chosen ones of Christ Cardinal Falconio said to me: 'You ought to be a happy man.' Now that I have come back to such a loyal clergy and populace, I want to say that that thought has never been absent from my mind. It has cheered me through all difficulties. You honor me far more than I ever dreamed of in my fondest dreams. But it is not I personally that you honor. The Holy Father has been the sponsor for all this. He has been made glad to-day by this celebration and by what he now knows of the Church in America.

"My life for fifty years has been an open book in the hands of you, the clergy. I know you and you know me. I was asked by a layman lately to tell what were my plans to reach the Cardinalate. I had no plans. My only aim was to do the things my hands found ready to do. I never looked forward to reward. I never looked across the sea for honors. My elevation was the will and work of God's providence. I sought first and always the Kingdom of God and God's justice. All that has come to me has come from God's unbounded love."

Delivers a Warning.

And then turning to the laity, Cardinal Farley sounded a note of warning, which seemed to come as a surprise, for his language was so worded that it was hard to conceive just what calamity he had reference to. From one close to the Cardinal, however, it was learned that the Cardinal was referring to such disintegrating disturbances as Socialism and anarchy, which he believes tend to disrupt the work already accomplished by the Catholic Church.

"It seems to me," he said, "and I believe it is an impression not uncommon to-day, that this age is an epoch-making age, when nations are arising because of the troubles that are brewing. Let the nations cling to the Catholic Church, the bulwark of order. Let them look to us for a solution. You, members of the laity, must be up and doing. The power rests in you, and your power gives me energy. And may my energy be directed in the right direction in the future, for the best interests of this Republic. God bless this country."

Mgr. Lavelle then granted to all present who had gone to confession and received communion, and who would pray for the welfare of the Pope, the Church, and the Cardinal, a plenary indulgence. Then, with the singing of the "Te Deum," the procession, Cardinal Farley now walking ahead of Cardinal Gibbons, filed around the chancel and out by way of the Cardinal's residence. The visiting Cardinal and Bishops were then entertained at dinner by Cardinal Farley.

GAYNOR NAMES LIST OF 16 HELPFUL BOOKS

Antonio's house who were entertaining Don Quixote, Motteux says:

"Among others were two ladies of an airy and waggish disposition."

Contrast this with the way Jarvis puts it:

"Among the ladies there were two of an arch and jocose disposition."

But I must not multiply these instances, except to quote the rendering of a proverb. Motteux makes Don Quixote say to Sancho: "I have always heard it said that to do a kindness to clowns is like throwing water into the sea." Jarvis has it that "to do good to the vulgar is to throw water into the sea."

Cervantes and Shakespeare died on the same day—or rather, one died ten days later than the other, according to the modern reckoning of time, but I do not remember which. But I find they made use of the same expression. Sancho Panza is made to say: "There is some difference between a hawk and a handsaw." Shakespeare says in "Hamlet": "I know a hawk from a handsaw."

Years ago I copied every proverb, or philosophical or wise saying, there is in Don Quixote. I think that an equal number of good ones is not found in any book, except the Bible. I am half tempted to quote a few to you and let you compare them with the original.

Aptly Quotes Sancho Panza.

"Who but a madman would mind what a madman says," is one. "Diligence is the mother of good fortune," is another. And this: "It is pleasant to govern, though it be but a flock of sheep." And this: "Some people go out for wool, and come home shorn." And this: "Letters without virtue, are pearls upon a dunghill." And this: "Though habit and example do much, good sense is the foundation of good language." And this: "When they give you a heifer, be ready with the rope." And this of the same meaning: "When good fortune knocks, make haste to let her in."

And some or all of those elected to office might well say with Sancho Panza when his old clothes were being taken off and he was being dressed up in his official garments, when he was entering upon the government of his island:

"Clothe me as you will, I shall be Sancho Panza still."

And it were well if they could all say, as Sancho did when he gave up his Governorship and they had stripped him of his official garments to reclothe him with his old ones:

"Naked came I into this Government and naked come I out of it."

And let me wind up with this one which the ladies might take offense at: "Between the yes and the no of a woman I would not undertake to thrust the point of a needle."

And while I am at it, and since we went into this book talk on the train at all, I will set down for you the books which I think have had the largest effect on my life. I will give them in the order in which I think I was affected by them:

The Bible.
Euclid.
Shakespeare.
Homer.
Milton.
Cervantes.
Rabelais.
Gil Blas.
Franklin's Autobiography and Letters.
Plutarch's Lives.
The Autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini.
Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.
Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations.
Bacon's Essays.
De Lome's British Constitution.

I have left out of this list those works on what, for want of a better name, I may call the philosophy of history. I have derived immense satisfaction from them. And no doubt I have omitted some books I would mention if I took the time.

Very truly yours,
W. J. GAYNOR.

GAYNOR ADVISES GRADUATES.

Urges Them to Get the Reading Habit and to Become Farmers or Soldiers.

Mayor Gaynor attended the graduating exercises of Public School 160, at Rivington and Suffolk Streets, yesterday morning, and among other things advised the young graduates what to read. The pupils cheered the Mayor heartily. He said:

"I was pleased when your Principal read from the Scriptures. He read the proverb, 'A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches; and loving favor rather than silver and gold.' I hope that you all go out of here with that burned in your minds.

"There are people in this city now with untold riches, but who are without any great name. There are not many, but there are some, and they are not happy. They would give great riches for happiness.

"I hope while here you have acquired the study habit, the reading habit, the habit of reading good books. When you get that habit you are happy. When alone, get a good book and read. That is a good habit. Don't get the habit of reading trashy newspapers. It is like reading dime novels.

"I hope you have acquired the reading habit, for there is a reason. If it is a regular habit and you read serious books, you will come out ahead of all competitors. I desire to say that to start you in that direction I will give each one of you a copy of the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin. I will send them to you.

"I advise you to get the Book of Proverbs, and read them all. Copy some of them in a little book and carry it with you. Memorize them. When you get them you will get the habit.

"Then 'Plutarch's Lives.' Read that. The language is simple and will do you much good. After Plutarch keep up reading. The 'Short History of English People' is good. Read it line by line. It is no use to skim over books. Keep your mind settled. Some books shouldn't be read at all. Remember the saying, 'My mind to me a kingdom is.' As soon as you get the habit you are on the road to success.

"Some of you will go from here to the High Schools. The High Schools of this city teach more than Dartmouth did when Daniel Webster went there. Some will go to the City College, where you will get a better education, than Webster and many other great men got. But they kept on reading; they had the study habit.

"Some of you should go to an agricultural college. Go out and hire yourself to farmers, no matter how small the monthly wage. Learn it all. Then study and make money as farmers. It is the best opening that I know of. It is healthful work. Would you rather be perched on a stool or selling calico than a free man on a farm? Which is better?

"I would advise you all when you become the right age to join the National Guard or go into the army. The military exercise is good; it will strengthen your body."

Confer on Brandt's Appeal.

Almost all of District Attorney Whitman's time yesterday afternoon was taken up in a conference with Carl Fischer Hansen, the former counsel of Folke Engle Brandt, who is now seeking a pardon from the thirty-year sentence imposed upon him in 1907 by Judge Rosalsky for robbing and assaulting Mortimer L. Schiff. Judge Rosalsky was present part of the time. Mr. Whitman said later that Mr. Hansen had outlined his relations with Brandt and that what he disclosed would be sent to Gov. Dix.

CENSOR SUPPRESSES A PLAY BY ZANGWILL

"The Next Religion" Not to be Produced Because of Alterations Demanded.

AUTHOR SAYS HE'S PUZZLED

As Fast as He Gave In, Fresh Objections Were Raised—Play to be Performed in America.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Israel Zangwill is the latest victim of the new censorship represented by Charles Brookfield, who is fulfilling the duties of the office since Mr. Redford retired.

Earlier in the week a play called "The Coronation," written by Christopher St. John and Charles Thursby, two women with masculine pen names, came under the ban of the Lord Chamberlain's Office and a number of authors, of whom the most prominent was H. G. Wells, issued a protest, which fell flat in all but feminist circles.

Mr. Zangwill's case is of more interest to the general public.

"My play is called 'The Next Religion,'" said Mr. Zangwill. "It deals with religion as a living thing and in a serious spirit. The negotiations which have been going on between myself and the Lord Chamberlain's Office for the past three weeks have finally broken down because of alterations demanded, which I simply could not make. I gave way on a number of points, but I could not yield to all the censor's demands, so my play cannot be produced here, though it will be published and also performed in America, and I hope on the Continent.

"There seems to be absolutely no guiding principle of any sort in the exercise of the censorship. Formerly one could not discuss religion and politics. Well, to some extent that has worn away. My last play was as good as political, and was licensed. But then, again, religious plays are licensed.

"In 'The Next Religion' I take no side. Whenever a character says anything which might be considered shocking by anybody there is always some one in the play who says it is shocking.

"As an example of the kind of thing the censor would not accept, one of my characters says, 'The God of law! The God who will send consumption even through the Communion chalice!' Well, this very means of disease communication was the subject of a long newspaper discussion, so I did not realize that it was too shocking to be mentioned in a play.

"The vital point on which we absolutely failed to agree was a statement which I had taken from a book by the director of the Niger Delta Mission. I had actually softened this statement, and, as it was a contribution to Christian thought by a devout Christian, I am again unable to see how it was unfit for my play.

"Wherever I could I gave in to the censor, but I found that as fast as I gave in fresh points that had not been mentioned before were raised. Many points were simply petty and irritating. It was not each one in detail, for that matter, but their cumulative effect.

"The censorship tends to encourage plays which, if not immoral, just graze the line. This institution is supposed to prevent the production of plays which either are immoral or may cause riots, yet 'The Playboy of the Western World,' which both caused riots and has been denounced as immoral, is a licensed play.

"Really there seems to be a steady campaign against free speech in this country. Debate was far more free in the days of Huxley and Tyndall and Spencer, when vital topics were discussed. To-day there is Russianizing, Mediaevalizing."

Mr. Zangwill's play is to be produced in America by Liebler & Co.

In view of the renewed discussion of the censorship an interesting note in a morning paper suggests that William Archer would be the best man to succeed Mr. Redford.

"Mr. Archer is a great antagonist of the censorship," says the paper, "but if it is made evident to him that there is no chance of its abolition he could surely take upon himself the responsibility of preventing such amazing exploits as banning 'Monna Vanna.' Mr. Archer is a theatrical expert, a brave, honest man, in fact, a super-censor."

MINISTER QUITS PARAGUAY.

Argentine Envoy Received No Reply to Ultimatum—Warships Sent.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25.—Diplomatic relations between the Argentine Republic and Paraguay have been broken off, and the Argentine Minister at Asuncion has retired from his post.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, Ernesto Bosch, has received a telegram from the Minister at Asuncion, announcing that as he had not received a reply from the Paraguayan Government to Argentina's demand for satisfaction he had withdrawn from the Legation this afternoon, and with his whole staff had gone aboard the Argentine gunboat Parana. He added that he would arrive at Buenos Aires to-morrow.

The Argentine Government yesterday ordered the dispatch of four warships to Paraguay in anticipation of the breaking off of diplomatic relations.

Movement Engineered by Immigrants Here, Who Have Raised $200,000.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A dispatch from Cettinje, Montenegro, says the police report a widespread movement to overthrow the Montenegrin dynasty and establish a republic.

It is alleged that the movement is being engineered chiefly by Montenegrin emigrants in the United States, who have sent $200,000 to the Revolutionary Committee, the headquarters of which is in [illegible].

DENIALS BY TANKERVILLE.

Says He and His Wife Were Misrepresented in Alleged Interviews Here.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—According to The Daily Mail Lord Tankerville stated yesterday that he was entirely misrepresented by reporters in the United States, that the few words he had spoken had been twisted beyond recognition. His son, Lord Ossulston, he said, was taken away from Eton upon the strong recommendation of a London physician. He was then for a year under a private tutor at Chillingham Castle, which change soon resulted in his recovery of his usual strength.

Lord Tankerville added that he had cogent reasons for deciding to place his son for a short time at school in America, as to which he only felt called upon to explain that no want of patriotism could be attributed to him.

With regard to the statement that Lady Tankerville's American education probably influenced his decision to leave her son in America, Lord Tankerville stated that as a matter of fact Lady Tankerville, although proud of her American parentage, was born in Switzerland, and educated in Italy and Germany.

An American woman reporter, Lord Tankerville said, rang up Lady Tankerville on the telephone, and next day Lady Tankerville was astonished to see an enormously enlarged and highly imaginative report in a newspaper, describing even the expression of her eyes during the conversation.

"My bedroom," Lord Tankerville said, "was invaded by interviewers. I did not even escape them when entertaining friends privately at dinner."

Capt. von Stuenzer Sentenced in Russia to Three Years' Hard Labor.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Dispatches from Warsaw say that Capt. Werner von Stuenzer was condemned there yesterday to three years' hard labor on a charge of espionage.

He is a Captain on the German General Staff and an ex-Lieutenant of the Guards in Berlin. His father is Gen. Karl von Stuenzer, who is now on the retired list but was formerly Commander of the Tenth Army Corps.

The von Stuenzer family is one of the most prominent military families of Germany.

BUNYAN MEMORIAL WINDOW

Unveiled in Westminster Abbey—Result of Americans' Criticisms.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A memorial window to John Bunyan was unveiled in Westminster Abbey this afternoon, 224 years after his death. The window illustrates scenes from "The Pilgrim's Progress." The dedication ceremony was attended by a large gathering of public men and many dignitaries of Church and State.

The inception of the memorial was due to American Baptists, who at the time of the world's Baptist Congress in London in 1905 animadverted strongly on the fact that there was no memorial of Bunyan in Westminster Abbey. The British people were stirred to action by the remarks of the American Baptists and started a fund for the purpose of putting a memorial window in the Abbey.

The money was eventually raised in America and Great Britain.

PREPARE TO RENEW CHINESE WAR MONDAY

Struggle, Worse Than Before, Will Be Due Only to the Ambitions of Politicians.

SUN NOW SNEERS AT YUAN

Admits Promise to Give Up Presidency, but Says It Was Conditional—Belief That Powers Should Act.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 25.—The time has arrived when the powers ought to apply friendly pressure to end the present state of things in this country.

The situation could hardly be graver. There is apparently little hope of an agreement between the Imperialists and the Republicans, and a resumption of the war, in a more bloody and implacable form than before, seems inevitable, as the result only of the ambitions of politicians.

An interview with Sun Yat-Sen is published to-day. In it he acknowledges that he agreed to turn over the Presidency to Yuan Shi-Kai, but says that this was to be conditional on Yuan openly associating himself with the Republican movement.

The statements of Dr. Sun do not agree with the facts in certain essential matters. The interview is principally significant on account of Sun's slighting references to Yuan, whom he calls the "Protector of the Manchus."

The so-called National Assembly at Nanking, consisting of a few followers of Sun Yat-Sen, to-day issued a statement declaring that Sun was elected without promising to resign in favor of Yuan, and that the Republicans are prepared to carry out their agreements if the republic is recognized.

The opposing forces are preparing to renew the war at the expiration of the armistice next Monday morning.

THOMAS F. MILLARD.

PEKING, Jan. 25.—The Imperial Government has apparently decided not to take the initiative of seeking a battle with the revolutionary forces. The imperial generals have been ordered to await the advance of the Republican troops, but military preparations are proceeding actively throughout Northern China.

Premier Yuan Shi-Kai continues in favor with the court. He was created a Marquis to-day and was notified of the honor conferred on him by Prince Chun, the ex-Regent, who informed him that the Throne desired in this way to mark its appreciation of his loyalty and labor in its interest.

A responsible foreign Minister has offered to China a large loan for the purpose in the first place of paying off the overdue loan coupons, the balance remaining to be divided equally between the Imperial Government and the revolutionaries, and both sides to accept full liability for the advance.

The Imperial Government agreed to accept the offer, which was then submitted to the revolutionary leaders, who tersely replied that they did not want money.

MUKDEN, Jan. 25.—A series of assassinations of revolutionaries occurred here on Tuesday.

Chang-Yang, one of the rebel leaders, was murdered on that day, and simultaneously a mob of assassins attacked his residence, where they killed his brother and his secretary.

A number of other murders were committed the same evening.

KULDJA, Chinese Turkestan, Jan. 25.—A large number of persons were killed to-day and several hundred houses were destroyed by a terrific explosion at the powder magazine in the old city of Suidun, which lies to the north of New Kuldja.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—A dispatch from Tien-Tsin to a news agency says the concentration of troops in Peking is proceeding very rapidly.

A considerable number of imperial Manchu soldiers have arrived from the suburb of Feng-Tai, a station on the railroad just outside Peking, and also from Tung-Chow, a small town to the East of the capital.

JUSTIFIES SENDING TROOPS.

Knox Says Taft Had Power to Do So Under 1901 Protocol.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Secretary Knox, in response to the request of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations for information concerning the recent dispatch of American troops to China, reported to the sub-committee to-day that the President had acted under the rights granted by the protocol of 1901.

The committee on Wednesday will probably take up Senator Hitchcock's resolution, in which he contended that President Taft had no right, without authority of Congress or by treaty, to order troops to China unless there was an emergency requiring the protection of American lives and property. Senator Hitchcock will address the Senate on the subject after the committee reports.

IONIAN ISLANDS SHAKEN.

Five Villages in Zante Destroyed—Thirty Lives Lost.

ZANTE, Jan. 25.—A very violent earthquake caused a great amount of damage in the Ionian Islands to-day.

Shocks were felt here and in the islands of Leukas and Cephalonia, where much property was destroyed.

No fatalities have as yet been reported.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—The earthquake in the Island of Zante destroyed five villages and damaged property in the capital to the value of $600,000, according to an Athens dispatch to The Daily Mail.

The death roll is thirty. The Government has sent warships to the island with provisions and tents.

Kahn Denies Opera Report.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Otto Kahn has given a flat denial to the reports, reprinted in London from American papers, that the Metropolitan Opera is contemplating a scheme for the interchange of artists with Mr. Hammerstein's London Opera House.

Mrs. Wheeler's Alimony Not Cut.

It was stated erroneously in yesterday's TIMES that Supreme Court Justice Lehman had reduced from $500 to $100 a month the temporary alimony to be paid to Mrs. Claudia Carlstedt Wheeler by Albert Gallatin Wheeler, Jr., whom she is suing for divorce. Justice Lehman will not pass on Mr. Wheeler's application for an alimony reduction until Jan. 31.

RHODES SCHOLARS' CAREERS.

Many Are in Educational Profession and Many Others Lawyers.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—The annual statement of the Rhodes Trustees, issued last night, is a fresh reminder of the large scale on which the mind of the founder worked. Of the whole number of Rhodes scholars and ex-scholars at Oxford, 84 are from British colonies, 90 from the United States, and 10 from Germany.

An interesting addition to he report is an analysis of the occupations to which the scholars turned after leaving Oxford. Out of about 250 men who left Oxford up to 1910, 84 describe themselves as engaged in educational work and 66 as in law. Doubtless many of the latter group may enter public life, which Mr. Rhodes perhaps anticipated as a probable aim of his scholars.

So far as the American scholars are concerned the same may be true of men taking up educational work, since a college President seems just now within measurable distance of the White House, and the influence of heads of universities on public opinion is one of the most characteristic features of American life to-day.

ITALY SEEKING A WAY.

Wonders Just How to Give Up Captured Turks to France.

ROME, Jan. 25.—France and Italy, it is understood, are agreed as to the principle in the settlement of the Manouba affair, involving the arrest of members of the Red Crescent Society while passengers on board the French steamer Manouba on their way to Tunis. The negotiations, however, still continue between the Marquis di San Giuliano, the Italian Foreign Minister, and M. Barrère, the French Ambassador to Italy. They are directed toward seeking a formula which, while fully satisfying France, will at the same time safeguard the dignity of Italy, so as to leave no trace of the incident in either country.

France demands that the matter be restored to the status quo ante, after which the differences can be referred to The Hague. On this point Italy is confronted by two questions: First, if the Turks are really what they claim to be, ought Italy simply to release them or hand them over to France? Second, in the event that some of the Turkish prisoners prove not to be physicians or medical attendants, but belligerents, ought Italy to require guarantees if she hands them over to France that they will not be allowed to reach the Turkish camp?

These are questions, it is urged, of an extremely delicate nature, requiring much tact, but it is quite expected that a full agreement will be reached to-morrow or Saturday.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The negotiations now proceeding at Rome between the French Ambassador and the Italian Government on the subject of the arrest by Italian warships of a number of Turkish doctors and nurses belonging to the Red Crescent Society from the French steamer Manouba during her voyage from Marseilles to Tunis are discussed calmly by the press of all shades of opinion.

Most of the newspapers, however, express their amazement that the Italian Government delays so long in making up its mind to release the Turks, who are now in the hands of the Italian authorities at Cagliari, Sardinia. It is pointed out that the handing over of the Turks to the French is the only possible solution of the difference.

Camille Barrère, the French Ambassador to Italy, and the Marquis di San Giuliano, the Italian Foreign Minister, had another conference in Rome this morning, the result of which has not yet been announced here.

The Cabinet has decided to ask the Chamber of Deputies to discuss the naval programme at an early date. Great interest is manifested throughout France in the proposals, which will be placed before the Deputies by Théophile Delcassé, Minister of Marine, who on Nov. 14, in a speech in the Chamber declared that the battleships Jean Bart and Courbet, which displace 23,500 tons each, were the forerunners of a new and stronger fleet. The Ministerial declaration made by the new Cabinet on Jan. 16 also hinted that the strengthening of the navy would receive special attention.

VIENNA, Jan. 25.—The action of an Italian warship in stopping the Austrian Lloyd liner Bregenz has given fresh impetus to the anti-Italian campaign here. The press continues to make emphatic protests regarding the incident, although the owners of the Bregenz have stated that they consider the matter of no importance.

The suggestion is made here that Italy cede her East African possessions to Turkey as compensation for the loss of Tripoli. Some significance is attached to the fact that this suggestion is forthcoming just at the time of the visit to Rome of Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter, the German Foreign Secretary.

PERIM, Jan. 25.—One of the Italian warships cruising in the Red Sea in search of vessels conveying contraband or Turkish troops to-day renewed the bombardment of Sheik Saïd, a small fort between Mocha and Bab-el-Mandeb.

The Italian vessel took up her station at a considerable distance from the shore and fired a large number of shells, to which the Turks, who are concentrated there to the total of nearly 5,000 men, replied from three batteries.

No casualties are reported on the Italian side.

Damage to Cruiser Trivial.

HONOLULU, Jan. 25.—Rear Admiral Sutherland to-day said that divers had reported that the propeller of the armored cruiser Colorado was slightly bent when the Colorado was brushed by the Hamburg-American liner Cleveland yesterday, but that the injury was trivial and the cruiser was seaworthy.

CAR CHASED KAISER; CHAUFFEUR IS FINED

German Imperial Chancellor's Driver Has to Pay for His Employer's Hurry.

WILD DASH NEAR POTSDAM

Emperor Was Hunting, and Chancellor Wanted to See Him About Colonial Secretary's Resignation.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—A chauffeur employed by Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, was fined $5 yesterday for exceeding the speed limit on Nov. 3, while driving the Chancellor post haste for an audience of the Kaiser.

I am able to supplement this bald police court announcement with some curious facts about the Chancellor's dash through the wooded wilds around Potsdam.

It was on the morning of Nov. 3 that Colonial Secretary von Lindequist handed in his resignation because of his displeasure with the Moroccan agreement with France. This crisis made it necessary for the Chancellor to see the Kaiser at the earliest possible moment, but as his Majesty happened to be hunting nobody knew exactly where to find him. The Chancellor therefore took up the chase of the Kaiser and, in a 60-horse power car, tore along at breakneck speed.

The car was rushing by the Wannsee when a policeman, known from his activity as "the motor terror," stopped it.

At yesterday's hearing the chauffeur gave an inkling of why he exceeded the speed limit, but the court declined to admit extenuating circumstances.

'KAISER DIVISION' GOES RED.

Socialist Wins—Conservative Majority in Reichstag Overthrown.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—To-day's second ballots brought the Socialists' strength in the new Reichstag to well over 100.

The Socialist, Dr. Liebknecht, captured the coveted "Kaiser Division" of Potsdam, where the principal residences of the Emperor, the Crown Prince, and other members of the imperial family are situated. The new member for Potsdam, where all the crack regiments of the army are garrisoned, only recently finished serving an eighteen months' sentence in a fortress for anti-militarist propaganda.

Dr. Liebknecht, who defeated the Conservative Burgomaster of Potsdam, is a brilliant barrister, and son of one of the founders of the Socialist Party. He is also a member of the Prussian Diet.

This is the first time in the history of the empire that one of the "Kaiser seats" has fallen into the hands of a Socialist, and the joy of the crowd gathered in front of the office of the Vorwaerts, the Socialist paper, knew no bounds when the result was announced to-night.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—The political complexion of the new Reichstag was finally determined by the results of the 33 reballots to-day. The general party groupings are as follows, the subordinate or allied factions being included with the parties with which they generally vote:

Socialists, 110.

Progressive non-Socialist groups, 95, including 46 National Liberals, 42 Radical People's Party, and 7 Progressive Peasants, &c.

Clericals, with Polish, Alsatian, and Hanoverian Particularists, 122.

Conservatives and allied parties, 69.

Independent, 1, (ex-Minister of the Interior von Posadowsky-Wehner.)

The results completely overthrow the working majority of the Conservative Centre in the last Reichstag, which is now able to muster only 191, counting every possible vote, and place the control in the hands of the National Liberals, who will be able to form a majority by throwing their strength with either the Right or the Left.

This makes the National Liberal leader, Ernst Bassermann, a commanding figure in the next Reichstag. He will be able to swing certain avowed National Liberals, who, under proper inducements, would probably be prepared to co-operate with the Government on most questions. The hostility of other Progressive groups to the so-called reactionary "Bloc" is apparently too great for any working understanding, except on question of national defense and the increase of the army and navy.

The Socialists return as the strongest individual party, their total being 110. This is more than double their strength, which was 53, at the time of the dissolution, and 29 above their previous maximum in 1903.

The Reichstag Centre is the next strongest individual party, with 93 seats, which is a falling off of 10, the result of widespread resentment at their share in the unpopular financial reform of 1909 and the prevalent high cost of living.

One of the most striking features of the elections is the fact that the Clericals, for the first time since 1881, are no longer the strongest party and no longer hold the casting vote among the parties. They have 93 members, the number they had in 1877-78.

In Marienburg Herr von Oldenburg, Conservative, was defeated. He is the man who about a year ago said: "The Emperor must have power at any time to say to a Lieutenant, 'Take ten men and dissolve the Reichstag.'" The bitterness engendered by this expression, it is said, brought about his defeat.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Don Francisco de la Barra, the special Ambassador from Mexico, with the members of his suite, drove to-day to the Quirinal. The Ambassador was received by King Victor Emmanuel, to whom he presented the thanks of the President of Mexico and of the Mexican people for the participation of Italy in the centennial celebration of Mexican independence in 1910. The King invited Don Francisco de la Barra to a State dinner at the palace this evening.

MADRID, Jan. 25.—President Taft sent a cablegram of congratulation to King Alfonso on his name day yesterday. The dispatch, the terms of which were made known to-day, is welcomed warmly by the newspapers and the people.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 25.—Crown Prince Christian and the Crown Princess were the guests of honor at a dinner given to-night by American Minister Egan and Mrs. Egan. A large number of Court dignitaries and many members of the Diplomatic Corps were present.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 25.—Archduke Joseph, a grandnephew of Emperor Francis Joseph, was operated upon to-day for appendicitis. The attending physicians report that he is not yet out of danger.

CALLS NEW YORK 'DUKE MAD.'

London Newspaper Sees Evidence of the Popular Good-Will.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—"New York's Duke," as one of the London papers designates the Duke of Connaught, continues to be a chief feature of interest to the journals here, which publish long dispatches quoting American accounts of the Duke's doings. The Evening News said in an editorial yesterday:

"New York society is Duke mad because it is not used to Dukes, and its excitement seems strange enough to us where the word 'duke' in the mouths of our political ranters has become a term of opprobrium.

"The joy and pride of mere dollars fades before the novel sensation, and the excitement being infectious, we are confronted with scenes of which under similar circumstances our own little 'back number monarchy' is incapable.

"Still at the back of it all, deeper than any sentiment of pushful, struggling snobbery, there lies, we are sure, an element of true, popular good-will, and doubtless the first to appreciate and value that sentiment will be the man over whom all the fuss is being made."

MANY KILLED IN GUAYAQUIL.

Explosion in Barracks—Gen. Alfaro Captured on His Arrival.

GUAYAQUIL, Jan. 25.—An explosion occurred in the artillery barracks here to-day. Sixty men were killed or wounded.

Gen. Medardo Alfaro, accompanied by rebel troops, arrived here to-day on the British steamer Quito. He was captured by the Government and imprisoned.

STILL ANOTHER AIR RECORD.

German Aviator and Three Passengers Stay Up 1 Hour 35 Minutes.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—A new endurance record for a flight in an aeroplane carrying the airman and three passengers was created to-day at the aerodrome at Johannisthal by Dr. G. Ulich.

With three companions he stayed one hour and thirty-five minutes in the air in a Harlan monoplane.

The French aviator Busson had hitherto held the duration record for a flight with three passengers. On March 10, 1911, with three companions, he remained 31 minutes 23 1-5 seconds in the air at Rheims, in a Deperdussin machine.

ANARCHY AT BAHIA.

Houses Burned—More Fighting—Similar Conditions at Fortaleza.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 25.—The political struggle has started afresh at Bahia, to which port the federal Government two weeks ago was compelled to dispatch a warship in order to quell the disturbances.

There has been renewed violence throughout the city, and considerable fighting in the streets.

The newspapers are opposing the candidature of Dr. J. J. Seabra, the Minister of Public Works, for the Governorship of the State. Residences have been burned and looted, and trade is at a standstill.

A similar state of affairs is reported at Fortaleza, capital of the State of Ceara. The situation is considered grave.

The original trouble in Bahia was the outcome of the refusal of the State Government to act upon a federal court judgment granting a writ of habeas corpus in favor of certain Opposition deputies. The State Government buildings and adjoining residences were bombarded by Fort Sao Marcello.

The Governor of the State resigned his office, and later it was reported that, as a result of further shelling, a large number of persons were killed and much property was destroyed.

THE MAINE'S TURRET FOUND.

Its Disappearance Was One of the Mysteries of the Explosion.

HAVANA, Jan. 25.—The forward turret of the Maine, the total disappearance of which was one of the most curious features of the explosion, has been found. It is buried in the mud twenty feet from the starboard side of the ship and thirty feet aft of its original place.

The whole mass, approximating 300 tons, and including the turret proper, two ten-inch guns, and the massive barbette, is completely inverted, the barbette on top. As it does not form an obstruction in the harbor, no attempt will be made to remove the turret.

Everything is now ready to admit water to the cofferdam in the way of experiment, prior to floating the wreck, the feasibility of which is not questioned.

Goldstone of 38 West Thirty-second Street, who will exhibit the Wilson Building, Broadway and Thirty-third Street; the Hotel Langdon, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, and several other buildings of which they were the architects.

LONDON IS LOSING MORGAN'S TREASURES

It Is Believed He Is About to Withdraw Them from Victoria and Albert Museum.

HAS CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT

Splendid Collections Overcrowded and Imperfectly Labeled — Jewels Alone Worth $1,500,000.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—The Times says to-day:

"If rumor is correct, we are about to lose the magnificent collection of objects of art which Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan has generously lent to the Victoria and Albert Museum for so many years. Some articles, we understand, have already been removed, and others will shortly be withdrawn.

"Mr. Morgan has a perfect right to withdraw his collections without assigning any definite reasons. It is believed that he has more than one just cause of complaint, for some of his exhibits are still unlabeled, while others are inaccurately described in the officially printed labels.

"Overcrowding and indifferent display are two other just points of complaint. It is quite obvious that a benefactor such as Mr. Morgan deserves a little more consideration than is implied by the usual printed form of acknowledgment or a letter.

"Red tape has often been a curse of our public institutions. So far as Mr. Morgan and the Victoria and Albert Museum are concerned, it may be pointed out that Mr. Morgan has a very great claim to consideration. Roughly speaking, he has about £300,000 ($1,500,000) worth of jewels, £100,000 worth of carved ivories, and similar or even larger amounts in bronzes and porcelains on loan at the Museum, where his art treasures are displayed in thirty or forty cases.

"The withdrawal of these would leave a disastrous blank, which could not be filled up for many years, and it is to be hoped that it is not too late to overcome the consequences of official shortsightedness.

"In striking contrast to our treatment of benefactors in posse or in esse is the Continental way of diplomacy. To take, for the mere sake of example, Mr. Morgan himself. He has been decorated by the German Emperor with the Order of the Black Eagle; Belgium has conferred upon him the Leopold Order, France the Legion of Honor, and Italy the Order of St. Lazarus.

"Such honors are a just reward for princely gifts."

WOULD BAR FOREIGN SHIPS.

Dearborn Predicts Their Control of Isthmus if Admitted to Coast Trade.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The ultimate control of all shipping through the Panama Canal by the foreign Shipping Trust, with chief benefit to big American shippers such as the United States Steel Corporation, would result from the admission of foreign ships to the American coastwise trade, according to President George S. Dearborn of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, who testified to-day before the House Committee on Inter-State Commerce.

Protests have been made to the War Department against the proposed advance in freight rates of the Panama Railroad Company, effective Feb. 4. The increase in the rates will vary from 11 to 33 per cent., and will particularly affect shipments of structural iron and various building materials.

William R. Wheeler of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce to-day presented to the President and Secretary of War a protest from the Pacific Coast. It asks a suspension of the proposed advance in rates and that the matter be carried to Congress.

San Francisco is interested in the proposed advance on building material because of the construction of the buildings for the Panama Exposition.

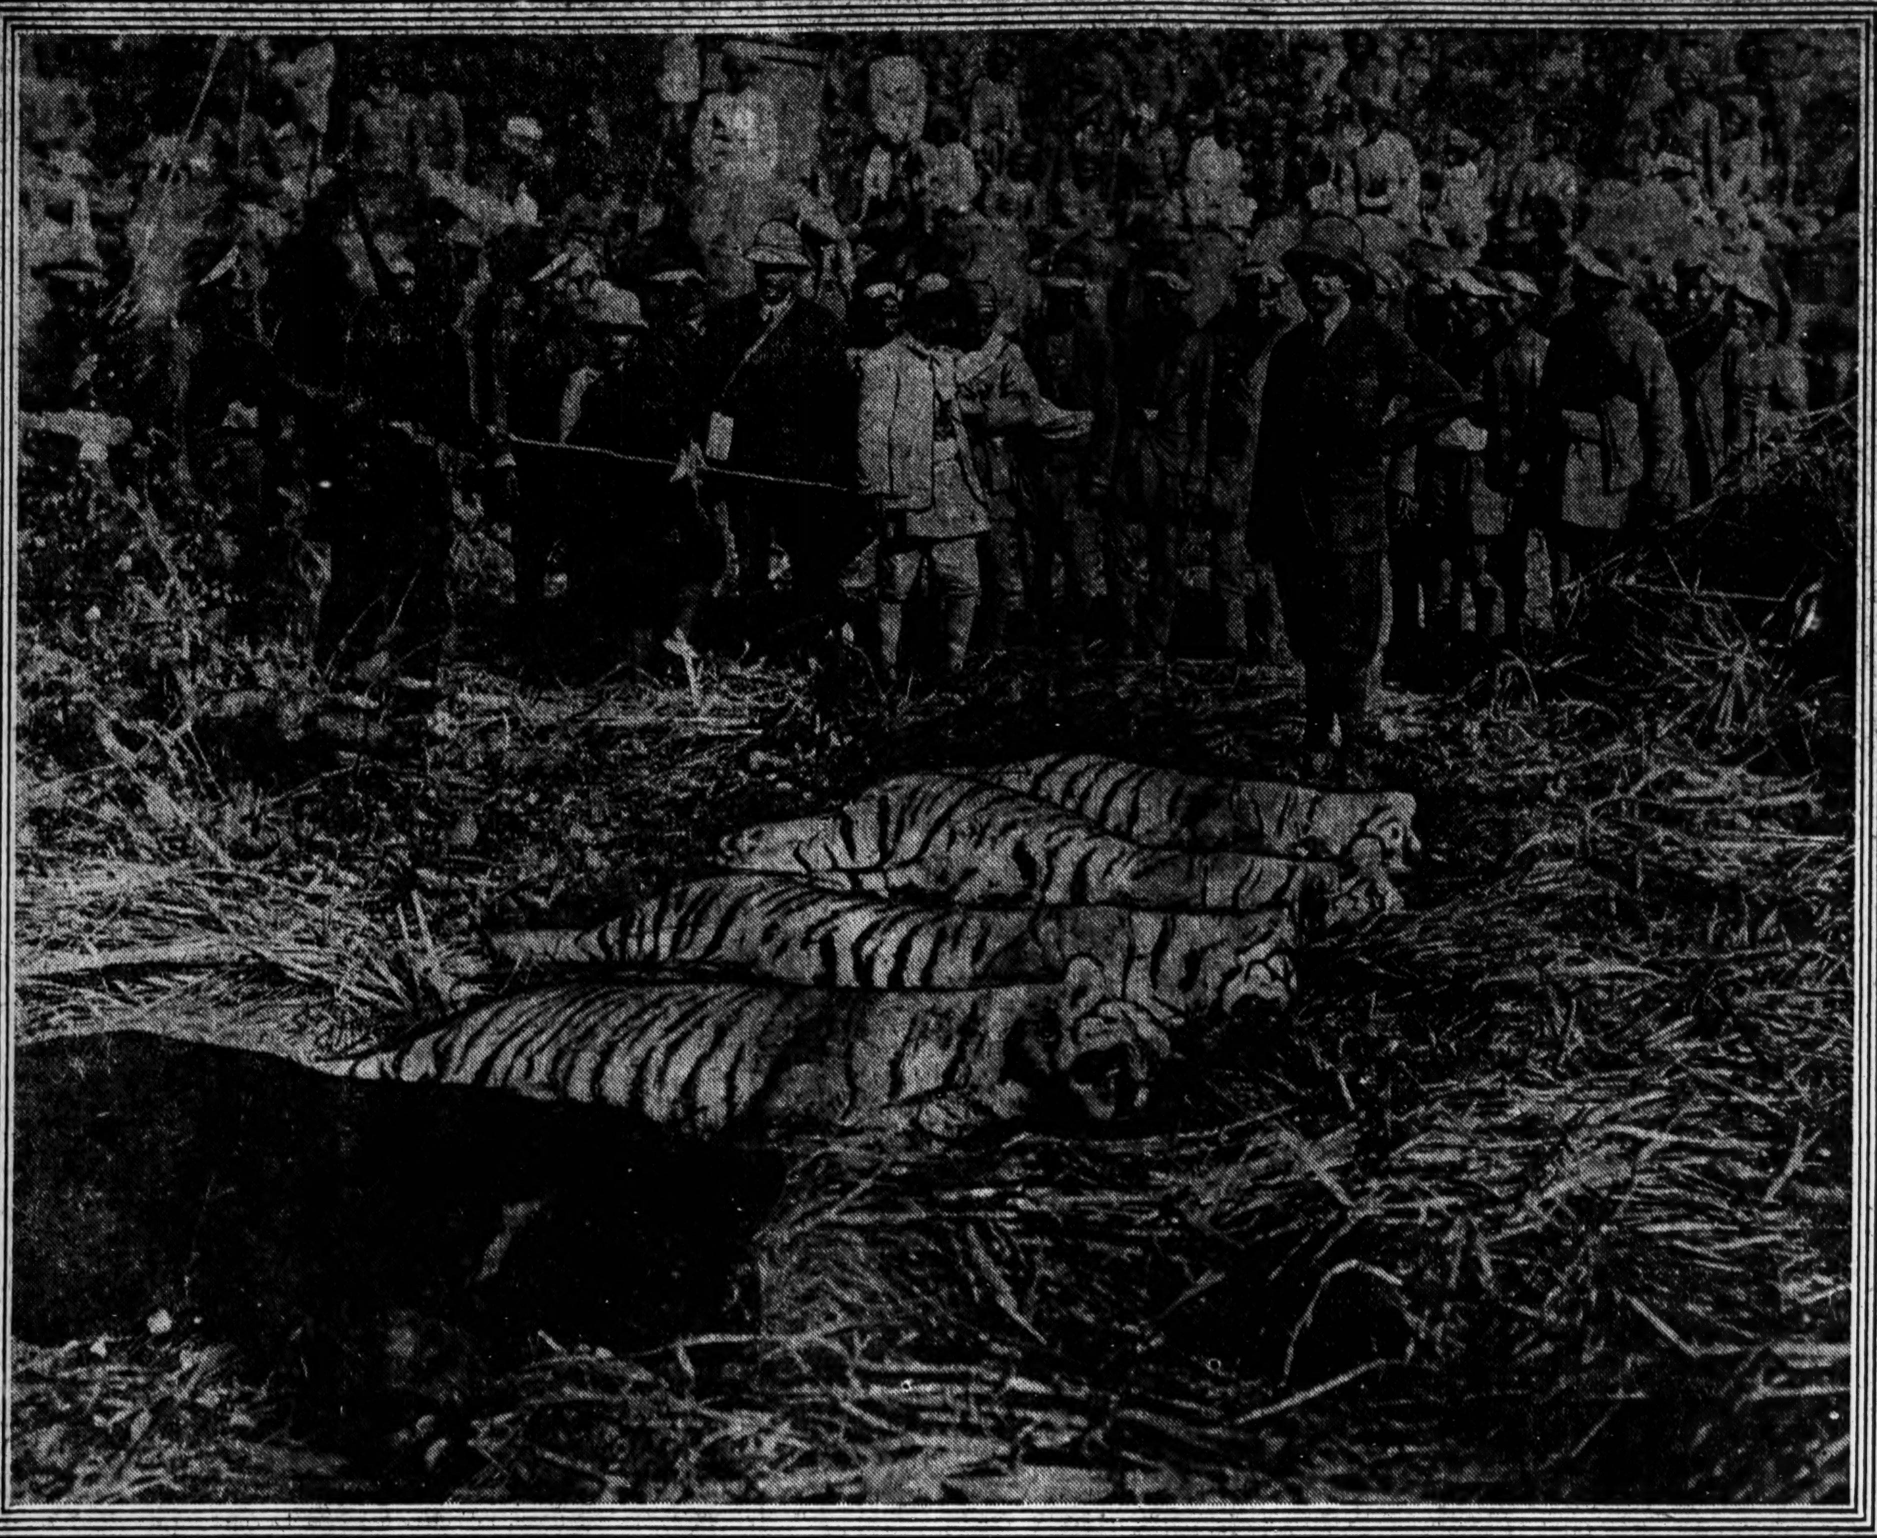
King-Emperors's Shoot in the Indian Jungle.



George V. and One Morning's Bag—Four Tigers and One Bear.

King George is considered one of the three best shots in all England. As an all-around shot he is said to be the peer of any of his subjects, and his hunting records have been made in all parts of the world. The tiger hunt in the Nepal Jungle was the crowning achievement of his career as a sportsman, and the splendid photographs which have been sent out of India show that the reports of the King's prowess as a hunter of the tiger were not exaggerated.

In the Nepal hunt thirty-four tigers were bagged, and of this number twenty-four were killed by the King. During that hunt King George is said to have brought down a tiger and a bear with the right and left barrels of his rifle.

At Lord Lathom's historic shoot in 1904 eight guns brought down 2,190 head of game between 9 A. M. and 4 P. M. the same day, and at the shoot King George's record was the best. He was then Prince of Wales. At this shoot King George used three guns, and it is said that on several occasions there were four birds in the air falling together, and all of them had been killed by the royal hunter.

King George was a member of the duck shooting party in Cumberland that brought down nearly 3,500 ducks in three days, and again he was the best shot among the nine sportsmen who took part in that hunt. On the first day the party brought down 1,141, the second 1,184, and on the third day 1,150 ducks.

At Lake Manitoba in Canada he was of the party that bagged 742 ducks and 70 snipe in a day and a half's shooting.

Once during a week's stalk at Balmoral he killed thirteen of the twenty-two stags that were shot.

Once King George measured his skill with that of his uncle, the Emperor of Germany. It was a windy day, the light was not good, and the birds were strong on the wing. The monarchs made fifty-four alternate shots. The Kaiser missed seven and King George missed one shot.

'Few men keep such a clear eye and steady, cool nerve after the age of 40, as his Majesty has done," a member of one of King George's hunting party said recently.

ERROR IN ROCKEFELLER TAX.

Building Worth $100,000 Listed in Cleveland at $14,080.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 25.—Asserting that a business block owned by John D. Rockefeller has been placed on the tax duplicate at nearly $86,000 less than its real value, the Cleveland Board of Review will attempt to have the mistake corrected by the State Tax Commission here on Tuesday. The board asserts that, because of a clerical error, the property was listed at $14,080, when it should have been $100,000.

The Tax Commission will also hear a complaint that the assessed value of $1,326,500 on Rockefeller's Forest Hill estate here is too high.

MOVE BY CHURCHILL MAY AVERT RIOTING

He Will Advise That the Belfast Home Rule Meeting Be Not Held in Ulster Hall.

BUT WILL SPEAK SOMEWHERE

First Lord of Admiralty Snubbed by Belfast Harbor Board, Which Declines to Have Works Inspected.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has sent a letter to the Marquis of Londonderry, ex-Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and one of the Unionist leaders, who are opposing the proposed home rule meeting on Feb. 8 at Belfast, stating that he will advise the Ulster Liberal Association not to insist upon holding the meeting in Ulster Hall, as contemplated, but that he intends to deliver a speech somewhere in Belfast on that day. Mr. Churchill says:

"It is my duty to keep my promise to the Ulster Liberal Association and assert the right of free speech in public meeting. But as the main objections appear to be directed against the holding of the meeting in Ulster Hall, I shall ask the Liberal Association to accede to your wish.

"There will thus be no necessity for your friends to endure the hardships of a vigil or sustain the anxieties of a siege Neither will it be necessary for you to break the law in an attempt to deprive us forcibly of the use of property to which we are lawfully entitled.

"It is not a point of any importance to me where I speak in Belfast. On the contrary, I desire to choose whatever hall or place is least likely to cause ill-feeling to the Orange Party."

The letter concludes: "It has, however, become of importance to public liberties that a meeting should take place at Belfast on Feb. 8, and I intend to hold it there, in the lawful exercise of the elementary rights of citizenship."

Mr. Churchill's conciliatory move is calculated to lessen the chances of rioting at Belfast on Feb. 8. Matters had reached a deadlock offering no escape without the gravest consequences. The Ulster Unionists appeared ready to take any risk to prevent Mr. Churchill from speaking in the hall in which his father, Lord Randolph Churchill, delivered his famous dictum, "Ulster will fight, and Ulster will be right."

The Harbor Commissioners of Belfast, by informing Mr. Churchill that Feb. 9 would be an "inconvenient" day for his visit of inspection, gave strong support to the Unionists. On the other hand, the Liberals made a formal demand to be placed in possession of Ulster Hall on the morning of Feb. 8, with a view to defeating the Unionist tactics.

At this point, as a result of the conference held in London yesterday, Mr. Churchill volunteered to accept a change in the place of meeting, and although the Unionists joyfully hail his decision as a retreat, largely due to the rebuff administered by the Belfast Harbor Commissioners, there is little doubt that they welcome the opportunity to escape from an unpleasant position, as public opinion seems to be going against them.

Mr. Churchill's letter was made public too late for the Orange leaders to arrive at a decision to-night, but the general belief is that trouble has been averted, and the Harbor Board appears to have placed itself in an uncomfortable position by unnecessarily snubbing Mr. Churchill.

The Belfast meeting was originally arranged by the Master of Elibank, Liberal Member of Parliament for Midlothian, and Parliamentary Secretary of the Treasury. He justifies the calling of the meeting on the ground that Mr. Churchill intends to outline the home rule proposals for Ireland which the Government intends to introduce in Parliament. Ireland, he considers, is the proper place for that to be done.

In a long article in Reynolds's Weekly Newspaper dealing with the situation, John Redmond declares that the threats in Ulster do not emanate from the general body of Protestants in Ireland, but from a small and noisy minority of Orangemen who are opposed to every reform for the benefit of Ireland.

BELFAST, Jan. 25.—The Unionists who are opposing so strongly Mr. Churchill's appearance at Belfast on Feb. 8 on behalf of home rule have found a staunch ally in the Belfast Harbor Board, which has practically notified the First Lord of the Admiralty that in its opinion he had better keep away from the capital of Ulster.

Mr. Churchill announced to the Commissioners of Belfast Harbor yesterday that he desired to visit the harbor and docks on Feb. 9, the day after the proposed home rule meeting.

At a special meeting held by the Harbor Board to-day the Commissioners drew up a reply to the effect that Feb. 9 would not be a convenient date for Mr. Churchill to inspect the harbor and docks.

The Liberal Association applied to-day to the Corporation of the City for the use of Ulster Hall on the morning of Feb. 8, the day on which the home rule demonstration is to take place. The Corporation discussed the matter at considerable length, but adjourned without reaching a decision.

Willett's Lawyer Sues Him.

Abraham Levy, one of the lawyers who appeared for William Willett, Jr., in the inquiry into his judiciary nomination in Queens, filed suit for $1,000 against Willett yesterday. He said his services were reasonably worth that amount and that Willett had failed to pay him. Willett's answer was not filed.

STRAIGHTEN BAXTER STREET.

McAneny's Engineers Are Busy Working Out Civic Centre Idea.

The engineers of Borough President McAneny's office are at work on the plans for the alteration of the streets in accordance with his civic centre idea. The involves the straightening of Baxter Street below Franklin Street, the carrying of Leonard Street across Mulberry Bend Park so as to give a direct connection with Pell Street, and the extension of City Hall Place through the block between Pearl and Worth Streets up to the Five Points.

As soon as this work is completed the proposed alterations to the city map will be laid before the Board of Estimate. With them will come the recommendation from Mr. McAneny that the board should authorize the immediate purchase of the block just north of the Municipal Building and the half block to the west of the extension of City Hall Place.

It is the land on which the city officials will advise that the Federal authorities shall construct the Federal Building in place of the present Post Office, in case Senator O'Gorman gets his bill through Congress. Mr. McAneny feels so strongly that even if the Washington authorities do not act at once the site should be reserved for public buildings of some kind that he will advise that the city buy it immediately, while it can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

This matter is likely to be brought before the board in the next three or four weeks. Meanwhile the Court House Commission is at work on the Court House itself, and all steps to be taken are in its hands. The Board of Estimate will have nothing more to do with it till it is asked to authorize the issue of corporate stock for the purchase of the land, to approve the design of the Court House, or appropriate money for its construction.

A Stay for Katzenstein.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard granted a certificate of reasonable doubt yesterday to Simon Katzenstein, who was convicted of attempting to bribe one of Commissioner Fosdick's men, when he was caught removing fresh meat as refuse from Ward's Island. Katzenstein pleaded that unless the certificate were issued he would have to serve most of his sentence before an appeal could be heard. He made the usual allegations of errors committed on his trial, and objected to the action of the court in ordering him into custody to keep him away from the jurors during his trial.

GUINEA PIG ALIVE IN EQUITABLE RUINS

Two Weeks Without Food or Water in Laboratory Which Wasn't Burned.

RUN ON SAFETY BOXES

Vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Unharmed and Millions in Securities Are Carried Away.

While boxholders in the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company were busy yesterday removing stocks and bonds worth millions of dollars, more interest seemed to be aroused by the fact that a guinea-pig had been taken alive from the fire-swept and ice-clad wreck of the old Equitable Building, more than two weeks after it had last been fed. It had been in the medical laboratory of the life insurance company, and when the fire cut off access to the part of the building where it was kept it was confined in a little wire cage, without companionship of any kind and without water or food, unless there was a little left in the cage.

The medical office was on the third floor, on the Pine Street side, and over toward Nassau Street, and this part of the building was not reached by the fire. When the workmen who have been clearing up the débris got that far last week, they boarded up the rooms to keep out persons who had no business there. An unidentified cat was found roaming about the ruins at this time, and when a way had been opened up through the ruins it promptly made its escape.

From day to day access has been given more and more freely to those who had offices in the building, first on the lower floors and in the last few days to the undamaged part of the third floor. Among those who went there on Wednesday to remove their effects was Dr. A. S. Wolf, who besides being connected with the Equitable Life has an office at 206 West Ninety-fifth Street. He was busily engaged in looking over the instruments and office paraphernalia that he had left there two weeks ago when he heard a faint little squeal.

Dr. Wolf knew at once where it came from, as the guinea pig, a female, was the only living creature he had left there. So he looked at once under the washstand where the cage had been set. At his approach the guinea pig gave evidence of joy. It frisked about in the narrow confines of the wire cage, and when Dr. Wolf opened the little door it bounded out and ran across the laboratory to where its food was kept. Without any signs of weakness, but with plenty of signs of hunger, it ate its fill, and when Dr. Wolf poured out some water it drank eagerly.

The Cold, Too, Was Awful.

"I was certainly surprised," said Dr. Wolf last night, "to find the guinea pig still living. Of course, it did not suffer by the fire, but you know how cold it has been ever since the fire. When I examined an ice closet in which I keep some of my things I found the same cake of ice there that I had put in before the fire."

Dr. Wolf said, in answer to a question, that guinea pigs are not especially noted for ability to go without food any longer than the average animal. He took this survivor of the fire to his Ninety-fifth Street office, where it was in first-class condition yesterday.

Ten days after the Windsor Hotel was burned in 1899 a rat with a singed tail, but very much alive, was pulled out of the ruins. Dr. Wolf's guinea pig has beaten the rat's record by five days.

The opening of the Mercantile Safe Deposit vaults yesterday dispelled any lingering apprehensions that the contents of the boxes might be found in ashes. Not even the paint on the boxes was blistered, and there was no heat in the vaults themselves when the doors swung back for the first time in two weeks. In a few cases the securities had ben reached by water, presumably from the dampness that had penetrated the steel walls rather than from any leak through the fireproof doors. No particular damage had been done even in these cases, and all the stocks and bonds needed was a drying.

It had been announced that the opening would take place at 9 o'clock, and at that hour there was a line of boxholders stretching from the entrance that had been tunneled through the débris, on Broadway, near the Cedar Street corner, all the way down to Pine Street and in Pine Street half way to Nassau. Some of those in line were nervous and showed it.

$20,000,000 in One Bunch.

The doors of the two vaults were opened without difficulty. The combinations worked perfectly, and there was no work for the experts who were on hand. The first man to get his box was Joseph W. Harriman of Harriman & Co., 111 Broadway. With him were nine clerks, and they took out four large steel boxes said to contain securities valued at $20,000,000. Simon, Borg & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, removed six large boxes to the Carnegie Safe Deposit vaults. Thomas Denny & Co. took out five boxes and rushed them uptown in an automobile.

Only a few boxholders were admitted at a time to avoid confusion, but the line outside cheered up as those ahead came out with their securities and announced that everything was all right inside. The line disappeared after a few hours.

When the boxholders entered the place with their red tickets they had to go through the same routine that prevails in safe deposit vaults under ordinary conditions. Fortunately the records by which boxholders are identified were undamaged, although they had not been kept in the fireproof vaults. The whole affair had something of the appearance of a run on a bank, and some similar incidents. One business man who bustled into the temporary office on Nassau Street demanded to know whether he could get at his box. He was told that he could. Then he lost his eagerness.

"Well," he said, "what is the condition of the contents of the vault, now that they have been opened."

"Everything is just about as it was before the fire," he was told. "None of the securities is damaged."

"Would you advise me to go right over and take my stuff out?" he asked.

"Not unless you want to use it," he was told. "It will be there just the same to-morrow and the day after, and the crowd will be less."

The boxholder decided he was not in such a hurry after all. Some people who waited in line got out their boxes, and then decided to put them back again.

Moved Across to Carnegie.

All day long the streets around the Equitable Building were notable for the number of people of all sorts who were carrying metal boxes. There were squads of police on duty and private detectives, too, but the people with the boxes seemed to have little fear with their hands on the valuables that had gone through a fire.

These boxholders made off in every direction, but the majority of them went right across the street and put their boxes in the Carnegie Safe Deposit. Still, one of the surety companies issued a bond yesterday to one concern for $700,000 guaranteeing the safe removal and transfer of its securities. Several policies of this sort, some for much larger amounts, had been written earlier in the week.

The old Carnegie quarters are to be the new home of the Mercantile. This was announced officially yesterday, and to the names of L. L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange National Bank; Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank, and Charles H. Sabin, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company as those who had bought the Carnegie vaults from the State Banking Department were added J. S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce; Louis V. Bright, Vice President of the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company; S. L. Fuller of Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co.; Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank; C. H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company; W. V. King, President of the Columbia Trust Company, and Seward Prosser, Vice President of the Astor Trust Company.

This syndicate has not only bought the vaults, which are said to be the most modern in the city, but have also bought the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. The capital stock of the Safe Deposit Company was formerly owned in its entirety by the Mercantile Trust Company, which has been absorbed by the Bankers' Trust Company.

Guinea Pig that Survived Equitable Fire

TAFT'S NOMINATION NEEDED TO AID PARTY

Supporters Feel That to Name Any Other Candidate Would Be a Blunder.

MORE TARIFF VETOES LIKELY

If They Are Not Good Bills Taft Won't Approve Them, Though Country Wants Downward Revision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The President is receiving pointed advice these days urging him to permit the establishment of political headquarters in his behalf that will be entirely dissociated from the White House. Every day the need for some central office that will be both central and accessible and to which the local leaders may turn for advice and comfort is being suggested to him from new quarters, and the loud talk of the Roosevelt boomers gives force to these suggestions. Prominent Senators like Mr. Penrose, Mr. Crane, and Mr. Smoot are urging such a step to give cohesion and efficiency to the Taft campaign.

Mr. Penrose sees in the situation strong arguments why the party should renominate the President. These arguments are having their weight with the regulars generally, and it is safe to say that except for straight Insurgents—and not all of them—the Republican Congressmen of both Houses look to Mr. Taft as the logical candidate to succeed himself.

"The Republicans have always renominated their President" said one Senator, "and what kind of blunder shall we charge to ourselves by refusing to renominate Mr. Taft. Of course he will be renominated."

It is pointed out that failure to renominate Mr. Taft would raise an unprecedented situation when it came to writing a platform.

"The splendid history of the party is always referred to at length, ending up always with the last Republican Administration as the 'most spendid in the party's splendid history,' but with such an indorsement of the Administration in the abstract what excuse would there be for not indorsing Mr. Taft in the flesh?" as a politician expressed it to-day.

"Platforms generally 'point with pride' to the party achievements and 'view with alarm' the prospect of success by the other party. But the failure to renominate Mr. Taft would leave the party nothing to which to point with pride. It would leave them almost in the position of a new party."

Besides the reasons of purely political import, Mr. Taft's willingness to stand in a breach in the face of every assault is gradually winning him real personal support of the enthusiastic kind. His attitude toward tariff legislation is an illustration of this. Only to-day a well-informed Senator was discussing the traiff situation, and it was suggested that on the eve of an election the President would not again balk the public demand for tariff revision by vetoing tariff measures. The Senator's answer was quick.

"The President is not paying any attention to that sort of thing," he said. "He is not making any public play. But if the bills sent to him are not good bills, he will veto them just as he did last year. That will be his only consideration."

The steel bill, for instance, is considered one certain to reach him, and is practically a rewriting of the measure he vetoed last year. The wool bill is also likely to pass, but it is still too early to see how it compares with last year's bill, or whether it can properly be considered as measuring up to the many-sided report of the Tariff Board.

The feeling is that further vetoes of low-tariff measures will make the election of a Democrat on a low-tariff platform almost certain. The vetoes last year went far to recrystalize the scattered sentiment on the tariff and new vetoes will do the same thing. It seems to be admitted that prevailing sentiment in the country is protectionist, but still stronger is the feeling that the tariff must be reduced. If the President's vetoes arouse doubt in a Republican Administration over reducing the tariff, it is thought that the country will run the risk of a Democratic measure and give the Democrats a mandate to revise the tariff. The one thing that would be insisted on would be that the revision be downward.

FOR ROOSEVELT IN JERSEY.

Resolutions indorsing Col. Roosevelt for the Republican nomination for President were adopted last night by the Auxiliary Committee of the Progressive Republican League of Essex County at its headquarters in Newark. The meeting of the committee was open and was largely attended. The resolution also indorses ex-State Senator Everett Colby for United States Senator. Says the resolution:

> Whereas, The critical conditions prevailing in National and in State politics demand a sane, consistent, and progressive leadership of men of sufficient poise and courage to bring order and victory out of the existing chaos; to the end therefore that the Republican Party may present to the voters of the Nation and State such candidates as will enlist the support of the united party, be it
>
> Resolved, that the Progressive Republican Auxiliary Committee urge the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for President and Everett Colby for United States Senator.

It is the object of the Essex County League to have the Progressive Republican organizations all over New Jersey adopt the foregoing resolutions. The auxiliary committee of the progressives in Essex County is looked upon by political observers as the "Roosevelt Steering Committee" in New Jersey.

TO LAUNCH ROOSEVELT BOOM

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 25.—Washington's Birthday (Feb. 22) has been fixed as the date on which to launch the boom for Roosevelt for President in this State. Arrangements are being completed to call a meeting here of all the Roosevelt supporters in the State and devise ways and means for obtaining a Roosevelt delegation from Washington to the National Republican Convention. Among those expected to participate in the movement are men from every part of the State, a majority of whom were supporters of Senator Miles Poindexter in his campaign two years ago.

An enthusiastic response is coming from those progressives who do not believe that La Follette can win and who want to get behind Roosevelt in the belief that he will be nominated. Among the leaders of the movement are Loranzo Dow of Tacoma, who managed Poindexter's campaign in Western Washington, and Thomas Revelle of Seattle, a progressive candidate for Congress, who tried unsuccessfully to defeat Congressman Humphrey in the Seattle district.

BOOMS TAFT BEFORE EDITORS

Senator Brown Believes Roosevelt Will Not Run.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 25.—Achievements of President Taft's administration were defended here to-night by Senator Norris Brown of Nebraska at the annual dinner of the Republican editors of Indiana. The speech was regarded as a keynote of the Administration efforts in launching a country-wide campaign. Besides the editors, Republican Party leaders from all over the State attended.

In discussing the Payne tariff bill Senator Brown said:

"The Payne law has closed no factory; it has reduced the wages of no man; it has denied labor not a single opportunity; under it the farmer has prospered. It has in no way impaired the general prosperity of the people. And yet the law can be improved. It should be improved a schedule at a time, and this will be done if the President and the Republican Party have their way."

Referring to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, the Senator said: "It was left to the Taft Administration to complete the job of clothing the Inter-State Commerce Commission with power by declaring any change in rates unlawful unless first consented to by the commission. It is good to know that while Congress talked the President of the United States was on guard for the people and invoked the power of the court and in the name of the United States stopped by injunction every increase proposed by the railroads."

As to the enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust act Senator Brown said:

"The scene to-day in Chicago where the great captains of the beef combinations are facing a trial jury in a fight for their liberty, is a demonstration of the good faith and the determination of this Administration to enforce the law."

Senator Brown paid tributes to former Republican Presidents, including Col. Roosevelt. Referring to a third term he said that Theodore Roosevelt never lied to the American people, and when he said he did not want to be President again, he meant what he said.

"Every man who doubts that statement now impeaches his integrity. I have honored and trusted him too many years to insult him now with the thought that he says one thing and means another."

FOR OPENING TAFT CAMPAIGN.

Youngstown Citizens Want President to Start It in That City.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—When President Taft arrives at Cleveland Monday next on his three days' trip through Ohio, he will be met by a committee of seventy citizens of Youngstown, who want the campaign of 1912 opened in their city.

The announcement was made at the White House to-day, but President Taft will not decide the matter until he has met the committee. The campaign of 1908 was opened at Youngstown by Justice Charles E. Hughes, then Governor of New York.

COUNTY INDORSES HARMON.

Democrats of Ross County, Ohio, Commend Him to Nation.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 25.—Gov. Harmon to-day received a letter, signed by every member of the Democratic County Committee, every county official and 800 Democratic voters in Ross County, one of the largest counties in Ohio, expressing appreciation of the efforts of the Governor and the results accomplished in his official career, showing to the people of the United States what may be achieved by progressive and enlightened government. The letter concludes:

"In recognition of these facts, we deem it a matter of public duty to commend, in the highest terms, the administration of Gov. Harmon and to sanction each and every measure which he has advocated while in office, with the firm and abiding hope that the people of the United States will set the stamp of approval upon him, his character, and his achievements by nominating and electing him as their President."

WELCOMES ROOSEVELT ISSUE

W. E. Chandler Thinks Test Timely, but Favors Hughes.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 25.—In an open letter to Republican voters of New Hampshire, issued to-night, William E. Chandler, former United States Senator and Secretary of the Navy, says:

"If Mr. Roosevelt is nominated he will draw some Democratic votes, but all other issues may soon disappear, and the only visible and operative one will be that of a third term and thereafter an imitation of Porfirio Diaz's Mexican method of administering a republic, so-called. Perhaps it is a good moment to have that issue tried out. In the end, it might have far-reaching, beneficent consequences, if the people should suspend controversy on all other questions and decide only one, namely, what kind of a Government they intend to have in the future and not how the Government we now have shall apply itself at this particular time."

Mr. Chandler pleads for an unpledged and uninstructed delegation to the National Convention. It is the privilege, he says, of Mr. Taft to be a candidate for renomination, but he questions if there may not be greater chances of success with La Follette, Hughes, Cummins, or Fairbanks as the candidate.

He thinks that "La Follette better than any one represents the prevailing reform element of the party," while Justice Hughes "is a wise, upright, and courageous public man of a reputation unsurpassed in recent Governmental events, and could be easily elected President."

It is a satisfaction to know that when you buy FURNITURE here you receive only our regular goods taken from stock, and not goods manufactured for sale purposes, which is the usual thing in general furniture sales. O'NEILL FURNITURE is made of the finest procurable woods, thoroughly seasoned to prevent warping, finished with only the most durable non-cracking varnish, and where upholstering is used wool is wool, not part cotton, and where we specify a French plate mirror it does not mean an American roll plate, which is an inferior quality, although it looks just the same. We mention these facts because in selling these goods we take a great pride in maintaining this store's integrity.

To-day and Saturday we will specialize everything in BEDROOM FURNITURE. Below we quote a partial list which will give you some idea of the great savings in price.

GAVE $15,000 IN CASH FOR BOGUS SHARES

Victim of Old Swindle Accuses Donald Persch, Who Figured in Windsor Trust Case.

FOUR HELD FOR LARCENY

"Farmer" Sold W. E. Shinks, a Manufacturer, Shares Which "Syndicate Agent" Offered to Buy, but Didn't.

An old swindle was retold with variations yesterday when Donald D. Persch, Charles Mitchell, Henry Ingram, and William J. Pollock were arrested, charged with grand larceny.

Persch was indicted two years ago in connection with the disappearance of stock from the Windsor Trust Company and was acquitted after he turned State's evidence against Charles Katz, who was convicted. Ingram is already under indictment for grand larceny in connection with the larceny of $46,000 from R. C. Megargel & Co., brokers.

Persch, Ingram, and Mitchell were arrested in a brokerage office at 52 Broadway and Pollock in an office at 150 Broadway. The arrests were made by detectives of the District Attorney's office. It is understood that four others are wanted by the police, and according to the District Attorney all were members of a gang which is said to have cleaned up $56,000.

The complainant is William E. Shinks of the Springfield Auto-Top Upholstering Company, Springfield, Mass. He was swindled out of $15,000 in Connecticut, but the men were arrested and held for trial here, as the conspiracy with which they are charged is declared to have begun in this State. Another man, who may be a complainant, recently lost $41,000.

It was said at the District Attorney's office that the gang used the innocent farmer as the lure, but other details described are those of the "sick engineer" swindle. On Aug 15, a man who said he was Mr. Gannon, the Springfield representative of a brokerage firm, held a conversation over the phone with Mr. Shinks. He said he wanted to talk stocks with him and mentioned the Chelan Consolidated Copper Company stock. The manufacturer replied shortly that he was not a speculator and did not want to talk stocks.

A few days later a man who gave his name as Adams called at Mr. Shinks's place of business. He said he had been sent to him by Mr. Gannon. He was anxious to talk of the copper company's stock, which, he predicted, was soon to have a historic rise in price. He explained that a bank clerk named Murray had let him into an inside deal. The stock was low and not much in demand, he said, but a New York syndicate had been formed to take over the property and had agents going about quietly buying it in. Mr. Shinks was interested. Adams confined to him that he knew a man who was willing to sell a big block of the stock for $6 a share, not having an idea that he could sell to the syndicate for $8.75 a share.

How He Met the "Farmer."

There was more conversation about the stock and Adams said he would return with Murray, the bank clerk, who was supposed to have overheard the syndicate plans while working in the bank. Three days later Adams returned and this time he was accompanied by a rather well dressed young man whom he introduced as the bank clerk. The bank clerk, confidentally, of course, corroborated the statement of Adams and added a few details that were new. The clerk said he had been looking about a bit, but he was hampered by lack of capital to take advantage of the "inside" information, and he had discovered a farmer named Grove who had a block of the stock.

This was the same man his friend, he said, had told Shinks about. It was a coincidence, he said, but Grove, who lived at Stratford, Conn., was just then in Springfield and stopping at the Worthy Hotel. The upholsterer was then so interested that he consented to go to the hotel and interview the "farmer."

The stage was well set, and in a room at the hotel Shinks and his companion met Grove. He was a typical farmer, and even the long white whiskers were not forgotten. The venerable-looking man was even then nursing a bad case of "rumatiz." He eagerly volunteered the information that he was a retired sea Captain, and had, besides a farm of many acres, shares of the copper stock.

He did not think much of it, and when it was suggested that it might be worth something he said, with a display of anger, that he was no gambler, and added that he lived with a sister. Yes, he was willing to sell for $6 a share, but he wanted cash. He knew nothing of business and was not going to be flimflammed by paper. The farmer agreed to go back to Stratford and get his stock. Shinks was to follow on a later train, and they were to meet at the Springfield Hotel, in Bridgeport.

It is declared that at this critical time Persch and Mitchell arrived. The former told Mr. Shinks, it is alleged, that he was the buyer for the New York syndicate and had been scouring the country for the stocks of the Chelan Copper Company. Mr. Shinks said he could get some, and the syndicate agent appeared to be delighted. He told the merchant that he would give him $9 a share for as much as he could get.

Shinks, after the departure of his visitors, had just time to go to the Third National Bank, draw out $15,000 in cash, and catch the 11:47 train for Bridgeport. It was there that he is said to have met Pollock, as well as the engineer.

Paid $15,000, Got $400, He Says.

"Adams and I, after meeting Grove," said Mr. Shinks, "talked over the stock, and I paid $15,000, receiving in return three certificates for 2,500 shares of Chelan Consoliated stock. The certificates were artistically engraved and embellished with red seals and ribbons. Then Adams went from the hotel to look up Persch. Persch returned later with Adams, and after looking at the stock said that it was not in proper form, as it was not indorsed in blank. He said:

"'The stock will have to be transferred to the book of the company before I can buy it, and that will take a few days' time. I am going to hold you to your bargain, though, and to bind the agreement between us I will pay you something on account.' He then gave me $400 to bind the bargain."

The stocks were taken away to be transferred, and Mr. Shinks was left, with $400 instead of $15,000, to hold the bag. He came to New York and made inquiries. He found the copper company was a foreign corporation and had no office here. Then he told his story to the Distirct Attorney, and the round-up of the men was begun.

Persch, Mitchell, and Ingram were later taken before Judge Malone, in the Court of General Sessions. There were no proceedings, Judge Malone fixing bail at $10,000 in the cases of Persch and Mitchell and $5,000 in Ingram's case. The court set Jan. 30 as the date for pleading to the indictment. Pollock, who is not indicted, was held in $10,000 bail.

ROBERTS'S STORY SHAKEN.

Young Negro on Trial for Murder Is Upset by Cross-Examination.

Testimony in the case of Joseph Roberts, the elevator boy who is being tried on the charge of murdering Isaac Vogel, a jeweler, was concluded yesterday afternoon, after Assistant District Attorney Moss had put the defendant through a grueling that nearly caused him to break down. The widow of the murdered Vogel also broke into a flood of hysterical tears that nearly made her testimony unintelligible.

Roberts took the stand, a very much cooler man at 3 o'clock than he left it at 5. He calmly admitted that he had stolen the jewelry which had been in the possession of Vogel. He claimed that Asher Schaaps, the Superintendent of the building in which he was the elevator operator, had struck Vogel with a hammer in the elevator while he was running it. According to his story, he had taken the jewelry which Vogel had dropped when assaulted, and had left Schaaps alone in the building that evening with Vogel.

Roberts's evidence was so shaken by the cross-examination of Moss that those in the courtroom were frequently called to order because of the laughter of the auditors. On one occasion, when Roberts was trying to squirm out of a particularly tight place, even the jurors hid their smiling faces.

At the beginning Roberts told his story glibly, as if he had previously learned it by heart. Before Moss had uttered the relieving "That will be all" he was stammering and sullen.

FINDS HAITIAN BLACKS SLOW.

If One Yells the Echo Isn't Heard for Half a Day, Says Railroad Builder.

Felix Prevailles, an American who has been employed in the construction of a railroad in Haiti, got home yesterday on the Royal Dutch Mail liner Prins Willem III. He said several thousand Haitian negroes are working on th eline, which is to run between Port au Prince and Cape Haiti, and added sadly that they were the laziest lot of workmen in the whole wide world.

"Never in all my days have I seen such laziness," said he. "They sleep most of the time, staying awake just long enough to eat now and then. They are so lazy that when one of them yells the sound travels so slowly that the echo doesn't get back for half a day. Yes sir, they are experts when it comes to sleeping; but as for work, well they are continually opposed to anything that even remotely resembles it."

LYRIC'S TREASURER FINED.

Refusal to Permit Negroes to Occupy Orchestra Seats Cost Him $50.

Harry A. Levy, Assistant Treasurer of the Lyric Theatre on Forty-second Street, paid a fine of $50 yesterday in Special Sessions, for refusing Lewis F. Baldwin, a negro real estate agent of 8 West 132d Street, admission to the theatre, although Baldwin had paid regularly for his seats.

On Oct. 13, 1911, Baldwin, having bought two orchestra tickets for the performance, entered the theatre with Miss Jennie H. Green, a negress. The usher refused to seat them, saying that he had instructions which he could not disobey. So Baldwin appealed to Levy, and was coldly informed that the management did not admit colored people on the orchestra floor.

FOSS URGES INQUIRY INTO MILL STRIKE

Governor Wants to Know if the Benefits of Tariff Are Shared with Laborers.

CITES PAUPER LABOR CHARGE

He Says Committee Should Have Power to Demand Books and Papers Needed as Evidence.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 25.—Gov. Foss sent a special message to the Legislature this afternoon recommending immediate action to provide for a full investigation by special legislative committees or by a commission appointed by the Governor of the cause of the present strike in the City of Lawrence.

The Governor says:

"I call your attention to the serious condition existing in the City of Lawrence, where an extensive strike of factory operatives has occurred. Disturbances of the peace having arisen I have been compelled to order twelve companies of militia to that city to safeguard public and private property and the public (including the unemployed operatives themselves) from outbreaks of disorder and lawlessness.

"Not the slightest approach to anarchy can be tolerated in this Commonwealth and I shall not hesitate to employ every means at my command to maintain law and order; but the duty of the State dees not end here, and I shall perform but the smaller part of my duty if I failed at this juncture to recommend a searching investigation of all the facts relating to the strike, including the condition of the striking operatives.

"The immediate cause of the strike is reported to be a reduction of wages consequent upon the operation of a law enacted last year, by which the hours of labor of certain classes of factory employes were reduced from fifty-six to fifty-four hours per week. Investigation may show that some reduction of wages was necessary. When the law in question was under consideration it was fully understood that such a reduction might occur, at least temporarily.

Pauper Labor Charge.

"But it further appears that the striking employes believe that they have other grievances than the recent reduction of wages. It is alleged that for years the employers have pursued the policy of bringing into their mills the cheapest grade of labor obtainable in this or in foreign countries, and by fines and other methods have reduced wages far below that decent standard which American citizens should enjoy. If these things are true, their truth should be established by public investigation and the fact should be given the widest publicity. If not true, their effective denial is equally important.

"In view of the character of the questions in dispute, it seems plain that the manufacturers should at least be willing to discuss the matter in a spirit of compromise. The importance of some immediate action on the part of the Legislature is manifested by the failure of the representatives of the manufacturers to join last night in a conference after an understanding to do so had been reached.

The Tariff Issue.

"A further pertinent and important consideration is that the industry in which the strike originated is one that has been especially favored by tariff laws designed, and only justified, on the ground that they protect and elevate American labor.

"One purpose of the investigation should be to determine how far the advantages conferred by National law upon the immediate beneficiaries of the protective system have been and are to-day shared with the laborers who are supposed to be the ultimate beneficiaries.

"It is a fact that the protection now afforded by the schedule of the tairiff applicable to the industry concerned has been declared by the President of the United States to be excessive and indefensible. It therefore seems to be specially appropriate for the State, which has been called upon to intervene, to determine how far the beneficiaries of Government favors have complied with the terms under which those favors were granted.

"I therefore recommend that immediate action be taken by the General Court to provide for a full investigation, by a special Legislative Committee or by a commission, appointed by the Governor, of the cause of the present strike in Lawrence.

"Such an investigating committee or commission should have full power to summons persons with books and papers and to ascertain all the facts bearing upon the strike."

Strikers Reply to Wood.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 25.—In an open letter addressed to President William Wood of the American Woolen Company, the Mills Strike Committee to-day expressed its willingness to meet the latter when the rest of the mill owners involved in the strike agree to such a meeting. The letter charges that the average wage for the textile workers in this city is less than $9 per week and that the brains, growth, and lifeblood of the workers is woven into cloth to make possible a luxurious life for others.

The strikers had little moral support from the citizens in general in the early stages of the strike, but it is apparent to-day that sympathy for their cause is now widespread, owing to the refusal of the mill men to meet the strikers' committee before the State Board of Arbitration.

Joseph J. Ettor and William D. Haywood declared that the mill men must offer better inducements than those which brought about last night's meeting before they would consent to holding another conference.

Active preparations were started to-day to obtain a fund for the strikers. Ettor stated that he would visit all the principal mill cities in New England to ask for contributions to the fund.

WOULD 'BURY' LIFE CONVICTS

Brockway Suggests Complete Ending of Their Civic Life.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Z. R. Brockway, former Superintendent of the State Reformatory at Elmira, agrees with Gov. Dix and Col. Joseph F. Scott, Superintendent of State Prisons, that capital punishment in this State should be abolished. Mr. Brockway goes further and suggests that the civic rather than the physical life of murderers be obliterated.

"I believe that there should be a large, centrally situated prison, under Federal control," says Mr. Brockway, "in which all life prisoners in the United States should be incarcerated. They should be allowed to see no visitors, and no one save Federal Inspectors should be allowed to see them, and it should not be known when they die."

ARGUES CASE IN UNIFORM.

Ex-Judge Dewey Goes to Court in Equipment of Brigadier General.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 25.—Former Judge Advocate General and Municipal Court Judge Dewey appeared at the Court House to-day wearing the full service uniform of a Brigadier General of Massachusetts Militia. He wore the cap, overcoat, sword, belt, russet leather boots, and other equipments, including a revolver.

Judge Dewey appeared in the second session of the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Chase as counsel in the case of Robie Skinner, who is charged with carrying a revolver, on Dec. 9, without a license.

LEDERLE FEARS AN EPIDEMIC.

Danger Is Grave, He Says, and Will Try Again for Vaccination Squad.

Health Commissioner Ernst J. Lederle told a TIMES reporter yesterday that he proposed again asking the Board of Estimate for $15,000 for his "vaccination squad." The board turned down this request on Tuesday.

"We are an unvaccinated city," he said, "and I am really worried now about this condition, for the day the Board of Estimate refused this grant there was a newly developed case of smallpox.

"I am hoping to protect the city with this 'squad,' and I will have to keep on trying till I get this money. The doctors all realize the danger, but the layman fails to appreciate its gravity."

The Unvaccinated Return to School.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The State Health Department was notified from Olean that the Board of Education of that city, upon the recommendation of Commissioner of Education Draper, passed a resolution to-day permitting the 1,400 unvaccinated children who had been excluded from the public schools to return to-morrow morning.

Wants National Guard Aviators.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Lieut. Col. Frederick T. Leigh, Signal Corps, National Guard, applied to Gov. Dix to-day for permission to accept an aeroplane that has been offered him and to create an aeronautical section of the corps.

CRUIKSHANK HURRIES OFF TO SEE HIS WIFE

Disappearing Captain, Back from Porto Rico Under Still Another Name, Stoutly Denies Identity.

CHASED THROUGH STREETS

Cornered in Lawyer's Office, He Owns Up and Starts for Potsdam—There Will Be No Reconciliation.

Capt. Barton S. Cruikshank, the civil engineer, and former head of the Clarkson Memorial Institute, who was discovered alive and well in this city two weeks ago, after having been mourned as dead for more than eighteen months by his family and friends, and who again disappeared shortly after his "return to life," returned yesterday from Porto Rico.

After leading an army of reporters a long and merry chase through the streets of Brooklyn, he journeyed by Subway to the office of his attorney and personal friend, Lowen E. Ginn, at 115 Broadway, where he remained in hiding until after 6 o'clock in the evening. Last night, after announcing that he intended to rejoin his wife and family at Potsdam, he once more disappeared.

While Cruikshank remained in Ginn's office every exit from the building was carefully guarded by reporters to prevent his escape. To the waiting scribes bulletins were issued at frequent intervals to the effect that "Capt. Cruikshank, having already suffered grievous injury as the result of the publicity to which he had been subjected, had nothing to say for publication." At the same time R. E. McLear, an associate of Cruikshank's attorney, was busily engaged telephoning to various morning newspapers an offer to sell "Capt. Cruikshank's personal story to the highest bidder."

Cruikshank, it will be recalled, disappeared from his home, near Potsdam, N. Y., on June 20, 1910, under circumstances which led his wife and relatives to mourn him as dead. He left his home to make a trip by canoe on the St. Lawrence to town for provisions. Next morning his canoe, crushed and stoven, with his cap and broken paddle, were found floating in midstream a short distance from his Summer home. When several days elapsed without news from the missing man his family and friends were forced to the conclusion that he had met his death by drowning.

About two weeks ago it developed that Cruikshank, who was an ardent military man and had conducted a private school on the banks of the St. Lawrence, was alive and well in this city. The news reached his wife's attorney in Potsdam following a review by Adjutant General Verbeck of the Eight Regiment Coast Artillery, N. G. N. Y., in which Cruikshank was discovered as an enlisted man. Gen. Verbeck immediately recognized Cruikshank, who at one time in his career had been a commissioned officer in a cavalry troop up-State.

An investigation was begun, and it disclosed that Cruikshank, who is a civil engineer and a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston, had been pursuing the practice of his profession under the name of Donald Douglas, with an office on the fourth floor of the Hudson Terminal Building at 30 Church Street. With him was associated a young engineer named Percival S. Whipple.

Cruikshank's brother-in-law was informed of these facts. He came to the city and confronted Cruikshank in his office. The supposed drowned Captain promptly admitted his identity, but absolutely refused to return to his wife and two children, one of them an eighteen-months-old boy, whom he has never seen. Two days after this Cruikshank disappeared for a second time. Later it was discovered that he had taken passage on the steamship San Juan of the New York and Porto Rico Line for Porto Rico. He sailed under the name of J. F. Murray.

Following his second disappearance it was learned that he had been paying ardent court to Miss Carol Roberts of Rugby Road, Flatbush, a daughter of wealthy parents, whom he had met under his assumed name of Donald Douglas. The family of Miss Roberts, it developed, had financed several of his attempted business ventures, none of which proved profitable.

Yesterday morning Capt. Cruikshank arrived from Porto Rico on the steamship Caracas of the Red D Line. On the revenue cutter which went down the bay to meet the incoming vessel was a large delegation of newspaper reporters and a camera brigade. After the cutter had drawn alongside of the Caracas and the host of news gatherers had swarmed over her side it was found that Cruikshank was the only passenger who was not on deck. He had engaged passage under the name of George Washington Fuller, and it was under the latter name that he was found hiding in his stateroom in the second cabin.

"Hello, Capt. Cruikshank," sang out the first of the reporters to gain admission to the stateroom.

"My name is Fuller," angrily responded Cruikshank.

"How does it happen that your trunk bears the inscription 'Barton Cruikshank'?" persisted the reporter.

"That's none of your business," was the retort.

Awaiting him on the pier was Lowen E. Ginn, Jr., son of his attorney. Cruikshank did not recognize him and thrust him to one side with a sweep of his arm as he started on a run down the pier and across the railroad tracks into Montague Street.

Then ensued a most exciting chase. The pursuing reporters were joined by cabmen, newsboys, baggage porters, and pedestrians. With every block the numbers of the pursuing throng increased. The reporters and an excited mob of wondering persons followed the pair into the Subway, where Cruikshank and his companion boarded a train for Manhattan.

Closely guarded by Ginn, Cruikshank alighted at the Wall Street Station, and disappeared into the Realty Building, at 115 Broadway, where he was whisked up in an elevator to the seventh floor, and gained the office of young Ginn's father, which was immediately barricaded.

Shortly after Cruikshank's arrival his partner, Whipple, appeared on the scene, and was admitted to Ginn's office. On his reappearance two hours later Whipple gave out the following statement signed by Cruikshank:

"Until I had seen my partner, Mr. Whipple, and my lawyer I preferred to say nothing. I am now willing to say that I am going north to confer with my family, and until that is over I have nothing to say, except that there is no truth in any of the stories about women. I am back to face the music."

Cruikshank remained in hiding in Ginn's office until 6 o'clock in the evening, when, with a bodyguard of eight muscular men, he hurried forth into a waiting taxicab and was whirled away. It was said that he intended to take a train for Utica at 9:35 o'clock last night, and there transfer to a train for Potsdam, where he will meet his wife and family.

POTSDAM, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Mrs. Barton Cruikshank learned with much surprise that Capt. Cruikshank had arrived in New York and had stated he was coming to Potsdam to join his family here.

"Well," said Mrs. Stickney, speaking for her sister, Mrs. Cruikshank, "there will be no reconciliation, so far as Mrs. Cruikshank is concerned."

MILLIONS IN CITY'S GARBAGE.

Contractors Get Them, Besides Pay, but Plan Is to be Reversed.

When Commissioner Edwards of the Street Cleaning Department appeared before the Board of Estimate yesterday and urged that the board approve of a contract for the disposal of city garbage for the next five years at a profit of more than $1,000,000 a year to the Sanitary Utilization Company, he met unexpected opposition from Controller Prendergast and Borough President McAneny. It is not improbable, as a result of yesterday's developments, that the city may in future sell the privilege of reducing the garbage into grease and fertilizers instead of paying contractors to pocket the profits of the business.

For the past five years the Sanitary Utilization Company has been disposing of the city's garbage on a profit basis of $2 a ton on green garbage. At times the figure has amounted to $3.50 a ton. The annual profit has been from $860,2[illegible]9 to $1,520,056, including average annual payments from the city of $200,482.

"In spite of the tremendous profit which has been realized during the past few years, the city has continued to pay to the contractor amounts varying from $64,000 to $221,000 per annum," says a report submitted to the board by the Controller and the Borough President. "The cost of the plant which is established at Barren Island can, in accordance with these calculations, be written off in a year, and on the total capitalization of $1,300,000 a dividend of about 100 per cent. could be paid annually if the average profit for the product were about $3 a ton."

Under these circumstances, it was decided to lay over action on this contract until next week. At the suggestion of President McAneny a committee is to be appointed to recommend to the board a policy to be followed in passing upon contracts involving the appropriations of moneys for these purposes.

STOCK BROKERAGE NURSERY.

Ticker Tells of a New Street Departure Which Didn't Stay Long.

Interlarded with the dry details of a day's financial news sputtered out by the tickers yesterday came a brief word picture of transplanted domesticity in dingy New Street. A Consolidated Exchange house in Wall Street's back yard has recently employed the office manager of a rival concern, who until a short time ago ran a Brooklyn branch which made a specialty of women's accounts.

The news ticker announced that the New Street house might hang up a motto, "Bring your families and your sewing," and told of youngsters ranging in age from six months to six years who might be seen any day playing around the stock ticker, while their mothers read the tape. It was suggested that with a few cribs the babies might be ticked to sleep as the little wheel lazily reeled off the fluctuations of the markets.

While brokers were snickering things began to happen. First the New Street house threw out the news ticker which employed the facetious reporter. Next the Consolidated Exchange officials let it be known that they were going after the nursery brokers and there was an exodus of women and children toward Brooklyn.

While it is no crime to accept women's accounts in Wall Street, there is an unwritten law on both exchanges against offering tempting facilities to bring the women into the market.

DOESN'T NEED ALIMONY.

Husband Opposes Mrs. Van Valkenburgh's Plea, Saying She's Rich.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard reserved decision yesterday on the application of Mrs. Nevada Chapman Van Valkenburgh for temporary alimony pending the trial of her suit against Philip Van Valkenburgh for divorce. Edward Lauterbach appeared as lawyer for Mrs. Van Valkenburgh.

Ex-Judge William M. K. Olcott appeared for Van Valkenburgh, and stated that since Mrs. Van Valkenburgh admitted that she had property worth at least $500,000, she had no standing in an alimony proceeding.

Judge Olcott contended that the law provided temporary alimony in matrimonial actions only to keep the wife from want until the case is decided, but did not contemplate payments when the wife was able to support herself.

Mr. Lauterbach took a contrary view of the law.

POLICE GRAFT IS CHARGED.

Saloonkeepers Said to Have Been Victims of Lieut. O'Connor.

Police Commissioner Waldo announced yesterday that he had suspended from the department Lieut. Joseph O'Connor, Acting Captain of the Bedford Avenue Station in Brooklyn, pending charges against that officer. O'Connor is alleged to have attempted to get graft from saloon keepers in his precinct, and in a letter to District Attorney Cropsey of Brooklyn Commissioner Waldo advises that the matter be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury.

PEACE SOCIETY DINES; PLANS NEW METHODS

EDUCATION, NOT TREATIES

Dr. Richard of Columbia Attacks Taft's Foreign Policy as Hostile to Germany.

Peace, at the annual meeting of the New York Peace Society at the Hotel Astor last night, looked over the battlefields of the world in the eventful and gunpowdery year just past, to get her bearings and find out just where she landed. She had landed hard, the peace advocates admitted; but they blamed it on an uneducated public sentiment; said they would educate it more diligently than ever in the coming year, and hoped for better results.

Dr. Henry M. McCracken, Chancellor Emeritus of the New York University, and one of the Vice Presidents of the New York Peace Society, presided in the absence of Andrew Carnegie. With him on the platform sat Dean George W. Kirchwey of the Columbia Law School, Major Louis Seaman, M. D., Hamilton Holt, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Harry J. Crowe of Bottswood, N. F.; John A. Stewart, Stanley Van Epps, Prof. Samuel T. Dutton, and William H. Short, Executive, Secretary of the society.

Prof. Dutton struck the keynote in his report almost at the start.

"If the last year has taught us nothing else," he said, "it has taught us that the education of the world, its standards of justice and right are by no means perfectly accomplished. I need only mention the brutal and uncivilized act of Italy in attacking Turkey while that empire was burdened with its hard task of trying to establish civilized and enlightened government in place of the old misrule of the Sultan; the greedy reaching out on the part of Russia for Persia and again for Mongolia; the civil war in China; the civil strife in Mexico; the warlike manifestations on the part of France and Italy only yesterday. All these are symptoms of a disease deeply rooted among the nations.

"There is little use in organizing courts of arbitration and signing treaties if the courts are only to be disregarded and the treaties broken at will or whim. The public sentiment of the world must first be educated.

"So, like farmers whose crops have miserably failed, we must begin all over again, plow deeper, sow better, and hope for more favorable sun and rain to give us a better harvest."

Mr. Dutton added that the recent mass-meeting of 100,000 workmen in Berlin protesting against war should give the peace workers their clue; that the workmen of the world should be organized everywhere under the banner of peace as they primarily are the sufferers from war. He expressed the hope, too, of having a great international peace building erected soon in this city through the help of Mr. Carnegie as a headquarters for the men of all nations in this city working in the common cause of world peace.

Prof. Kirchwey, as Chairman of the society's Committee on the Union of Peace Societies in America, reported a plan whereby such union might be effected.

"Some of the prejudices of the man in the street, the average man, against the peace movement, have not been wholly undeserved," he said. "The peace movement has seemed at times to stand aloof and apart from actual life and the actual conditions of the day. There is no stronger proof that it is getting in line with the times, however, than that the goddess of peace is now trustifying herself and defying the powers of the Sherman act in establishing a monopoly in restraint of war."

He traced the steps by which it is planned to unify all peace societies throughout the United States into a single organization, the American Peace Society, with headquarters at Washington, whose directors shall be elected by representatives of the local peace societies chosen according to districts, the central body thus being wholly representative and wholly National.

Prof. Kirchwey mentioned, in passing, that some had urged the use of the Carnegie endowment as the greatest factor in bringing about such unification.

"To me and to many others," he said, "that seemed unfortunate. It seems best to me that the peace movement should retain its own independence and individuality and not be controlled or seem to be controlled by money bags, however consecrated."

The indorsement of the plan for the unification of the peace societies in the American Peace Society was held over for a subsequent meeting of the society. Instead the society listened to brief peace speeches by Dr. Lyman Abbott, John A. Stewart, Hamilton Holt, and Harry J. Crowe.

HEIN WINS IN COURT.

Jury Awards Him $14,076 Verdict Against Astor-Depew Syndicate.

A Supreme Court jury returned a verdict of $14,076 yesterday to Justice Gavegan against the Honduras Syndicate, in favor of Isa Willard Hein, formerly its Secretary and Treasurer, for his services. Hein sued for $35,000. He was formerly the son-in-law of Washington G. Valentine, who, with John Jacob Astor, Chauncey M. Depew, and others, launched the syndicate to get concessions in Honduras. Hein's wife, Edna Valentine Hein, divorced him, and Hein sued Valentine for alienating her affections. He also brought other suits against Valentine. Yesterday's was the first verdict he has obtained.

Hein told the jury yesterday that he was sent to Honduras to get back part of $50,000, which he said the syndicate had subscribed to foment a revolution against the Government because it had revoked a railroad concession. The revolution was not started. Hein found out that the General who was hired to start it had gone to New York to spend the money. He telegraphed this information back to this country, with the result, he said, that some of the money was returned.

Widow of Lieut. Pierce Hurt by Fall.

Mrs. Mabel R. Pierce, widow of Lieut. Edward T. Pierce, U. S. A., fell from the window of her fourth-story apartment at Richmond Terrace and York Street, New Brighton, S. I., early yesterday morning and broke her left leg. She also sustained internal injuries. She is now in the S. R. Smith Infirmary, New Brighton. Her father, Stuart Taylor of New York, and two sisters, who were informed of her mishap, went to Staten Island yesterday afternoon to see her.

Rockefeller Chestnut Crop Fails.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 25.—John D. Rockefeller's chestnut crop has been a failure. For three years he has tried to produce results, but it was no use. The trees had been attacked by some disease, and the yield grew less and less. When the disease spread to other trees recently he signed a contract with a wood firm to cut down all the chestnut trees.

DR. HUNTER ADVISES WOMEN GRADUATES

"Be Splendid Animals," He Tells Them; "Sleep 7 or 8 Hours and Don't Overwork."

AND DON'T FONDLE FADS

Seven Honor Students and 72 Received Bachelor of Arts Degrees in Normal College.

"Be splendid animals," said Dr. Thomas Hunter, President emeritus of the Normal College, in his address to the graduates of the school at its annual commencement exercises in the college yesterday morning. "Take seven or eight hours sleep," he continued, "don't overwork, divide your time so you can do the greatest amount of work in the shortest time. Thus and thus only can you make the most of yourselves." He told a story of Beecher which gave him his text.

"In the middle of the last century," said he, "many people believed in phrenology, and Henry Ward Beecher, the man who had done such good service in England in keeping the Tories from giving their sympathy to the South in the civil war, went to a phrenologist to have his 'bumps' examined. Fowler, the man to whom he went, taking in the fine proportions of the man, and not knowing him, said: 'Sir, you are a splendid animal.'

"'Yes,' returned Beecher, 'and it is because I am a splendid animal that I have achieved some success in life.'"

President George Samler Davis introduced Dr. Hunter, who said in a short address:

"I am glad to be with you," said President Hunter. "I love the college and every graduate of the college. The college seems to be a part of me. The last few years I have been remiss in visiting you, partly on account of ill health, for my physician has said that I must not have any great excitement, and partly because I wanted President Davis to have a free hand without meddlesome interference."

"The best foundation for a good teacher is a good education, and President Davis has carried out that idea. I grant that there may be teachers who are not good scholars, but the greater number are." He spoke of the necessity of an education and particularly the study of languages, and after that the higher mathematics for mental training. Continuing he said:

"I suppose it is my duty to give you a little advice and my age permits it. First, take good care of your bodies; second, continue your studies after you leave college, or you will stagnate; third, aim high and woe to the man or woman who does not; to be nobly ambitious is one of the highest qualities; be loyal to yourselves; don't criticise your principal; don't criticise the Board of Education; [laughter;] don't criticise your associates unfairly; don't be disloyal to God, your family, or the country. I believe in fads," said the venerable President emeritus, "but don't fondle fads."

The salutatory was by Miss Bertha Guttenberg, whom Dr. Hunter thanked personally, and the valedictory by Miss Minnie Perlman.

The degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred upon these young women:

Ray Altman, Sara Frances Altstadt, Meta Johanna Aronson, Isabella Margherita Ayers, Marie Aylmer Barnewall, Edith Becker, Rose Matilda Bergel, Lillian Boeddinghaus, Maud Veronica Briggs, Hilda Cohen, Alice Josephine Condon, Anna Cuchal, Wilhelmine Curry, Grayce Elvira Consuelo Davidson, Anna Germaine De Maria, Ray Dreeben, Ophelia Duhme, Bertha Eletz, Lillian Beatrice Falk, Mary Margaret Flynn, Anna Friedelson, Anna Frieder, Stella Hannah Friedman, Ida Chapin Goldberg, Gertrude Gottschall, Bertha Guttenberg, Louise Wilhelmine Halbert, Virginia Raynor Hampton, Madeline Heflich, Philippine Heusel, Aleita Hopping, Gwladys Helen Jones, Jane Kalisky, Anna Katz, Bertha Katz, Elizabeth J. SAYS IRON AND STEEL DON'T NEED TARIFF

Industry Now Strong Enough, Declares Democrats' Report for Revision Bill.

HOUSE DEBATE OPENS TO-DAY

Underwood Denies That the Steel Interests Pay High Wages—Get Free Trade in Alien Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—"A survey of the iron and steel industry shows convincingly that it has reached a position of such strength and independence that the industry does not need the helping hand of the Government in order to stand alone in competition with foreign countries," says the majority report of the Democrats of the Ways and Means Committee on the iron and steel tariff revision bill filed with the House to-day. The bill was reported by a strict party vote.

Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York, ranking Republican member of the committee, moved that the committee postpone the vote until the Tariff Board reports on the difference in the cost of steel production in this country and abroad. The motion was defeated and the bill favorably reported to the House, where it will come up for general debate to-morrow, with Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania opening for the Democrats.

A brief minority report filed by Mr. Payne opposes touching the steel schedule until after the Tariff Board reports.

The main objections of the Republicans to the bill are:

"It is framed without hearings, without new evidence, and has no substantial basis of ascertained facts to stand upon.

"It is in no way justified by the very full hearings taken three years ago.

"In response to wide popular demand, Congress, by the vote of both parties, authorized the Tariff Board. This board is fully equipped and ready to undertake the task of gathering information upon Schedule C.

"The committee has adopted the ad valorem system of duties on every item of Schedule C. This system has been condemned by every United States Secretary of the Treasury except Walker, and has been universally discredited by the great commercial nations. For detail as to the objections of this system we refer to the unanswerable argument of the Tariff Board in the woolen schedule.

"In the magnitude of eighty-three distinct industries which produce articles such as are embraced in this schedule, it overshadows all other schedules of the tariff law. There are 21,650 establishments covered in this schedule, with a total capital of $3,157,109,633, employing 1,171,824 wage earners, receiving $652,109,633 in wages. The census of 1910, not completely tabulated, will show an increase of probably more than 25 per cent."

The Democratic report, submitted by Chairman Underwood, declares it unnecessary to make more than a very general review of present conditions, as the industries involved have been studied and analyzed within the past two years by several departments of the Government with great care and expense.

"American iron and steel makers," says Mr. Underwood, "have access to what is probably the best supply of raw material in the world, a condition fully admitted by the steel interests.

"This view is amply confirmed by the report of the Bureau of Corporations, which has made an elaborate investigation of ore resources of the country, particularly those owned by the Steel Corporation. The Bureau of Corporations clearly shows that the iron ore resources of the country have been acquired at prices which represent an exceedingly moderate investment on the part of concerns which now operate and own them. They are able, therefore, to compete on most favorable terms with foreigners in so far at least as concerns raw material. This is also true of coal and other elements employed in the manufacture of pig iron. Both in natural abundance of ore and coal and cheapness of mining, and in geographical location of these factors with reference to one another, it is doubtful whether any country can compare with the United States, certainly no other is in a position to manufacture so large a tonnage under so favorable conditions of access to raw material and abundance of supply."

Apropos of the contention that American industries are handicapped by abnormally high wages, Mr. Underwood asserts that recent investigations show neither of these conditions held good now, that American steel plants work their employes "excessively long hours, but the general rates of wages paid are extremely low." The Bureau of Labor is quoted and tables inserted in support of this claim.

"It is an unavoidable conclusion from these figures," says Mr. Underwood, "that the steel industry at the present time is not paying its employes excessively high rates of wages per man or hour, and that with the large immigration, constituting free trade in labor, which now exists, the employes of the industry are not benefited by the iron and steel tariff. Their cost of living is made high by other schedules of the tariff, and they receive no compensating benefit in wages to offset this increased cost."

Mr. Underwood declares that we are able to compete successfully in foreign markets, that export figures show this, and that these exports in 1911 amounted to $230,725,000. He also asserts that "money costs of production for iron and steel in the United States are probably as low as anywhere in the world."

WEREN'T USED TO COGNAC.

So Detectives' Testimony Against a Restaurant Man Fails.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard granted a certificate of reasonable doubt yesterday to Ralph Lenta, owner of a Bayard Street restaurant, who was convicted of selling liquor without a license. Detectives testified that at their request he put cognac in their coffee. On cross-examination they admitted they had never tasted the combination before.

Justice Gerard granted the certificate, taking as a precedent a decision by Justice Gaynor that a witness might not testify to the ingredients of a mixture which he had not been accustomed to taste.

STOVER NO POLECAT HUNTER

So He Turned the Job of Capturing This One Over to the Park Police.

A big black-furred, white splashed polecat and a handsome red fox are the latest additions to the menagerie at Central Park. The polecat is the first the menagerie has ever owned; and, according to Park Department officials, the menagerie came very near not owning it at all.

A worried-looking man with two empty gunny sacks in his hand rushed into Park Commissioner Stover's office last Wednesday afternoon.

"There's a skunk and a fox escaped in your Park," he told Commissioner Stover excitedly. "They were sent alive to a Fifth Avenue fur concern. The fur concern didn't want to kill them, and put them into these sacks, and told me to bring them up here and present them to you.

"I carried them up here, all right, in the concern's delivery wagon as far as the Park entrance. Then I got out and started to walk with the two sacks in my hand. While I was walking through the Mall, I thought I'd light my pipe. I gave the bags to a boy to hold for a minute. While we were transferring them from hand to hand the polecat got loose, and, while trying to stop it, the boy dropped the other bag and let the fox escape, too. Here are the empty bags, anyhow."

The man then hurried away, leaving Park Commissioner Stover to cope with the polecat catching situation as best he could. Mr. Stover decided that the best place for him was right in his office attending to pressing official duties. He sent out a general alarm for both the polecat and the fox.

A few hours later Keepers Bob Hurton and Patrick Kiernan saw a strange, frightened looking animal of the feline species with black-white fur lurking under some bushes near the monkey house. They approached him with trepidation. But the animal sat quite still and allowed himself to be captured and put in a small separate pen near the arsenal without making any trouble at all. It was then discovered that before he had been sent to the fur concern the physiological machinery with which he is popularly supposed to defend himself from his enemies, had been removed.

The fox gave the keepers and Park policeman a harder chase, but he was finally cornered in a blind-alley of rock near the transverse road at Sixty-fifth Street. He too, is now on exhibition.

CHURCHES GAIN MEMBERS.

Sentiment Is Favorable, but Increase Is Small and Unsatisfactory.

Membership of all the churches of the United States increased by 594,366, last year, according to statistics prepared and made public yesterday by Dr. H. K. Carroll, formerly Director of the Religious Census.

This is less than three-fourths of one per cent. of the country's entire population and is only one and seven-tenths per cent. increase over the country's church membership for 1910.

"The increase cannot be considered at all satisfactory," said Dr. Carroll yesterday. "It shows that the greater part of this country's population are not church members. The body of ministers, one of whose principal duties is obviously to secure converts, is increasing. The number of churches is increasing also, and so, presumably, is the number of devout lay workers whose desire it is to win converts.

"The average net increase in membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church last year was less than two for each of its churches. The average increase in membership of the Northern Presbyterian Church is a little over one for each church. The average increase in membership in the Protestant Episcopal Church is a little over two for each church.

"In short, either the losses by death, removal, exclusion, &c., from this country's churches are much larger than formerly, or the ingathering through revivals, Sunday Schools, &c., is smaller. The net increase of church members in this country for the decade ended with 1910 was about 786,000 a year."

The increase in membership in the various denominations in the last eleven years is shown in the following tables

Youthful Sailor Dashes Into Flames to Save Sweetheart's Picture.

William Arthur Paulin is a ruddy-cheeked English lad, 17 years old, an apprentice on board the Prince liner Royal Prince, now at the Bush Terminal in Brooklyn, at the end of a voyage that took her to Calcutta. On Jan. 8 there was a fire on the liner, and the fire was in the room occupied by Apprentice Paulin. It was due to the Royal Prince bumping into the wave that has been causing such a racket in the Atlantic recently. The wave shook the Royal Prince from stem to stern, and in the shaking one of the oil lamps in William's room tumbled to the floor and broke.

The lamp was lighted at the time, and in a minute the room was in flames. William was not in the room, but all his letters and a photograph of Miss Gertrude Elliott were there. Miss Elliott, like William, is 17 years old. They have been sweethearts for years.

The fire was soon extinguished, and according to the sailors on the ship William darted through the smoke and fire and recovered all his letters and the photograph. He then turned in and helped put out the blaze.

ROGUES' GALLERY FOR MEN WHO DON'T PAY

It Will Be the Credit Men's Own Private Collection of Incorrigible "Beats."

HOPE TO STOP MUCH FRAUD

Newly Formed Bureau Will Aid the District Attorney in Prosecutions—Plan Announced at Dinner.

Nearly 500 members of the New York Credit Men's Association, an organization in which more than 1,200 of the largest business houses in the city are represented, attended the midwinter meeting and dinner of the association at the Hotel Astor last evening and cheered lustily when the Bureau of Investigation and Prosecution, through which it is hoped to bring to speedy justice the "fly-by-night variety of absconding creditors" and others who in their business transactions violate the criminal laws, was launched.

President Frank S. Flagg, who presided at the dinner, spoke briefly of the intentions of the association, saying that, in his opinion, the only way successfully to carry on this class of work was to put it in the hands of an organization which would proceed without fear or favor. A committee of twenty-five members of the association, he said, had been carefully chosen and all were asked to act. He then read the list, headed by George C. Haigh of the American Exchange National Bank, who will be the Chairman. Most of the men were present and none refused to serve. On the committee are men representing practically all the more important branches of business.

George W. Whiteside, counsel for the association, will act as counsel for the committee. He pointed out that in the future the bureau would prove of great value in prosecutions.

"The fund of valuable information that we will obtain as a result of our investigations," he said, "will put us in the possession of a commercial rogues' gallery that will rival that at Police Headquarters, and there will be nobody to order us to take the pictures out either.

"An organization like ours, which exists for the purpose of safeguarding business interests and surrounding business transactions with all the safeguards possible, is the one to intrust with this delicate task of criminal prosecution. It will only be where we know that a real general public service can be done that prosecutions will be started. But when we do get started there will be none so high that he may hope to escape our condemnation if the case is based on facts, and none so small that his complaint will not be heard and faithfully looked into.

Commercial Frauds to Decrease.

"Success depends on facts in the prosecution of criminal cases of commercial frauds, and if we produce the facts we will get justice. We will only ask the courts to give us the same treatment as they would give to any private institution.

"Our purpose is not to increase the jail population, but to do a great constructive work, and in the end reduce to a minimum commercial frauds. The District Attorney's office cannot investigate all the complaints and obtain the facts. The District Attorney must have the facts brought to him.

"We propose not only to institute prosecutions where necessary but to establish a complaint bureau where credit men with grievances can register them. I know few credit men who have no grievances, and we will no doubt be flooded with complaints, but if you will stand by us and give us the men we will investigate them all.

"The complainant must agree not to interfere with a case after the prosecution is begun; the case will be beyond the control of the individual member after it is placed in the hands of the prosecuting attorney. Our interest will be entirely in criminal cases; we will not interfere in any way with civil cases.

"The fund of information which we will obtain as a result of the varied work of the bureau will make it possible for us to go to the Legislature and show by facts how conditions should be remedied by law."

Not a dissenting voice was raised against the plan.

Rich Worse "Beats" Than the Poor.

At the speakers table with President Flagg were A. H. Alexander, Secretary of the Association; George H. Williams and E. D. Flannery, Vice Presidents; E. S. Boteler, Frederick W. Fulle, Mr. Whiteside, Charles F. Moore, a former Justice of the Circuit Court of Virginia; Robert E. Ireton, editor of Financial America; W. F. H. Koelsch and Hugh Gordon Miller. Among the diners were representatives of more than half the banks in the city and firms large and small in every conceivable line of business.

Judge Moore was down on the list for an address on "The Use and Abuse of Credit," but he sidestepped that topic and chose instead "Dollars and Sense."

"These two things," said he, "come pretty near determining our position in life among men. Some of us possess one and some the other, but the great majority do not possess both."

Judge Moore got a cheer when he said that the larger portion of losses sustained by business concerns are not due to poor people who don't pay the little debts, but the failure of the rich people to pay big debts.

SEEK McNAMARA'S CHECKS.

His Attorney Appeals to Court to Prevent Production of Book.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 25.—Leo M. Rappaport, attorney for the ironworkers' organization, was summoned to-day to appear in the Federal court with the personal checkbook of John J. McNamara.

Rappaport filed a petition late to-day to quash the subpoena, alleging that he has not the book in his possession and would break confidence with his client should he obtain it. Judge Anderson of the Federal court will rule on the petition to-morrow.

Federal officials believe that McNamara's personal accounts will show expenditures which would tally with the sums said to have been received on certain dates by Ortie McManigal. They feel assured that the court will order the checkbook produced for examination.

Five explosions in Kansas City, Mo., all directed against iron work contractors who employed men on an open shop basis, were investigated by the Federal Grand Jury to-day through police officials of Kansas City, who were said to have learned facts relative to the identity of the dynamiters.

The destruction of bridges at Kansas City and Steubenville is said to have been directed from Indianapolis by telegraph, the readiness of the men being announced through a code message.

ESCAPING GAS KILLS TWO.

Man and Wife While Trying to Reach Window Are Stricken Down.

In a room in which gas was flowing from a broken burner, the bodies of James Pettigrew, an expert gardner, 55 years old, and his wife, Lizzie, 50 years old, living on the second floor of a flathouse at 109 West Fifty-third Street, were found yesterday.

The theory of suicide was entertained at first, but an examination of the fixtures showed that the gas was escaping from an accidental break in a feeder to which a rubber hose was sometimes attached to supply a gas heater.

WORLD'S RECORDS AT I. A. A. C. GAMES

McDonald, Bonhag, and Jack Eller Make New Marks at Favorite Sports.

World's records were in the order of things last night at the Irish-American Athletic Club games in Madison Square Garden, Patrick J. McDonald, George V. Bonhag, and John J. Eller being the special contributors to the handbook of Father Time.

McDonald, who is the giant traffic policeman in Times Square, wiped out Ralph Rose's eighteen-pound shot record of 43 feet 9½ inches, made in 1907 at Travers Island, by doing 44 feet 1½ inches. He incidentally supplemented this fine performance in the "fifty-six for height" by throwing the missile 16 feet, thereby defeating Matt McGrath, the National champion at the game.

Bonhag showed to advantage in the 5,000-metres handicap, in which he was opposed by all of the best of the distance runners, with the exception of Willie Kramer and Louis Scott, whose record of 15:23 1-5 Bonhag wiped out when he won rather easily in 15:05 4-5.

In the 75-yard low hurdle race Jack Eller, Irish-American Athletic Club, a many time champion, beat the best previous mark of 9 1-5 seconds held by himself, by doing 9 seconds in both heat and final. His brother Bob, now at Georgetown University, ran the champion right up to the tape and was second.

Five thousand persons witnessed the sports, every point of vantage being occupied by the many followers of the game.

An event which had attractions for many was the concluding race of the night, a one-mile inter-club relay, in which seven teams competed, with the Irish-American quartette, made up of Rosenberger, Kiviat, Sheppard, and Gissing at virtual scratch, 6 yards. This race was accounted for, as far as first place was concerned, by the New York A. C. four, composed of McKinna, Frick, Richmond, and De Grouchy. After the second relay, in which Frick did some fine running, the Winged Foot four runners were always in the van, eventually winning by a half-dozen yards from the I. A. A. C. team, Gissing being beaten despite a great piece of work in the final "100."

The initial scratch event of the series was the 75-yard special, which attracted eight of the best sprinters in the Metropolitan district, the race being divided into two trial heats, with the respective placed men being Alvah T. Meyer and Jim Rosenberger of the Irish-American Athletic Club, and Charlie Clark and Hal Helland of the Xavier Athletic Association.

Meyer was the natural selection for the final, and he justified the predictions by just winning from Clark, who has a lot to learn about running between the first ten yards and to the midway point of a race of this distance, as from forty yards on he ran the most creditable race of the lot, improving his position from a yard to the bad at fifty yards to a few inches at the end, where Meyer got home first in eight seconds.

A dead heat occurred in the 75-yard handicap between T. J. Reynolds, New York Athletic Club, (10 feet,) and Dan Ferris, Loughlin Lyceum, (12 feet,) the run-off being in that order.

In the 5,000-meter race a second world's record for the session was established when George V. Bonhag of the Irish-American A. C., the "indoor King," ran the distance, 3 miles 188 yards, in 15:05 4-5, the first three miles of which were run in 14:36 3-5. Bonhag had a rather easy task set him to win, in view of the limited handicap of 150 yards to the limit man, with the result that he eventually won in comfortable fashion from George Obermeyer, National A. C., to whom he was conceding 80 yards, with Tom Collins, Irish-American A. C., 60 yards, in third place. Bonhag's margin of victory was 60 yards.

Manhattan College Prep won the schoolboy relay at four-fifths of a mile, in which all the teams started from scratch. Townsend Harris Hall furnished the placed men and Fordham Prep the third team, the winners doing 2:56 4-5.

Eddie Goodwin of the Winged Fist club spreadeagled his field in the three three-mile bicycle race, getting a lap on the field before two miles had been covered. From then on it was easy for the Irish-American lad, who is concededly the best flat floor rider in the district. Jack Townsend, a teammate, finished second.

Boston furnished the winner of the one-mile handicap run in the person of G. P. Kimball, who finished third in the New England intercollegiate mile, and who lasted just long enough to stall off the rush of Joe Bromilow of the Irish-Americans, to whom he was conceding seven yards, and whom he had passed at the half-mile mark. E. Renz of the Mohawks picked the one-mile walk right out of the fire by winning in the last five yards, thereby defeating J. McSorley, Glencoe Athletic Club, who in turn led W. W. Allen. It was agreed that the less said about the styles the better. Al Vollwecke, the scratch man, walked in faultless fashion.

Mike Ryan and M. D. Huysman, Irish-American A. C., had a somewhat easy task in the longest race on the programme, the eight-mile relay, for teams of two. During the first three miles this team had a merry time trying to dispose of Harry Smith and Frank Ruggered of the Pastimes. At about this stage the first named increased their pace and slowly opened up a gap which was never lessened.

At five miles Ryan and Huysman gained their much desired lap, and eventually won by about 200 yards in the time of 34:51 2-5, which is creditable by virtue of its having been the first race at the distance ever run by amateurs.

Roosevelt Intercedes for Athletics.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 25.—Col. Roosevelt has given his assistance in an effort to bring the teams of Harvard and Minnesota together in a track meet next Spring. Coach Richard Grant of Minnesota, a Harvard alumnus, who has been trying for some time to get the teams together, last night received a letter from Col. Roosevelt, in which the former President said he had written Dean Briggs at Harvard to do all in his power to bring about a Minnesota-Harvard meet.

SPORTSMEN WILL DINE.

Annual Dinner Will Be Held at Waldorf-Astoria Feb. 12.

The second annual Sportsmen's dinner will be held in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria, Monday evening, Feb. 12, at 7:30 o'clock. Harry W. Smith, Master of the Grafton Hounds of Massachusetts, says the inquiries for reservations indicate keen interest and assures a big attendance.

Invitations will be sent out shortly to all the leading sportsmen interested in the horse. Breeders of the giant draught horse and the miniature pony, the high-stepping hackney, the high mettled hunter, the light-harness horse, both trotter and pacer, and the thoroughbred are all included.

The first dinner, held last year, brought the gift of a stallion from August Belmont to the United States Government, which has already started deep interest in the army remount problem, and resulted in the purchase of land for breeding farms in Virginia and elsewhere by the Government.

In the past decade America has made wonderful strides in the breeding of the light-harness horse, as American successes in France, Germany, Austria, and Russia show, and within the last few months a number of farms in and about Lexington (Ky.) homes of the thoroughbred before he was banished, have been purchased for light-harness studs.

This year, for the first time, officers of the American army have been seen riding on the flat and between the flags over the jumps, at the principal hunt meetings, but that America is still behind Europe in its cavalry horses, was shown by the American officers against the foreign officers at the last New York Horse Show; and it is now believed that by the aid of August Belmont, Judge W. H. Moore, Alfred Vanderbilt, and others, and the proper education in horsemanship of the cavalry officers themselves, will ere long bring those who wear the uniform of Uncle Sam to the front.

The dinner is a gathering of breeders, owners, gentlemen riders, officers of the army, members of the leading show associations, and sportsmen. The collection of works of art, bronzes, trophies, emblems, &c., in the Myrtle Room at the dinner last year was unique, and made up an exhibition which would have been impossible to have been brought together for any other reason.

This year quarters have been engaged for two days ahead at the Waldorf-Astoria, so that sportsmen may gather a day or two before and meet without the endless rush which was so apparent at the dinner last year.

RED BANK SHOOTER FIRST.

A. L. Ivins Makes Highest Score in Trap Shooting at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 25.—Though hardly as accurate as yesterday's shooting, to-day's scores in the fifth annual mid-Winter handicap trap shooting tournament were of high class, A. L. Ivins of Red Bank, N. J., winning with a margin of a single target and a total of 194, which included an unfinished straight run of 105.

G. S. McCarty and H. W. Kahler, both of Philadelphia, tied for second at 193, McCarty finishing with sixty-seven consecutive "kills." G. J. Corbett of New York was going fast for a beginner, his best straight run being 73, but the loss of four targets on his last string pushed him down to 192, at which point he tied with W. H. Jones of Macon, who ran sixty-six. Other metropolitan shooters were lower down in the list.

One hundred and ninety-six and straight runs of 81 and 90 placed Lester German at the head of the professionals. Hawkins was second at 194, Clancy third in 191, and Skelly and Goodrich tied for fourth at 187. Storr ran 68 straight, with a total of 185.

Bryant Shooters Win Close Match.

The Bryant High School rifle team defeated the Manual Training High School eight in a close match on the Bryant range yesterday afternoon by the score of 252 to 250. There was no perfect score of thirty-five points made by either team, the highest mark being made by Iorio, who tallied thirty-four points. The scores:

Columbia Gymnastic Schedule.

The Columbia University gymnastic team will have only five dual meets this year, according to the intercollegiate schedule made public yesterday by Harry A. Fisher, graduate director of athletics. With only one meet on the home floor, that with Yale, the wearers of the light blue and white will contest with the lowest number of teams ever entered on the Columbia gymnastic schedules. The schedule: Feb. 16, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; Feb. 17, U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis; Feb. 24, Rutgers at New Brunswick; March 8, Yale at New York; March 15, New York University at New York; March 22, Intercollegiates at Haverford.

Loughlin Lyceum Athletic Meet.

The athletic games to be held in the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory to-morrow evening under the auspices of the Loughlin Lyceum has attracted the largest entry seen at an amateur meeting in Brooklyn this Winter. More than 400 track and field men will compete in the Loughlin events, and the outlook for record performances is particularly bright. An American indoor mark may go in the 5,000-meter team race, in which Billy Kramer of the Long Island A. C. will start from scratch. Kramer ran a trial in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory last Tuesday night, and finished the distance four seconds better than Louis Scott's record. The family relay, in which seven teams will start, promises to be a most novel and interesting event. The Riley brothers of Greenpoint are the favorites. Those who like to see the sprinters in action will enjoy the 100-meter scratch dash at the Loughlin meet. There will be five starters—Rosenberger, Clarke, Meyer, Helland, and Jack Eller. The Catholic A. L. events are well filled and should result in some fine sport. The relay especially will be hotly contested with Loughlin, Dominican, and the Knights of St. Antony quarters on the back marks.

Schoolboys' Games To-night.

The Public Schools Athletic League will hold its annual indoor track and field championships for both Day and Evening High Schools to-night in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. There will be two distinct championships—one closed to the Day High School boys and the other for boys going to Evening High and Trade Schools. The competition between the schools for championship honors always produces races of an exciting character, and the athletic ability of the boys is of a higher class this year than ever before.

Mott Haven A. C. Run on Sunday.

The Mott Haven A. C. will hold an invitation cross-country run on Sunday, and all athletes are invited to take part whether affiliated with an athletic club or not. The run will start promptly at 3:30 P. M. at the clubhouse, 138th Street and Third Avenue, and the course, which is about four miles long, is one of the finest in the district. The Mott Haven A. C. will hold a sanctioned run the latter part of February and several of the distance stars have already signified their intention of starting.

High Jumper Lawrence Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 25.—Samuel C. Lawrence, the premier Boston A. A. high jumper who has been clearing the bar close to record height in daily trials at the Harvard gymnasium, strained muscles in his back today while practicing in the broad jump. Lawrence's injuries will probably keep him out of competition for a month. He, however, will receive the best of care and an attempt will be made to bring him to form for the Boston A. A. games, which are to be held Feb. 10.

Ferguson Best on Roller Skates.

J. Ferguson of Brooklyn, with a handicap of 110 yards, won the two-mile amateur handicap roller skating race last night at the Metropolitan Roller Skating Rink. Ferguson finished with ten yards advantage over J. M. Clarke of this city, who started from the scratch mark. S. Kaplin of Pittsburg was third. The winner's time was 6:26 1-5.

Syracuse Football Schedule.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The football schedule of Syracuse University shows dates with Yale, Princeton, Carlisle, Michigan, and West Point. The schedule: Sept. 28, Hobart, at Syracuse; Oct. 5, Yale, at New Haven; 12, Carlisle, at Syracuse; 19, Princeton, at Princeton; 26,—Michigan at Syracuse; Nov. 2, Rochester, at Syracuse; 9, Lafayette, at Easton, Penn.; 16, Colgate, at Syracuse; 23, West Point, at West Point.

ATTELL SUSPENDED; DANNY GOODMAN, TOO

State Athletic Commission Places Boxers Under the Ban for Six Months.

Suspensions of six months, the limit allowed for the first offense of a boxer against the Frawley law, were handed out yesterday by the State Athletic Commission to Abe Attell and his chief second, Danny Goodman, at the close of the investigation into the Attell-Knockout Brown bout held at the National Sporting Club last Thursday night. Besides suspending the two men the commission announced that a thorough investigation would be made into the affairs of the National Sporting Club as a result of the testimony brought out during the Attell hearing.

The suspension not only prevents Attell and Goodman from figuring as principals or seconds in any match in the State for six months, but it decrees that they shall not be allowed to enter any boxing club under the jurisdiction of the Frawley law. The suspensions date from Jan. 18, the date of the bout. It was also announced that the two Commissioners, Frank O'Neil and Major John J. Dixon, would consider the testimony of both Attell and Goodman thoroughly with a view of bringing charges of perjury against them.

In announcing the decision Commissioner O'Neil said:

"We feel that the case has been investigated most thoroughly, and after taking almost a full day to consider the evidence we have reached the decision that Attell should be suspended for three reasons. The first is the personal observation of the bout by the two Commissioners who attended it, the second is because of a personal private investigation outside of the public hearing, and the third because Attell testified falsely. In reaching the decision we have considered Attell's reputation as affecting his credibility as a witness. Goodman's suspension is the result of his circulating a defamatory report and his false testimony."

When asked regarding the facts brought out in his private investigation Commissioner O'Neil intimated that he had obtained evidence that the bout was not strictly on the level. He would not divulge what he had discovered, but said it would all come out later. He emphasized one point in regard to the case, and that was, that "no scintilla of evidence connected either Knockout Brown or his manager, Danny Morgan, with the supposed crooked work."

Dr. Joseph Safian, the physician accused by Attell as having administered an overdose of cocaine to him last Thursday night, announced yesterday afternoon that he would undoubtedly take action against Attell as soon as the latter returns to this State, for making false charges which tend to injure his professional reputation.

Two witnesses were examined yesterday. The first was William H. Hicks, a local newspaper man, who testified that Danny Goodman, Attell's chief second, told him last Saturday that he had heard that Commissioner O'Neil had wagered $50 on the bout and was "sore" on Attell. Goodman had testified the day before that Jimmy Carroll, another of Attell's seconds, had told him the rumor after the bout. Carroll attended the hearing yesterday and emphatically denied the allegation. He also testified that Attell's showing was a surprise to him, that Abe appeared rational at all times during and after the bout, had trained hard, and that he made no mention of being doped on the night of the bout; also that he took no notice of Attell drinking an unusual quantity of water. He also said that Attell's poor showing might have been due to the awkwardness of his opponent, which might offset his cleverness.

An important ruling regarding weights was made by the commission at yesterday's meeting. It reads as follows:

"Contestants in the main bout shall weigh in at the clubhouse just before entering the ring in the presence of a representative of the commission, regardless of the private agreement regarding weight between the contestants, and the weight of each man shall be announced from the ring before the bout goes on."

In an effort to correct abuses at many of the clubs and assist newspaper men in their work, the commission will suggest that all press stands shall be placed immediately bordering the ring, and that no more than one representative of any newspaper will be permitted to occupy these seats. It will also be suggested to all clubs that the main bout be put on not later than 10 o'clock P. M.

McFarland and Erne Matched.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 25.—Announcement was made here to-day that "Packey" McFarland of Chicago and "Young" Erne of Philadelphia have been matched to fight six rounds at the National Athletic Club here on Feb. 7. The fighters will weigh in at 138 pounds at 6 o'clock on the night of the contest.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

To-night the New Polo A. A. will stage a bout that gives promise of being a thriller from beginning to end, when Louie de Ponthieu, the little Frenchman who recently gave Battling Nelson a hard argument, and Young Dyson of Providence, R. I., clash.

A good attraction has been arranged by the Olympic A. C. of Harlem for its show next Monday night. Eddie O'Keefe, the clever featherweight of Philadelphia, will oppose Jimmy Carroll from the Pacific Coast for ten rounds as the main bout.

Phil Cross, a member of the "fighting" Cross family, after a business trip through the West has returned, and will hook up in the hardest bout of his career when he tackles Cy. Smith of Hoboken at the Olympic A. C. Feb. 5. In the meantime Phil will be seen in the Saturday night show of the Olympic A. C., when he will swap punches with Johnny Moran, the fighting actor.

The star bout at the Fairmont A. C. Saturday night should furnish some real action when Kid Burns of the west side and Young Hickey come together for ten rounds. Hickey has been coming along in fine shape, and was matched to box Packey McFarland, but the event was called off.

Frankie White, the Chicago featherweight, boxes Irish Paddy to-night in the main bout at the American A. A. of Brooklyn. White was not in the best of condition when he fought Young Dyson at Brown's gymnasium on Tuesday night, and could not do himself justice, he says. There will be no excuse on this score if he loses to Paddy, as he has trained hard since then, and will be in fine shape.

The first of a series of elimination bouts to find an opponent to battle Frank Klaus for the middleweight title will be staged at the Fairmont A. C. next Tuesday night, when Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., clashes with Walter Coffey. McGoorty is touted as the most likely winner. He has beaten Jack Dillon, another aspirant, four times in succession. Coffey thinks it's all over but the shouting.

The popular-priced entertainment at the Royale A. C. Saturday night will bring together two light heavyweights. The old trial horse, Mickey McDonough, will box Soldier Kerns. The latter made one of the greatest showings seen in New York at the National Sporting Club last Thursday night, showing that his progress in ring matters has advanced wonderfully the past six months.

A boxing carnival will be staged at the Brooklyn Beach A. C. on Monday night, when a big array of boxers will appear in a long programme. Altogether there will be forty-two rounds of boxing, comprising three ten-round bouts and two sixes. In the final Young Solzberg of Brooklyn will box Charley Burns. In the semi-final, also of ten rounds, Soldier Kerns will hook up with Jim Maher, and Joe Fox and Maxey will be the contestants in the other ten-round bout. In the two six-round events Dutch Brandt and Young Jersey will be the headliners and the opening number will bring together Young Brune and Young Kelly.

The Sharkey A. C. card for to-morrow night gives promise of some lively boxing. In the main event at ten rounds Monte Dale of Denver, the boy who recently stayed fifteen rounds with Battling Nelson at Providence, R. I., will tackle Richy Ryan, the rugged boy of the west side.

Willis Britt, who has managed and developed several of the best known boxers about New York, has an opportunity to book some good bouts at Memphis, Tenn., and Cleveland, and would like to hear from some of the local boys who would care to make the trips. Britt has exhausted his "stable" and is in need of some new material. Any of the top notch bantamweights, featherweights or lightweights desiring to take advantage of the opportunity can do so by addressing Willis Britt, care of The Police Gazette. Britt must wire an answer to the club officials on or before Saturday morning.

Jack Lundy and Joe Gans, leaders of rival factions of the Gowanus section of South Brooklyn, have been matched by the Gowanus A. C. for the star bout on to-morrow night. Lundy is the idol of the Irish, while Gans is the hero of the Italian residents of the neighborhood.

BILLY DELANEY DEAD.

Famous Trainer of Prizefighters Succumbs to Long Illness.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 25.—Billy Delaney, the famous trainer of prizefighters, died here early to-day, aged 58 years. Delaney had been ill for several months, and his death was not unexpected. While on a visit to the East last year he contracted a severe cold, complications of which caused his death.

Billy Delaney held a prominent position in pugilistic circles for two decades. He was recognized as the best trainer and greatest judge of fighters in America. During his professional career he handled at different times Jack Johnson, James J. Jeffries, James J. Corbett, Joe Choynski, Al Kaufman, Jimmy Britt, and lesser lights of the prize ring.

Delaney discovered Jim Corbett, then a bank runner in San Francisco. He piloted "Gentleman Jim" to the heavyweight championship when the latter defeated John L. Sullivan at New Orleans Sept. 17, 1892. When Corbett began to show signs of a reversal of form Delaney took up Jim Jeffries and forged a champion out of the rawest material that ever entered a prize ring. He trained Jeffries when the latter knocked out Fitzsimmons at Coney Island, and conditioned him in his two victorious battles with Jim Corbett.

After leaving Jeffries, Delaney declared the boilermaker lacked heart. He said that he prevented Jeffries from quitting in several fights. He, however, remained on good terms with Jeffries until the former champion repudiated a match Delaney made with Bill Squires in Australia. Delaney said Jeffries had authorized him to make the match.

Under the management of Delaney Al Kaufman made rapid strides, but the noted trainer accepted the offer to train Jack Johnson in the latter's fight with Jeffries on July 4, 1910. The sight of Delaney in the negro's corner is believed to have taken the heart completely out of Jeffries when he entered the ring at Reno. When asked why he deserted Jeffries, he said:

"I quit Jeffries for welching on a gambling debt and running out of the Squires match. I could not conscientiously have any further dealings with Jeffries."

Delaney's failure to make a champion of Al Kaufman soured him on the game. He practically retired last Summer when he was in New York for the last time. He then said he was going to take it easy for the rest of his life. He was born in New York.

Delaney had a comfortable home at Oakland, Cal., and was a man of means and standing in the community. He leaves a widow and two sisters. The latter live in New York State.

Delaney was inseparably associated with the history of amateur and professional boxing in the West. He was a pioneer in vigorous training methods, enforcing rigid discipline and much outdoor work, to which he ascribed his success. Delaney was a boxer of note, as well as trainer, and a few years ago acted as sparring partner to his men. While he was thoroughly familiar with every aspect of the sport, defending it staunchly and advancing its interests in every possible way, Delaney was not heavily interested financially, and rarely made large bets.

BARNES BADLY BEATEN.

California Fighter a Chopping Block for Marty Allen of Brooklyn.

Kid Barnes a featherweight from California proved nothing more than a chopping block for Marty Allen of Brooklyn in their ten-round bout last night at the Fordon A. C., and it was only his ability to assimilate punishment that enabled him to last the ten rounds.

After the opening session which was very tame the Brooklynite jabbed, hooked and did most everything else in the fighting game to the Westerner and earned the honors throughout. Barnes rarely landed a damaging blow and took one of the hardest beatings ever meted out at the east side club.

Allen outgeneraled his man at every angle and always waited for him to lead, then beat him to the punch and invariably measured his blows. In the first three rounds Barnes tried to spar with his opponent, but seeing that he could not make any headway, decided to mix matters, but this style also proved fruitless.

Allen had the advantage of reach over Barnes, and after the latter led and missed Allen jabbed his left to the face and followed it by crossing his right to the ribs.

Allen took a big lead in the fifth session by leading with a left jab, and then following it in quick style, hooking and swinging both hands to the body. His steady pummeling of Barnes's nose brought the blood and had it almost flattened. It continued to bleed until the end, and both boys became smothered about the body, and were in a bloody condition at the close of each round.

In the last four rounds the Westerner did not have a chance, as Allen, seeing the damage he was accomplishing with his jabs, kept up the work in every round. When Barnes tried to mix matters by rushing Allen always met him with a jab that sent his head back, and followed it with rights to the body.

RED ROVER WINS TWO CUPS.

Ex-Commodore Gibbons's Ice Yacht Equals Long Branch Course Record.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 25.—Ex-Commodore J. C. Gibbons's Red Rover won the Wiener Cup, sailed for to-day by ice yachts of the Long Branch Club, from a field of six starters, covering the fifteen-mile course in 26:04, equaling the record made yesterday by the Clarel. Capt. James O'Brien's Jack Frost was second, twenty-seven seconds behind the winner, with the Drub third, close up.

The Red Rover's second victory was in the race for the Irving Cup for boats of the South Shrewsbury Club. The Red Rover covered the fifteen-mile course in 26:52, one minute and five seconds ahead of the Say When. The Hazel L. did not finish.

The Board of Trade Trophy will be the attraction to-morrow. A dozen yachts have entered, as follows: Long Branch Club—Drub, Blanche, Isabel, Eagle, Clarel, and Jack Frost; South Shrewsbury—Red Rover, Ingénue, Mattie, Hazel L., Princeton, and Mildren. The race is at fifteen miles. Both clubs have a leg on the rich trophy.

Five Races on North Shrewsbury.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, Jan. 25.—Ice yachting enthusiasts were in evidence on the North Shrewsbury River at Red Bank and Fair Haven today. At Red Bank there were two races held, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. A strong northwest wind was blowing for the morning race. Only two boats were entered, the Daisy, owned and sailed by Edward Asay, and Capt. James Weaver's Kittie. The Daisy won in the fast time of 21 minutes and five seconds over a ten mile triangular course. The Kittie's time was 28 minutes and thirty seconds. The Daisy held the race from the start.

Six boats were entered in the afternoon race, which started from a stake opposite the steamboat dock at 2:59, and sailed over a fifteen mile triangular course. It was captured by the Daisy in 21:34, the Tyro came in second in 22:55, the Vixen, third in 23:14; the Kittie, fourth in 28:12, and the Edna M finished last in 30:07.

Three races were sailed by the Fair Haven Ice Yacht Club this afternoon. The first started at 2:36 and was captured by the Russell B in the fast time of 19:35, over an eight-mile triangular course. The Jennie came in second, in 20:05; the Persers, third in 20:03; the Bessie B, fourth in 20:13, and the Ray S last in 20:45.

The second race took place over an eight-mile course, just outside of the stake of the first race, and was also captured by the Russell B in 18:25. The third race took place between the Spurt, owned and sailed by Henry Schneider and the Red Robin, owned and sailed by George Gullick. The Spurt won over a four-mile course in 6 minutes and 25 seconds. Red Robin finished in 7 minutes and 30 seconds.

Zbyszko and Raicevich Matched.

'JINXES' HAVE NO PLACE WITH YANKEES

Manager Wolverton Will Drive Superstitious Ideas Out of His Ball Team.

Manager Harry Wolverton of the Yankees says that the day of the superstitious ballplayer is over. He doesn't believe in jinxes, good or bad omens, rabbits' feet, swastika signs, or all that ancient baseball lore. He will not insist on all the bats being placed a certain way in front of the bench, nor will he make a wish for victory every time he sees a load of hay pass by.

"Jinxes, breaks of the game, and other baseball superstitions never appealed to me," said Mr. Wolverton yesterday. "If an opposing pitcher is a jinx to my club I am never satisfied until I get his measure. And I will keep at my players until we do get him. We won't sit idly by and say, 'Well he's our jinx and we're beaten before we start.'

"If there is one thing," continued the new Yankee leader, "that I hate to hear mentioned in baseball it is that a pitcher has a team beaten before he steps into the box. Take it from me, no pitcher will have the Yankees whipped next season before he pitches his first ball. I'd like to hear one of my players tell me the team is beaten before the game starts. I'll bet he wouldn't tell me the second time. That's how a pitcher gets it into his head that he has a team's goat. If a team believes it is beaten before the game starts, naturally, it will be defeated. What more could it expect? But let the same team go in with the intention of winning, then sooner or later it will hang it on any so-called jinx."

Having disposed of this bit of philosophy, it can easily be seen that none of the Yankees will say next season that Joe Wood, the Red Sox pitcher, or any other slabman has his goat.

The manager then proceeded to say that George Shear, the Blue Grass giant from Paris, Ky., has sent in his contract. Shear won the pennant last Fall for Paris. He won twenty games and lost ten. He is only 21 years old, is 6 feet 3 inches tall, and is a southpaw. Osborn, the outfielder who was with Rochester last Fall, also sent in his signed contract. He hit for .290, and is said to be a fast outfielder and a good base-runner.

The Yankees added another date to their Spring schedule yesterday. They will play the University of Georgia team at Athens on March 23. The Yankees will open the season on the hilltop on April 11, and it is thought that Washington will be the visiting club. As the schedule has not been announced this is not certain, however. The Giants will probably open in Philadelphia against the Fogel clan.

First Baseman Jake Daubert of Brooklyn will succeed John Hummel as Field Captain of the Superbas next season. This move was made because it is thought that Hummel will play in the outfield next season instead of at second base. Hummel, by the way, has a new bat, which he expects to take South on the training trip. It was invented by a Holyoke man, and the handle is larger than the ordinary bat. It is perforated, and no matter how hard the ball is hit the shock will not sting the batsman's hands.

Hugh Jennings will appear in a new rôle in Scranton next week. Hughey is to be the interlocutor at an amateur minstrel show and he is already rehearsing "Well, Mr. Bones, why does a chicken," &c.?

Now that President John M. Ward of the Boston Club has decided that his team will not be in last place next season, who will get the cellar position? "If we can get out of last place," says Mr. Ward, "I will be satisfied for next season." With its new baseball park Brooklyn cannot be expected to drop to the basement. It won't be St. Louis, for the Cardinals are going to work hard for Roger Bresnahan and Mrs. Britton next season. The only woman club owner in the world says she won't stand for a losing team. So it looks like Cincinnati, even though the jar will be severe to old Hank O'Day.

Bill Carrigan, the Red Sox backstop, who runs a grocery store in Maine in the Winter, yesterday became a real estate owner, purchasing a block in Lewiston worth $25,000.

Benefit for Joe McGinn.

Many of the best boxers in training will be seen at the Fairmont Athletic Club next Wednesday night at a boxing show which will be given for the benefit of Joe McGinn, a veteran sporting writer, who is critically ill in a Brooklyn hospital from a complication of diseases. Billy Gibson has donated the use of the Fairmont Club for the occasion, and in addition will act as treasurer. Associated with him in making the benefit a success are Danny Morgan, Joe Humphreys, Dan McKetrick, and others.

Knockout Brown and Danny Morgan, his manager, have started the subscription list with $50, and Brown will box three of the best boys of his class in short bouts. Among other volunteers, each of whom will box men in their classes, are Carl Morris, the Oklahoma giant; Al Palzer, Mike Gibbons, Jack Denning, Willie Lewis, Tom Kennedy, and Joe Jeannette. Several other top-notchers will be added to this list to-day.

Six Tigers for Providence Club.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 25.—Seven members of the Detroit American League Baseball team were released to-day, according to announcement of President Navin. Six go to the Providence Club of the International League, recently purchased by Mr. Navin. Outfielder Drake, Infielder Lathers, and Pitcher Lively go to Providence in a trade for Outfielder Perry. The same club secured by outright release Catcher Schmidt, Pitcher Renfer, and Catcher Reynolds. Ralph Stroud has been released to Buffalo. Schmidt's release marks the passing of an American League veteran. A lame arm made him practically valueless to the Detroit Club as a catcher last season, but he performed well as a timely pinch hitter.

Reulbach Signs with Cubs.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Pitcher Ed Ruelbach, on whom President Murphy of the Chicago National League club received waivers and who Murphy threatened to sell to a minor league club, signed a year's contract with Murphy to-day at Ruelbach's terms. Pitcher Seril Slapnicka, a recruit, was to-day disposed of to the Louisville Club of the American Association by President Murphy, who also announced that he had received a signed contract from Outfielder Ward Miller, formerly of the Montreal and Cincinnati teams.

New Scout for Brooklyn Club.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 25.—A dispatch from La Fayette, Ind., says that Hugh Nicol, athletic and physical director of Purdue University, has signed as chief scout for the Brooklyn Club of the National League. Nicol, who is a veteran developer of ball players, was last year a scout for the Cincinnati Club.

Hunt and Beck Sign with Phillies.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—The Philadelphia National League Baseball Club announced to-day that "Ben" Hunt, a pitcher of the Sacramento (Cal.) Club, had signed a contract to play here the coming season. Fred Beck, last year's substitute outfielder, has also signed for the year.

Hockey on Lenox Open Air Rink.

Local followers of hockey who have seen only the indoor sport will be afforded a chance to witness the game played in the open to-morrow at the new Lenox Open-Air Skating Rink, Lenox Avenue and 145th Street. A game has been arranged by the management between the New York A. C. team of the Amateur Hockey League and the Orientals. The Winged Foot puck chasers are playing a fast game, and the same is to be said of the Orientals, which gives promise of some very fast work. Although all the games of the former seven have been played indoors, it remains to be seen just how they will size up on the open rink. The ice will be put in fine shape.

Hackley School a Hockey Victor.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Hackley School of Tarrytown defeated New Rochelle High School at hockey by the score of 7 to 0 today. About 500 persons witnessed the game.

Basket Ball News in Brief.

This afternoon, at 3:30 P. M., the basket ball team of Pratt Institute will line up against the fast quintet of Swarthmore College of Pennsylvania in their annual game on the former's court.

The Third Form of the Columbia Grammar School defeated the Second Form in a one-sided game yesterday afternoon on the Columbia Grammar School court by the score of 32 to 4.

St. Lawrence Quint Wins.

CANTON, N. Y., Jan. 25.—One of the fastest basket ball games ever witnessed on the home court was witnessed to-night, when the St. Lawrence University team defeated the Massachusetts Technology quintet by the score of 25 to 12. Calder and Canfield starred for St. Lawrence. The score at the end of the first half was 11 and 4, in favor of St. Lawrence.

TO AMEND RACING LAW.

Turfmen Will Strive to Have Directors' Liability Clause Wiped Out.

Two bills are being prepared for presentation at the present session of the Legislature looking to a clearing of the racing situation and a resumption of the sport in the State of New York. The measures briefly will be to define bookmaking without writing and to relieve the Directors of a personal liability of the anti-betting laws on their premises when such violation is without their knowledge or consent.

"The recent decision of the Court of Appeals in the Lambrix case," said a turfman who has closely followed all the racing legislation, "means that patrons of the race courses may attend the races without any fear of molestation or arrest and is a big victory for the sport, but it still leaves no definition of bookmaking without writing. The Legislature should make this point clear. From the first the Jockey Club and the track managers have always wanted to be strictly within the law, but the law is too ambiguous, and until it is defined properly there is sure to be confusion.

"The decision in the Lambrix case has its principal value in that it safeguards the casual visitor to the races. It does more than that, for it makes legal the personal wagers on baseball, elections, or any of the other various questions of chance that the law, under a previous interpretation made illegal."

All through the season of 1911 the Jockey Club tracks in New York were closed by reason of the provisions of the liability law that made the owners and Directors of the race courses personally liable whether or not they were aware of the violations of the law. This is the measure that has been a real anti-racing bill, and the most important move for for a restoration of the sport that is now under way is its amendment.

Turfmen in the councils of the Jockey Club are striving for the law's amendment, and a bill will shortly be introduced. It will be framed with a view of satisfying the demands of the enemies of the sport, but will strike out that part which holds the Directors and owners liable for violations of the law of which they have no knowledge and which they have tried to prohibit.

It was also announced that an effort would be made to bring the various race courses under the jurisdiction of State police as a further guarantee that the laws would be enforced.

One track owner said yesterday that unless the Directors' liability law was amended, as is suggested by the proposed amendment, or in some other like fashion, there could be no racing in New York this year. "The conditions are just the same as they were in September of 1910, as far as the tracks are concerned," he said. "The decision in the Lambrix case is a very satisfying one, but it has nothing to do with the liability law, and as long as it exists no track will be opened."

TRUCK RELIABILITY RUN.

Chicago Club Proposes to Promote Event from Chicago to New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 25.—Chairman Charles P. Root of the Contest Committee of the Chicago Motor Club has appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of a club reliability run for commercial cars from Chicago to New York.

It is the plan of the Contest Committee to allow the trucks to stop in towns along the route for display purposes, showing the manufacturers the truck in country road hauls. It will be an opportunity to demonstrate the efficiency of the motor truck on the country roads, over the hills, in the traffic of the various cities in which they go through, and will be a positive evidence of motor trucks' design relative to its ease of operation.

CLASS C BILLIARDS REACH THE FINALS

M. J. Doyle Qualifies for National Amateur Honors by Defeating Dr. Hawley.

The preliminary round of the Class C National amateur championship 18.2 balk line billiard tournament was completed at the Morningside Billiard Academy last night, when M. J. Doyle defeated Dr. W. H. Hawley by a score of 200 to 142, the match extending over sixty-three innings. The victory made Doyle eligible for the final round, the other contestants qualifying for the title being Sylvester L. Levy, C. B. Terry, and George Spear. Nine other players were eliminated in the games which have been played during the past two weeks. This is the first time a National championship has been held for amateur Class C billiardists.

Not only did Doyle play better billiards last night, but he also put his opponent at a disadvantage many times by leaving the spheres safe, so that Hawley could not draw them together. Doyle followed an open-table style of play throughout, while Hawley was most effective at close play, which he could not follow at all times because of the manner in which Doyle left the balls scattered.

Near the end of the match, in the sixty-second inning, Hawley collected the balls just as he wanted them, and picked off 15 points with an ease and skill which gave promise of a long run. A miscue on easy shot when he had the balls nicely grouped spoiled Hawley's chances and cut short his rally, for Doyle was spurred on by this effort, and reach the 200 mark with a run of 15 on his next trip to the table.

Some of Doyle's safety plays left the balls in such positions many times that it was impossible for Hawley to draw them together, and during the match he missed his openning shot in each of 31 innings. Hawley played his best game by collecting the balls in close play, but Doyle's open style thwarted his plans to carry out this method.

Hawley got only 3 points in the first five innings, while runs by Doyle of 10 and 14 in the second and third innings brought his total to 25 in five innings. In the ninth inning Doyle left the balls scattered all over the table, and Hawley started a series of misses, which lasted eight successive innings without netting him a single point.

Doyle passed the century mark in the thirty-fourth inning, while Hawley was plodding along at that time with only 64 tallies to his credit. Toward the end of the match Hawley began to pick up in his play, but Doyle's lead was too great, and he was unable to overtake him. It was a bit of hard luck for Hawley, when he was playing in his very best form in the sixty-second inning, to have his run brought to a sudden close at 15 by a miscue.

The first game of the finals will be played to-night between George Spears and Sylvester Levy.

The score of last night's match was as follows:

M. J. Doyle—1 10 14 0 1 4 0 9 0 8 0 6 0 0 8 18 1 4 1 0 0 5 0 2 1 0 0 4 7 1 1 1 1 0 5 4 6 13 10 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 11 1 5 0 0 12 5 8 0 3 0 0 0 8 2 15—200.

Dr. W. H. Hawley—0 2 1 0 0 8 6 1 1 6 8 8 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 7 6 0 8 0 7 7 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 6 0 4 0 0 1 6 0 0 1 12 5 0 5 4 1 12 1 0 2 7 15 0—142.

Averages—Doyle, 3 11-63; Hawley, 2 22-63.

High runs—Doyle, 15, 14, 12; Hawley, 15, 12, 12.

BAXTER WINS WITH CUE.

Low Handicap Men Compete in Knickerbocker 18.2 Billiards.

Low handicapped billiardists, C. G. Baxter, (180,) and C. Lewis, (160,) competed in last night's game of the Knickerbocker handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at Keeney's rooms, Brooklyn, the former being victorious by the score of 180 to 116, in forty-one innings.

The victor showed poor form at the start, being unable to score in his first six innings, but after recovering his stroke he came into good command, and with some capital playing experienced little difficulty in running out his allotted score. After beginning with a tally of 2 in the seventh inning, Baxter began to pile up a good score, and passed the century mark in the seventeenth, with his string showing 102. During the eleven innings that followed after his deuce score he had double-figure high runs in five of them, which materially helped his score to the three figures.

Lewis played a fair game with the luck all against him, and all his scores were well earned. He played consistently throughout, executing some fine plays, with four two-figure tallies scattered on his string. In the eleventh inning Baxter had a long session at the table, when he ran out his second best high run of 21.

After being left safe he showed good billiards by careful nursing of the ivories along the rail, and fell down only on a difficult "around the table" shot.

He again came into his own in the sixteenth and seventeenth innings with some skillful playing by tallying 21 and 16 in his two trips to the table.

Baxter made his high run in the thirty-sixth inning, when he scored 26 in straight nursing which ended his good playing.

To-night W. D. Brown will oppose C. G. Baxter, and in the final game on Saturday night Brown and C. Scheidig will close the tournament. The score:

Baxter—0 0 0 0 0 0 2 9 16 6 21 1 0 12 0 21 14 9 4 1 0 5 1 9 0 1 0 4 0 0 1 1 0 1 28 0 0 4 5 1 1 3. Total—180. Average, 4 16-41.

Lewis—0 3 0 3 3 0 10 1 1 6 2 5 0 1 0 0 0 16 3 4 1 9 1 13 3 8 1 0 0 0 10 0 2 1 1 3 0 0 4 1 0. Total—116. Average, 2 31-41.

Sutton to Practice for Hoppe Match.

George Sutton who is to play Willie Hoppe for the billiard championship, will arrive in New York Sunday evening, and commence practicing on Monday. He is in good condition physically and playing splendid billiards, making average of 42—56 and as high as 83, besides making two runs of over 400. In his practice games here he will be in charge of Maurice Daly, who will also play with him.

Dr. Howe Pool Victor.

In last night's game of the amateur pool tournament at Doyle's Academy Dr. William Howe defeated William Dowling by the score of 75 to 71. This evening C. Emerson will oppose Charles McCafferty.

MOTOR YACHT FOR PYNCHON.

Will Be Used as an Auxiliary to Racing Sloop Istalena.

A twin-screw motor yacht is being built for Commodore George M. Pynchon of the Larchmont Yacht Club at the works of the Gas Engine and Power Company and Charles L. Seabury & Co., Consolidated, from the designs of Charles L. Seabury. It is 70 feet 3 inches over all, 65 feet long at water line, 11 feet 6 inches beam, 3 feet 6 inches draft, and speed of 14½ miles per hour guaranteed.

This will be a particularly seaworthy type of boat, and will be used principally in connection with Commodore Pynchon's racing sloop Istalena. The machinery consists of two six-cylinder, 6 inches by 6 inches, Speedway gasoline marine engines, twin screws. The crew's quarters, located forward, are very commodious. The engine room is located under the after end of the raised deck forward, and has a large skylight over it. The question of ventilation has been carefully worked out. The midship deck is 14 feet long, full width of the vessel. In the trunk cabin part aft of the midship deck is the saloon, with folding berths, buffet, and wardrobe. At the after end is a commodious toilet room.

The yacht will be lighted throughout by electricity, embodying all up-to-date features in every particular. The joiner work throughout is to be of hard wood. There will be six steel water-tight bulkheads.

Oxford Favorite Over Cambridge.

Oxford is already favorite for the annual inter-university race with Cambridge, which will be rowed on the River Thames Saturday, March 30, at 11:30 A. M. The contest will be rowed over the historic course from Putney to Mortlake. The material in the Cambridge boat, judging from the form in the trial eights, is not of the best, and most of the oarsmen will have to be developed. The Oxford oarsmen have shown excellent early season form, and unless the Cantabs improve at a phenomenal rate the dark blue crew will go to the starting point an overwhelming favorite.

MR. WILSON AND MR. ALDRICH.

It is odd to find Gov. WILSON and Senator ALDRICH dining together and agreeing upon contentious subjects of contemporaneous human interest. They both want business men to be more active in politics because of the unsatisfactory treatment of business by the politicians to whom the business men surrender control of economic subjects. This being the text, it was natural for these observers to emphasize the unsatisfactory conditions which they want the business men to remedy by taking the control of politics from the politicians.

Both of them meant, although neither of them said so, that it would be well for the country to intrust its affairs to politicians of their sort. It is only the other sort of politicians who are to be distrusted. Inasmuch as one of them is a Republican and the other a Democrat, and as all business men must work through one party or the other, it is hard to say where the country should turn for its guidance. The Senator's currency views are better than his tariff views, and both are Republican. The Governor's views on tariff reform are better than his views on the initiative, the referendum, and recall, and both are Democratic. The signpost points in both directions, and business men may be pardoned for their perplexity in deciding which way lies the better road to prosperity.

The opportunity would seem to be a good one to remark that the country thrived under the Republicans for all their faults, and will thrive under the Democrats even though under them as well as under the Republicans there is a difference between professions before election and practice after election. Perhaps business men may be pardoned in taking the distinguished speakers at their word and being wary of both parties alike. It may even be that business men who cannot turn politicians will serve their country as well by preserving a certain stability of judgment, and discounting both too drab a view by politicians of events as they are and promises of good things to come if the right sort of politicians is elected. As it seems to us the men of business are keeping the middle of the road and taking care of themselves with pretty good success. The very best sign of it is the usual quiet accompanying Presidential years, and a rather observant attitude toward the rest of the world, which certainly is not prospering as well as ourselves. Foreign wars and revolutions are more serious than anything in our own affairs, and yet foreigners are bearing their troubles in a manner to make us seem afraid of our shadows if we accept without challenge the sombre account of our conditions by these distinguished speakers who have reasons of their own for not taking too rosy views.

These gentlemen did not have the foreign trade in mind when they spoke so disconsolately. We never had so good a year, but nobody doubts that we shall have a better, and perhaps soon. We are lending money to the world, and can recall it when we need it. Times have seemed better when we were running a boom on borrowed money, but we learned that the appearance was deceptive when the credits were recalled. If we were able to export less foodstuffs it was not because of scarcity, but because there were more mouths to fill here. There is no such check to our capacity to export manufactures, which we can produce in whatever quantities our foreign friends can pay for. The fact that we can oversupply our wants of manufactures is testimony that we can make what we used to be compelled to buy. It is worth while to insist upon the importance of our foreign trade, because it is a matter of surplus, and testifies to conditions of internal satisfaction. If our ships do not carry abroad what we sell to foreign buyers it is only because on the one hand our laws prevent their making a profit on the international level of shipping, and because on the other hand the same amount of capital is more profitable when used on our own continent.

Business men are taking care of their affairs quite as well as they could hope to take care of the country's affairs if they also became politicians. And perhaps a successful business man is as useful a citizen as though he neglected business for politics. A business man who votes right, and influences right votes, does not need to go to Washington to serve his country. It is easy to recall conspicuous cases in which business men have vetoed wrongheaded politicians, and it is hard to name a case in which politics has gone wrong against the united opinion of men of business. It is the business of politicians to be voluble. It is the habit of men of business to say little and to act decisively. The politicians who are rending the air alternately with excuses for failure, and promises of future perfection, are interesting in their way, but their way is not the way of men of business. They have powers of veto and recall which cannot be limited or canceled, and which it behooves the politicians to hold in respect. Whenever they make too great a mess the business men can be relied upon to put things to rights when it becomes worth while. If the business men are not controlling politics it is because affairs are not so dreadfully bad as the speakers in Newark described them to be. The country is doing better and looking forward more hopefully than they think.

ANOTHER FINGER-PRINT CASE.

One or two criminals tried in this city have been convicted upon the evidence of telltale finger prints alone, although a confession by one of them made the course of justice certain. The finger prints of the man accused of murdering ISAAC VOGEL, the jewelry peddler, have been identified by Capt. JOSEPH A. FAUROT at Police Headquarters with the impressions on a cigarette case found upon the murdered man. The experts have figured that there is not one chance in several millions that the digital convolutions of one person will correspond with those of another at any point; those of the accused man correspond in seven points with the prints limned on the cigarette case.

This method of identification is so new to juries and to the community that it is a relief to know, if the accused man in this case is convicted, that other evidence than the finger prints has been introduced. But a few more confirmations of this kind of mute testimony will go far to establish its infallibility.

PITY FOR THE POOR.

The Lawrence strikers, like the MCNAMARA brothers, and in spite of the similarity of their methods, find reverend defenders. That gentlemen of the cloth should have more sympathy for the poor and suffering than the worldly wise is natural and commendable, and yet the conditions are such as to challenge attention. Clergymen are citizens as well as teachers of religion, and it would seem that they take up the cause of the users of dynamite and fighters of the militia too easily in times like these. It challenges attention that philanthropists like preachers side with strikers of this sort as though their oppressors were the only other parties to the dispute.

Yet the very presence of the militia proves that there are others more worthy of pity. That their need is greater is proved by the fact that they are willing to take the wages which the strikers reject. That their merit is greater is proved by the fact that the militia is not necessary against them. Those who are willing to work, and who are unable because of disorder beyond the ability of the police to repress, are both more numerous and more deserving than strikers such as are championed from the pulpit in a manner which would seem to put the preachers on the defense as well as their peculiar protégés. How can moral teachers defend such bad citizenship without neglecting an even greater duty to defend those suffering equally and without fault? When a striker goes on picket duty with a revolver in his pocket there is murder in his heart. When strikers use or prepare to use dynamite they display a fiendish lack of humanity which ought to place them beyond the comfort of religion until they have repented. The man who will not let another man work forfeits the right to sympathy for his own lack of wages or what wages buy. A just cause is harmed, not won, by such methods.

But as it happens the strikers' cause is not such as to justify their conduct, if justification were possible. They thought their masters reduced their wages. As matter of fact the masters are ready and desirous to pay the same rate of wages as before the strike. The trouble arises over a law which, like the preachers' defense of the strikers, does more credit to the hearts than to the heads of the strikers' friends in the Legislature. The law reduced the working week by two hours, but neglected to make any distinctions between classes of labor to whom the law should apply. In other words, it is an ill-considered statute, which is not operating as intended. Although the law only applied to women and minors it necessitated idleness for the men, since the industry could not run in an unbalanced condition. It reduced the working time 3.57 per cent., and yet it did not and could not compel the same wages for less work. The employers could not be expected to make up so considerable a deficiency out of their own pockets, since the industry is in a [illegible] condition, and the loss of production was large. In the time dropped by law the production of yarn and thread would be half a million pounds a year, and forty million yards of cloth. This is in addition to a similar loss by a previous shaving of two hours off a week. A stop must be made somewhere, however much humanity may wish otherwise. The product is made to be sold, of course, and sympathy with the strikers does not extend to paying more for the goods they decline to produce under conditions against which there was no complaint until the law took effect. Not long ago Mr. MITCHELL boasted that ten millions spent in strikes yielded $500,000,000 in wages. It would seem that here was a clue to the higher cost of living which is lamented in the same breath with expressions of sympathy for strikers who profit by the general loss, and find sympathy in electing to be idle although there are those willing to work. Is there not ground to fear that weakness of reason may work injustice in far wider circles than those apparently affected by the strike?

THE GROCERS AND MIDDLEMEN.

President W. C. BROWN of the New York Central lines and President B. F. YOAKUM of the Frisco system could advise, and advise well, the housewives and clergymen who are establishing amateur markets and "butter boycotts" in this city to break the grip of the middlemen. To be sure, there is oleomargarine, which, though heavily taxed, is cheaper than butter and is wholesome. Groups of families, who wish to co-operate in the grocery business, doing the work themselves, can, of course, get their provisions cheaper. Few have the time or courage to go into such an enterprise.

Yet everybody who pays for foodstuffs is interested in this question. It is known that their retail price is usually at least double the price paid the producer, often running up from 100 to 300 per cent. above the first cost and railway carrying charges. Yet attempts to find the "trust" in provisions have led nowhere in particular, and, save for cases of purely local significance, will lead nowhere. Mr. YOAKUM says there are too many middlemen, Mr. BROWN says there are too many grocers and delicatessen shops. Both are right. The farmers are forming successful associations for the marketing of their produce. Just now they are receiving the topnotch prices which the middlemen charge, but gradually the competition of the various farmers' societies will wear down prices, put out the middlemen, and leave comparatively few marketing agencies which will handle foodstuffs economically.

The co-operative stores of consumers may not flourish. But as Mr. BROWN has pointed out, there are now twice or thrice too many provisioners' shops in each neighborhood. The shopkeepers cater to restricted groups of customers, eking out a living by charging them extortionate prices, and, we regret to say, cheating them in many instances. One grocery with its one wagon and force of clerks could easily do all the business which is now divided among three or four petty concerns, each paying rent and supporting its separate force. When some financier shall decide to plant in every neighborhood a provision store that will take what should be normal profits, the smaller shops will have to go out of business, and an important problem concerning the cost of living will be solved.

FUTILITY OF THE REFERENDUM.

New York has almost forgotten that it once had a referendum on the rapid transit question, but the events of the day make it fresh in the public mind that the referendum settled nothing. It took New York years to make this discovery, but Detroit discovered it on Tuesday, the day the polls closed. On the same day that the votes were counted, five resolutions were presented before the Common Council proposing fresh arrangements similar to those which the voters had rejected. The Mayor and the Board of Commerce had collaborated in a proposal which was supposed to be popular, although there was some question about the details. It was thought that the vote would be on a tremendous scale, one reason being that women taxpayers were eligible as voters.

The result was a surprise in many respects. The vote was not large, although the subject had been thoroughly debated in the newspapers. In order to be adopted the proposal to reduce street railway fares required 60 per cent. of the votes cast, but the vote fell 6,000 short of 50 per cent. There was a negative majority instead of 60 per cent. in the affirmative. Of 10,000 registered women voters 7,000 cast their ballots, but of course they were not counted separately.

The result is interesting, both generally and specifically. It reinforces the lesson taught by our already forgotten referendum, that it is difficult to draw a proposal so narrow as to settle the question beyond dispute, and yet to get out the vote. In Detroit as well as here the question is left in much the same state after the vote as before it. In both cities the question is proceeding on other issues than those submitted to the electorate, and very much as though no vote had been taken.

The specific lesson taught by the Detroit result is that it is dangerous to teach the electorate that it can get anything by voting for it instead of by paying for it. The proposal, which was thought generous when drafted, is narrow indeed compared with the promises by those who defeated it. The people voted to retain five-cent fares instead of what was practically a three-cent proposal, because they were led to think that less than three-cent fares can be had. The arrangement by the Mayor which silenced opposition when proposed has been outbid by those promising even cheaper fares under municipal ownership. It was even alleged that the tax rate could be reduced by the profits on three-cent fares, and the Mayor who proposed them was denounced as a tool of the railway which now will continue to collect five cents, presumably until Detroit undertakes the operation of its own street car lines. There seems no alternative since this is the third defeat of proposals having a family likeness.

PASTEURIZED MILK.

In his statement favoring the general pasteurization of the milk supply, Dr. CHARLES E. NORTH says:

> One serious difficulty heretofore has been that we have not understood thoroughly the science of pasteurization. This has been removed, and objections to pasteurization with it.

Those who oppose scientific medicine and scientific ventilation have urged that clumsy and ignorant persons might kill patients and keep children sweltering in schools. Many good doctors have given up drugs and thrown open windows, and many others have pointed to the harm which might result from purifying milk of possible disease germs. Boiled milk is not good for babes; after the sterilising process, milk may be again easily contaminated, therefore, they say, let well enough alone.

But it is not well enough. When rivers of milk daily pour into this city that are known to be heavily charged with pathogenic bacteria, then a demand for expert and scientific treatment of the flood becomes imperative. Banish the germs, banish ignorance and clumsy methods, and let us have our milk pure. Typhoid and other epidemics are no longer regarded as visitations of Providence. They cannot be avoided without the safeguarding of food supplies.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Shouldn't the Duke Be Cheered?

Several of the London papers express amusement, and a larger number in the United States present a fine semblance of indignation, at the amount and kind of interest which the people of this city have been taking in royal visitors. The British editors laugh and the stern Americans scold on the assumption that these manifestations prove us not half as democratic as we pretend to be, and more than hint a lingering reverence for rank and high birth.

Of course there is no denying that our "populace" as well as our "society" has been interested in these, to us, very rare birds of passage. Invitations to meet them, according to all accounts, have been eagerly sought, and whenever the Duke, the Duchess, or the Princess has appeared on the street—and been recognized—crowds have gathered, not to show haughty disdain, but to evidence a goodwill that might fairly enough be interpreted as admiration.

It is to be noticed, however, that these demonstrations, or at least the popular ones, have all contained a considerable element of the humorous—of a not very carefully veiled appreciation of such little absurdities and inconsistencies as the situation may present. Of course these guests were courteously treated, as, indeed, why shouldn't they be? It is not at all strange that people who have never seen representatives of a class that bulks so large in history and romance should utilize their first, and possibly last, opportunity to observe how a real Duke, a real Duchess, and especially a real Princess, compare with the magnificent creatures in the books.

A bit disappointing in some ways, these specimens of royalty have been entirely satisfactory in others, for they have carried themselves with a dignity not at all oppressive, and with great skill and tact have extricated themselves from the embarrassments created for them by somebody's rather stupid failure to foresee the necessity to call on the President. Just whose mistake that was it would be unkind to Mr. REID to inquire, but promptly to recognize and gracefully to repair a mistake is the next best thing to not committing it in the first place, and in this case nobody will dream of holding any grudge.

So, the British editors, if they were wiser, would see hospitality where they now see snobbishness, and the protesting Americans would be better employed in mending their own manners than in criticising those of other people. The Duke of CONNAUGHT officially represents two friendly nations, and naturally he has been well received.

Fever Ports Will be Boycotted.

Just as the most important result of American intervention in Cuba was the unexpected and unintended one of proving yellow fever to be an easily preventable disease, so the opening of the Panama Canal may be most affective of the world, not by creating a new trade route, but by compelling the adoption of modern sanitary measures in a score or more of countries where such measures, if not now altogether unknown, are still shamefully neglected.

What is going to happen is hinted clearly enough by the comment at Washington in official circles on the death of the Yorktown's commander in the harbor of Guayaquil. This death is not viewed, as it once would have been, merely as a misfortune—a cause of regret for all and of sorrow for some. Instead, it is treated as evidence of shameful negligence, little if anything less than criminal and certainly intolerable, on the part of the Ecuadorian Government.

Neither that Government nor any other has a right to keep its ports in a condition that makes them centres and distributers of deadly infection. They are, indeed, her ports, but it is no longer admitted that she can do or not do in them what she chooses, if the doing or not doing makes it dangerous to enter them and even more dangerous to go away from them. With the completion of the Panama Canal the penalties for such conduct can be made extremely severe simply by establishing rules imposing burdensome restrictions on all vessels that have touched at ports that are not kept reasonably clean and where proper and well-known precautions against preventable fevers and plagues are not taken.

This action, entirely justifiable, would deprive many ports in Central and South America of all or most of their commerce, and certainly of all the great advantage they hope to derive from the canal, and it would bring to bear upon them a pressure even more effective than war would be. The cities on what used to be called the Spanish Main, including Cartagena, Savanilla, and La Guayra, are already feeling the beginning of this pressure, and are losing much business because passengers bound for Colon cannot go ashore in them without risking long quarantine on arriving at their destination. The loss will increase with the growth of traffic after the canal is opened, and it is safe to assume that the century-old abuses will then at last be abolished.

Explanation Not What She Wanted.

A girl pupil in one of the Bronx public schools has written to tell us that she and her mates are interested in grammar—which shows how the feminine mind is changing and advancing—and that their teachers dear have told them good English can be found in THE TIMES.

Apparently our correspondent inclines to the opinion that English not good is also discoverable in these columns, for, though she doesn't say so, she pastes at the foot of her page several clippings and gently asks that they be "explained," as they contain phrases which she has been taught to consider inaccurate, reprehensible, wrong.

Some of the things she marks show that her teaching has been good. For instance, the headline "Who Is BRYAN For? Ask the Democrats," though not inexplicable, is beyond real defense. Yet it is exactly what a large number both of Democrats and of Republicans are asking, and there be even high-browed mugwumps who wouldn't change the "who" to "whom" if they didn't stop to think about it. That's because the influence of a proximate "is" is stronger for many of us than a remote preposition. Dreadful, too, as an example of verbal arrangement is another marked headline—"Army Circles Stirred by the Criticism by a Man in the Service of the Country's Record." That is also indefensible, and its explanation is haste or carelessness—probably haste.

Our young friend should remember that news often comes very late at night, and that it cannot be prepared for a newspaper with that attention to the niceties of language which is—or might be—shown in getting out a quarterly review. We know only too well that if she looks long enough she will find even graver errors than these in THE TIMES. It will be a profitable exercise for her to make this search, but it is still more profitable to be reasonable, to be considerate of circumstances, to weigh merits against faults—not to be too proud over catching somebody in a trivial blunder.

THE ARMY CANTEEN.

W. C. T. U. President Would Prohibit Dives Within Five Miles of Posts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the meeting held in this city under the auspices of the National League for the Civic Education of Women in the interest of the restoration of the sale of wine and beer in the army canteen, the entire credit for the movement to abolish the sale of wine and beer is placed upon the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. I therefore ask space in which to reply.

The W. C. T. U. was not alone in its efforts to abolish the sale of wine and beer in the army canteen. The effort was supported by the ministry of nearly all the Protestant Churches and by the leaders of all the temperance organizations, men and women who by their study of the temperance question have a right to be considered experts.

Congress was not asked to and did not abolish the soldiers' club or canteen; it simply abolished the sale of wine and beer. The reading room, the company's store, the division of profits for the purchase of luxuries, were untouched.

More than that, the appeal of these same people resulted in an appropriation of $1,500,000 for the erection and equipment of gymnasiums and athletic fields, but for some reason most of these appropriations, for they extended over a number of years, were permitted to lapse. In a few military stations where the money was used the results were highly satisfactory.

Emphasis is placed on the evil influence of the bad places on the outside. Some of these places were there before Congress abolished the sale of wine and beer in the canteen, and it is a matter of history that bad women and equally bad men have always followed the army. The existence of such places is to be deplored, but they are under the control of the civil authorities, and were they the only places where liquors were sold it would not be difficult to arouse public sentiment locally for their closing.

Unfortunately, they are a part of a system, legalized under our license laws, and in character are not different from other places in other communities where there are like opportunities for advancing trade. Inasmuch as these places interfere with the discipline and health of the army, why not appeal to Congress for legislation that will prohibit the sale of all alcoholic liquors within five miles of any camp, fort, or military reservation?

Incognito, but Not Retiring.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is not F. T. Martin, the philosopher of society, guilty of a derangement of epitaphs in his musings on the blessedness of solitude, as reported in your columns to-day? He speaks of the Duke of Connaught and his entourage as having come here "incognito," and believes that he would not have come "incognito" had he desired publicity, &c.

Now, while it is quite true that H. R. H. is here on a private visit, and did not have 500 pounds of dynamite exploded to herald his advent, he came in his own name, without any attempt at secrecy, and is going to-day to Washington on a semi-official visit to the President of the United States.

Had he and his party made the trip as Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and daughter he could have had all the solitude that a great city so abundantly affords, and he would have come "incognito."

President Taft Not a Fighter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The question is asked, Why is Mr. Taft opposed? The answer is, Because he does not fight. And why doesn't he fight? Because he is a man of peace. But sometimes a fight is imperative, and this is the case at the present writing. It is President Taft's duty to fight and to fight hard. He is assailed by unscrupulous and unworthy people. It is his plain, bounden duty to put up as strong a fight as he can, leaving results out of the question. And the country looks to him to do it and not to be mealy-mouthed about it. Let him stop banqueting and all that sort of nonsense and prepare himself for the fray.

SVERDRUP AFTER WHALES.

Norwegian Explorer Will Leave Polar Search to Younger Men.

Capt. Otto Sverdrup, the Norwegian explorer, and his young daughter, Miss Audhild Sverdrup, were among the passengers who arrived on the Scandinavian-American liner Oscar II. from Copenhagen and Christiania yesterday afternoon.

"I have no intention," Capt. Sverdrup said, "of ever making or taking part in another polar expedition. I am in the whaling business now, and am on my way to Vancouver, where I have two steam whalers and a floating blubber factory awaiting for me. I shall leave my little daughter in Seattle while I am whaling in the arctic.

"You know I never personally tried for the pole, although I was with Nansen when he made his unsuccessful effort to get there. No, the poles are not for me. Let the younger fellows look after them."

A fellow-passenger of Capt. Sverdrup's was Mrs. Victoria Murdock of Wichita, Kan. Mrs. Murdock is the mother of Congressman Victor Murdock, the Kansas insurgent, and is herself editor of a newspaper. She asked a lot of questions yesterday about politics in general and Col. Roosevelt in particular. She is very proud of Victor, the big,red-headed Congressman. "He's a fine boy," she said, "and I am quite proud of the fact that much of his politics he inherited from his mother."

The Oscar II. had a rough voyage, and was two days overdue as a result of her battles with the seas and winds.

PRINCETON 'GRAD' WORTH $6.

Low Earning Power at Start, Says Hibben, but Future Large.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Jan. 25.—President John G. Hibben of Princeton, speaking here to-day to alumni, said:

"In the present freshman class of about 400 men over 115 are living on less than $400 a year. One man came last Fall and on being asked how much money he had replied '$14, but I am going to stay.' He is staying and is working his way through. As I was telling that story to some alumni, one man was so impressed that returning home he sent back a check for $14, saying that he wished it to go to that boy, or some other equally needy one, and that he was busy getting thirteen other men to form a club, each one giving $14.

"The college problem to-day is a business proposition. Does this young man, the average man that we turn out, who is known as a Princeton man, justify the kind of education that we give him? In our system at Princeton we differ from other colleges in our aim.

"What is a Princeton man worth to-day when he graduates? About $6 per week. The average graduate of Princeton could not command more than that amount. Why? It is because he has not been trained for business, law, or medicine. Is it not therefore a sad confession to make? Some say it is, and we have been criticised for it, but we can justify it. It is our endeavor to create a high potential of mental possibility rather than actual attainment."

WALTER B. LAWRENCE'S WILL.

Divides $1,000,000 Estate Between His Son and Daughter.

The will of Walter B. Lawrence, who died at the old Lawrence homestead, Willowbank, Flushing, two weeks ago, was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogate's Court in Jamaica, L. I. The value of the estate as given in the papers is over $10,000 real and over $10,000 personal, but is said to be in all more than $1,000,000.

The testator, who was a widower, gave to his son, Townsend Lawrence, Willowbank and all of the contents with the exception of one-half of the silver, glass, and chinaware, which goes to the testator's daughter, Miss Anita Lawrence, who is also given a special bequest of $50,000 as an equivalent of the family home. Brother and sister divide equally the remainder of the estate.

In a codicil dated March 8, 1908, Mr. Lawrence directed his executors to continue the suit now pending in the United States court instituted by himself and several old stockholders of the Texas Central Railway Company against the Southern Railway Company. Townsend Lawrence, his sister, and a cousin, Henry L. Bogert, are named as executors. Mr. Lawrence was 73 years old at the time of his death.

The Poor Grocers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The great but mortal philanthropists who have undertaken to remedy the troubles of "the poor" in East 123d Street by selling eatables at less than current rates, seem to have touched the heart of the matter in the case of the woman grocer whose living would be imperiled. All these small dealers, whose alleged exorbitant profits hurt the feelings of the charity workers, would themselves be easily pushed into the very ranks of "the poor," whose miseries cause the periodical attempts to sell at less than cost. And there is to be considered the store property likely to be injured on behalf of "the poor."

Another newspaper report makes the statement that Settlement workers will see to it that none but the really poor buy; they will take their names, &c. If this be true, a most intolerable inquisition will be begun in East 123d Street.

Oglers in the Subway.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I got on this morning at the Brooklyn Bridge Subway station, and opposite sat a man of about 32. He tried to draw my attention by moving his eyes until I became so embarrassed that I did not really know what to do, as the train was rather crowded. I hoped that he would get off at the next station, but instead he followed me until I left the car at the Grand Central Station, and then I went into a drug store in order to avoid him.

I wish the Interborough officials would put plain clothes men on the different trains and see if they cannot arrest a few of these loafers—they are many—and make an example.

The problem of beefsteak and butter
Is one that is worrying us all.
We're also kept quite in a flutter
For fear that the landlord may call.
This question of living doth haunt us
By day and by night like a spook—
But just at this writing there's one more exciting:
Have they asked you to dine with the

The papers are all speculating
And asking what Teddy will do,
And wond'ring if he's contemplating
The thing that the French call a coup.
Both Wilson and Harmon are praying
That they may get in by some fluke—
But the question most pressing is this—it's distressing—
Have they asked you to dine with the Dook?

MAYOR WON'T JOIN IN SUBWAY TALK

Leaves the Board of Estimate When It Tries to Get Him on Record on the B. R. T. Routes.

ASKS IF THE LINE IS READY

He'll Approve It So Quickly Their Heads Will Swim If They Have the Money—Nothing Yet from Interboro.

Mayor Gaynor refused yesterday to permit the Board of Estimate to force a declaration from him defining his position on subways. A motion was introduced by Borough President Connolly of Queens, whose falling out with the Mayor has been the subject of recent political gossip, calling on the Mayor to act forthwith on the recommendation to create a new rapid transit route along Fifty-ninth Street across the Queensboro Bridge, with elevated extensions into Queens. As the matter was discussed the Mayor left the room, declaring that it had better be discussed without his presence, but turned back to say that if there were any money for such a route he would approve it "so quickly that your heads will swim." The motion of President Connolly was intended to reveal the attitude of the Mayor toward the B. R. T. subway proposal.

President McAneny suggested that the Fifty-ninth Street line be coupled with the Eastern Parkway section in Brooklyn and the tunnel under the East River to Atlantic Avenue from the Battery, which also are within the allotment of subways to the B. R. T., so that a debate in which the Mayor had taken part would have shown the line-up of the Board on the present controversy. The resolution asking the Mayor to act was in the end carried, but as he had withdrawn there was little to be discussed.

Borough President Miller of the Bronx started the ball rolling by saying that he was entirely in favor of the Fifty-ninth Street route, but that he thought the board would be making a mistake if it adopted a resolution which was not in its province.

"In other words," replied President Connolly tartly, "we are not entitled to ask for what we are entitled to. We are entitled to a decision in this matter after three months. I do not suggest a decision one way or the other.

The Mayor Won't Discuss It.

"This route would give all companies operating in New York the chance to come across the bridge and help us in Queens. By the Belmont Tunnel only one company can come in, and it may be five or six years before the tunnel is opened."

Controller Prendergast agreed entirely with Mr. Connolly. He did not want to direct the Mayor how to act, he said, but he did want him to act.

"This Queensboro route," said Mr. McAneny, "is an essential part of the transportation system laid down last Summer. I think we have a right to ask the Mayor to act upon it, and also on the Eastern Parkway route and the East River tunnel from the Battery."

"It seems to me," replied the Controller, "that the Borough President of Brooklyn ought to take action on these routes."

"I have nothing to say at present," said Mr. Steers, and the matter dropped till Mayor Gaynor came in. After he had put through one or two items of little importance the Mayor came to President Connolly's motion. Looking the board over, he asked:

"Is there anything further to be said?"

"I move the adoption of my motion," said Mr. Connolly.

"What's it all about?" asked the Mayor. The Borough President explained the matter elaborately again, and his Honor asked briefly:

"Is the line about to be built?"

"No, and it never will be unless it is legalized," said Mr. Connolly.

"I thought," answered the Mayor, "that not even the trunk lines were ready to be built. But as this is a matter that concerns me I think I had better go."

The Mayor motioned to Vice President Kline to take his chair and moved toward the door. As he went he turned and said over his shoulder:

"I can only say that just as soon as you have a line ready and the money to build it I will give my approval so quickly that your heads will swim."

His Honor Disappears.

"Stay and talk things over with us," implored President Miller. "We realize that the matter is in your hands."

"And in very safe hands, too," came the voice of the Mayor from the midst of the crowd of officials behind the board, and at once he disappeared.

Then Vice President Kline of the Board of Aldermen put the question, stating that he did not think he ought to vote on the motion. A resonant "Aye" came from Controller Prendergast, and Mr. McAneny voted with him. President Steers was against the motion. When it came to President Miller's turn he said:

"If the Mayor interfered with a Borough President, we should tell him to keep his hands off," and voted "no."

President Connolly was, of course, in the affirmative, and Commissioner Tribus of the Richmond Public Works, who was representing President Cromwell, declared himself in favor of the Fifty-ninth Street route. A Supreme Court Justice could be forced to render a decision by mandamus proceedings, he remarked, so perhaps the Mayor could be made to act also.

"Do you desire to bring the question of court proceedings before the board?" asked Controller Prendergast.

"It is not now before the board," replied Mr. Tribus, and then the Clerk declared the motion lost, Mr. Kline's three votes being counted in the negative.

A resident of Queens addressed the board, declaring that the delay in providing transit facilities was driving the merchants of Long Island City into bankruptcy, and this started the discussion again. Mr. Connolly pointed out that the Belmont Tunnel was now involved in litigation that would go to the United States Supreme Court, whereas the Astoria and Woodside extensions could be built at once, irrespective of the question with what line into Manhattan they were afterward connected.

"A member of this board is said to have talked of the 'cornfield route,'" he said. "Yet this 'cornfield route' will be much more used than the Belmont Tunnel route."

Nothing Definite on Subways.

The result was that Mr. Kline asked to have his vote changed, and the Board of Estimate stood on record as calling on the Mayor to act without further delay on the Fifty-ninth Street-Queensboro Bridge route.

A lull seemed to fall yesterday over the general subway situation, and the city officials expressed themselves as entirely in the dark as to what the next move is likely to be. Controller Prendergast left in the afternoon for Lakewood, and will not be at his office again until Monday, and no communication has been received at either the City Hall or the Public Service Commission from either the Pennsylvania intermediaries or the Interborough.

President McAneny and Chairman Willcox lunched together yesterday, and afterward spent half an hour in Mr. Willcox's office going over figures, but they both declared that it concerned merely a detail of the larger question. Meanwhile, the counsel of the commission and the Interborough have not finished their consideration of the legal points involved in any contract between the city and the company.

The B. R. T. is not engaged in any inquiry as to the best way of bringing the preferential payments within the limits of the State Constitution. It was learned, however, yesterday that if there is any agreement between the Interborough and the city for the submission to the courts of the question of constitutionality on an agreed statement of facts the B. R. T. will not be a party to it.

2,000 GERMANS DANCE FOR CHARITY

Music the Feature of Annual Ball at Astor That Realizes More Than $11,000.

CHEERS FOR MAYOR GAYNOR

He Declines to Make a Speech, but Asks to See the Ladies Waltz—Pelted with Flowers.

The twenty-second annual German charity ball was held last night in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor and was attended by more than 2,000 persons. More than $11,000 was raised for charity.

Shortly before the supper intermission a surprise was sprung when Mayor Gaynor, Commissioner Waldo, and Borough President McAneny, who had been at the reception to Cardinal Farley in the early evening, came in to the ball. They were escorted by Herman Ridder to one of the upper boxes. Immediately the Mayor was recognized and the big throng of dancers crowded about the front of the Mayor's box giving him an ovation and crying out, "Speech, speech! We want the Mayor to give us a speech." The Mayor rose and held his hand up for silence. "I am not here to make a speech," he said. "You ladies have asked me a favor, now I wish you would grant me a favor. I wish to see how beautifully you can waltz." The spirit of the Mayor's request caught the crowd and as the orchestra played "The Blue Danube," the couples went out on the floor again to the measures of the waltz, much to the Mayor's satisfaction, for he applauded heartily.

After this Herman Ridder took the Mayor's party to the supper room where the women present showered the Mayor with flowers pulled from the table decorations and the flowers intertwined about the lights.

The feature of the ball was its music. An orchestra of fifty musicians was placed in the upper or third gallery of the ballroom and rendered the dance music, which was taken from light operas and German music of the grand operas. When this string orchestra was not playing the great hidden organ of the Astor was played by Arthur Riggs, rendering selections from the old music masters for the pleasure of the immense throng gathered at the ball.

The floral decorations, miniature lights, and multi-colored costumes of the women made a picture of great beauty. At one time nearly 1,500 persons were on the ballroom floor. In the encircling galleries, where every available seat was taken and many stood in the aisles, those who were not dancing looked on the gay scene below.

The grand march was led by William Hoffman and his fiancée, Miss Isabella B. Runk, whose family are members of both the Arion and Liederkranz Societies, to the tune of "Der Rosenkavalier." There were in all twenty-four dances, which carried the ball into the small hours of this morning.

The ball given last night was arranged under the auspices of three great New York German societies, the German Liederkranz, the Arion Society, and the Beethoven Society, and the proceeds will be distributed among the German charitable organizations in this city and Brooklyn. For the last five years more than $10,000 annually has been raised at this ball.

The President of the combined societies which arranged the ball last night is William J. Hoffman, and the Treasurer is Hubert Cillis. Conrad Dietrich and Rudolph Draz of the Bachelor Circle of the German Liederkranz, Edward J. Appel and George H. Diehl, Jr., of the Junior Arion Society, and George E. Alstadt and Gustave J. Haase of the Beethoven Bachelors, assisted by a committee of twenty prominent German-Americans of this city, took care of the big crowd in splendid order, and handled the arrangements for seating the 2,000 guests at supper. The arrangements were so well worked out that, though even the big hotel was taxed to its utmost capacity, every one was assigned a place.

Among those who were patrons of the ball and those who attended last night were Richard H. Adams, Robert F. Amend, Mr. and Mrs. Emil L. Boas, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ridder, Gustav Schwab, Mrs. E. B. Amend, Mrs. A. V. Briesen, Mrs. George H. Chatillon, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Cillis, Mrs. George Ehret, Jr., Mrs. J. Hasslacher, Hugo Reisinger, Jacob Ruppert, Jr., Mrs. A. G. Hupfel, Mrs. C. G. MME. HOMER IN "ORFEO."

Her First Appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House This Season.

There was a special interest in the third performance of Gluck's "Orfeo," which was given last evening at the Metropolitan Opera House, and that was the first appearance on the stage of Mme. Louise Homer since the domestic event that has prevented her singing during the first half of the operatic season. Mme. Homer comes back to the stage quite as she left it last Spring in voice and figure. Her Orfeo has been recognized as one of her most artistic impersonations, one in which she achieves her most beautiful singing, beautiful not only in voice but in the breadth and repose and distinction of style that are necessary for Gluck's music. Mme. Homer likewise enacts the part most sympathetically, with grace and dignity, a measured cadence of movement, with expressive gesture and facial play, and at the same time with an abundant expression of the emotions that are the promptings of Orpheus's quest.

Needles to say that Mme. Homer was heartily welcomed and that her impersonation won her much applause through the evening, which recalled her repeatedly before the curtain.

The rest of the cast brought forward the same people who have participated in representations of "Orfeo" earlier in the season, including Mme. Rappold as Euridice.

"Orfeo" was preceded by a performance of Leo Blech's "Versiegelt," which had its first performance last Saturday and which again pleased and amused.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

Delius's "In a Summer Garden" Played for First Time in America.

There was no solo performer at the concert of the Philharmonic Society given last evening in Carnegie Hall, but Mr. Stransky's programme was so composed that the lack was not felt as such. The symphony was Dvorak's "From the New World," which had its first performance at one of the Philharmonic Society concerts, and for which the society may therefore be supposed to preserve the authentic traditions as to its tempos and general style. Mr. Stransky seemed to have come into possession of these, and his performance of the symphony was marked by a right feeling and a correct understanding of the music.

The numbers that preceded it on the programme were all interesting; some had the interest of novelty, either through rarity of performance, as Mendelssohn's overture, "Ruy Blas," or as given for the first time as Delius's tone poem, "In a Summer Garden." The "Ruy Blas" overture most rarely appears upon symphonic programmes in these days, and yet it does not deserve the complete neglect into which it has fallen. It seems, to be sure, small in scale at present, and yet its opening chords are singularly impressive and its themes have more spontaneity and living interest than can always be found in Mendelssohn.

Delius's tone poem is better music, more genial, more filled with the spirit of true beauty than its companion piece, "Brigg Fair," which was heard here last season. It is mood picturing of an impressionistic kind. Though the voice of Debussy is detected in it, it is not of the kind to which Debussy's later efforts belong, deliberately neglecting musical form and substance as determined by definite thematic structure; for there are definite themes definitely developed.

The orchestration has much charm, an individual color of its own, peculiarly adapted to the expression of the composer's ideas and to giving the suggestion of the outdoor spirit at which he has apparently aimed. "In a Summer Garden" will do much for the composer's repute in New York.

The programme also contained Grieg's two "Elegiac Melodies" for string orchestra, pieces in his tenderest and most sincere vein, with few of the mannerisms that underlie so much of his music. These were charmingly played with great delicacy and beauty of tone and carefully wrought nuance. Mr. Stransky repeated the second of these pieces, "Letzter Frühling." There was finally the love scene from Richard Strauss's opera, "Feuersnot," a brilliant piece of dramatic descriptive music. In the years when it was first made known to New York it was never played without a demand for its repetition. This demand was not made last evening, and yet it was played effectively.

ZIEGFELD'S MUSICAL STOCK.

Permanent Company at New York Theatre to be Renamed Moulin Rouge.

Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., producer of the annual "Follies," has completed arrangements with Klaw & Erlanger to make the New York Theatre the home of a permanent musical stock company in a few weeks. The house is to be renamed the Moulin Rouge, and the entertainments are to be modeled after Mr. Ziegfeld's Summer productions, with a company of stars and a chorus selected for good looks.

For several years Mr. Ziegfeld has been desirous of obtaining a theatre in New York for this sort of a company that could be made profitable only by having a permanent home. His idea is to put on light musical entertainments, with frequent changes in the features of the shows, and to have the stars under his management and that of Klaw & Erlanger play special engagements there. One of the first of the stars to appear will be Anna Held. The productions will be staged by Julian Mitchell. The first performance will be given on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22.

Goodwin as Fagin, Marie Doro as Oliver, and Lyn Harding as Bill Sykes. The plans have been completed after a two years' wait, until George C. Tyler, head of Liebler & Co., could get the players he wished for the principal roles.

Rehearsals will begin next Tuesday.

OPERA AT IRVING THEATRE.

Vienna Company Returns in a Performance of "Das Suesse Maedel."

The Vienna Opera Company, that was at the Irving Place Theatre earlier in the season, returned to that playhouse last night in a performance of "Das Suesse Maedel," the three-act operetta by A. Landesberg and L. Stein. The audience filled the theatre, even to the top balcony, and in the boxes were several prominent Broadway managers.

Fraulein Grete Meyer had the rôle of Lola, Fraulein Conti played Fritzi, Herr Home was the old Count, Herr Verheyn the nephew, and Herr Marlow the sweetheart of Fritzi.

The Lambs to Make a Gambol Tour.

At a special meeting of the Lambs Club yesterday afternoon it was decided to prepare for another all-star gambol tour to be given at the close of the present theatrical season. The event will probably occur in May, when most of the members of the club are at liberty. Two performances will be given in New York, to be followed by single performances in ten or twelve of the principal cities in the country. About 100 prominent actors will take part, and the proceeds will be devoted to enlarging the present clubhouse in West Forty-fourth Street.

A special vaudeville show, arranged by Percy G. Williams, will be given at the Majestic Theatre, Brooklyn, on Sunday evening, Feb. 4, for the benefit of the widow and children of the late Battalion Chief Walsh. Charles S. Breed, manager of the theatre, has donated the house and the services of the attaches, and Mr. Williams will supply the acts.

Mr. Heath started West, stopping at Plainfield long enough to pick up his best man, William Miswitch. January won, after an argument, and the wedding took place here to-night.

She had three daughters—Mrs. Harry Lehr, who is at present abroad with her husband; Mrs. Eric B. Dahlgren of New York, whose daughter made her début this season, and Mrs. Charles Bingham Penrose of this city. Mrs. Drexel was in the late seventies.

Through her death members of society in most of the large cities of the world will be thrown into mourning, as, through direct marriage or intermarriage, Mrs. Drexel was related to many of the society leaders both here and abroad.

Years ago Mrs. Drexel was noted for the charming entertainments she gave. She was an ideal hostess, and was equally well known in Philadelphia, New York, Newport, London, and Paris. For many years she has lived quietly at her picturesque home, Pen Ryn, at Torresdale.

REAR ADMIRAL HEILNER DEAD

Served on Battleship Texas at the Battle of Santiago.

Rear Admiral Lewis Cass Heilner, U. S. N., retired, died at the Naval Hospital in Brooklyn yesterday. He retired from the navy about a year ago because he had reached the age limit. Admiral Heilner was appointed from Pennsylvania in July, 1866. He became a Master in 1873, and receiving his appointment as Lieutenant a year later, he was assigned to the Saco of the Asiatic Fleet. He served on a number of vessels, and in 1878 to 1883 did shore duty in the Coast Survey. Then followed a term on the training ship Portsmouth, after which he took charge of the Naval Observatory in Washington.

Admiral Heilner served in the battleship Texas at the battle of Santiago, and was with the late Rear Admiral John Philips, then a Captain, when he said, "Don't cheer, boys, the poor devils are dying." He was appointed to the Brooklyn Navy Yard in 1899, and served there until his retirement.

Admiral Heilner was a class mate of Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, now Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

REV. HENRY HOCHEIMER DEAD

Rabbi Emeritus of Baltimore Congregation Dies at 92.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 25.—The Rev. Dr. Henry Hocheimer, rabbi emeritus of the old Eden Street congregation, died at the Hebrew Home for the Aged tonight at the age of 92 years. Dr. Hocheimer was thoroughly identified with the Jewish element in Baltimore during a long period and was well known as a man of profound learning and keen wit. He leaves a wife and one son, Louis H. Hocheimer, a well-known lawyer here.

Dr. Hocheimer was born in Ansbach, Bavaria, Oct. 31, 1818. He came from a rabbinical family, and was designated a rabbi by inheritance. In 1848, when the revolution in Germany occurred, Dr. Hocheimer displayed republican tendencies, and was compelled to leave the country. He came to the United States with Carl Schurz, and immediately received a call from the Baltimore congregation. During the long period of his services as rabbi Dr. Hocheimer officiated at nearly a thousand weddings and more than a thousand funerals.

He had been a liberal contributor to German publications.

Dr. Samuel Short Dies of a Wound.

Dr. Samuel Short of 1,547 Madison Avenue, died in Bellevue Hospital yesterday of septicaemia, the result of a wound received five months ago when he cut his foot on a rusty nail. Dr. Short at that time had been ill and one night went into his bathroom. His foot struck a rusty nail, tearing the skin. The wound was trifling and was not noticed. A few days ago septicaemia set in, and despite the efforts of his brother physicians, he died. Dr. Short was 39 years old and was graduated from the Long Island Medical College nine years ago. Since then he has practiced in this city.

PIPE LINES ONLY TO FEED REFINERIES

REFINERS HAVE THE MARKET

Inter-State Commissioner Lane Thinks Producer, Then, Must Take What He's Offered.

Affairs of the Tidewater Pipe Company, in which First National Bank interests are prominent, shared the day with the Standard Oil Company at the Inter-State Commerce Commission's hearing in the Custom House Building yesterday. The investigation is on the Inter-State Commerce Commission's own initiative, the charge being that the pipe lines have been violating the Inter-State Commerce laws.

Vice President J. A. Moffet of the Standard Oil Company whose special field has been oil transportation was questioned by Commissioner Lane on an act of the Standard Oil Company in 1905, which transferred sections of the pipe lines leading to refineries in New Jersey and Maryland, from the National Transit Company to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. This transfer left the lines originating in the oil fields with termini at the borders of these States far from the refining centres. Commissioner Lane attempted to show that this was done because the company had advance information of the intention of the authorities to put pipe lines, under the control of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Mr. Moffet denied this inference and said that the action taken had long been under discussion and was merely in line with the policy of the company to put pipe lines in each State under the control of the Standard Oil Company of that State. He cited Indiana and Kansas as other States in which this had been the rule.

Commissioner Lane asked Mr. Moffett to forget he was a Standard Oil man, and as a simple oil transportation expert state whether he could as a common carrier transport oil as a railroad carries grain, taking it from all producers and delivering it according to demand.

Mr. Moffett answered at once that it could not operate profitably under such conditions, explaining that the mixing of the different grades of oil in the pipes would make it impossible to differentiate in deliveries and sales, and that the shippers of high-grade oils would make claims for losses that would bankrupt the pipe line.

No One to Say Nay.

"If consignments were all made to one refinery it would be easy," he said, "or if the oil was sold to the transportation company, to be resold at the mixed grade standard at the other end, the business would be all right. But to use a pipe line as a simple transportation company cannot be done."

Commissioner Lane seemed to be impressed by the answer, and then asked:

"Is there any practical pipe man in the room who holds a contrary view."

There was a silence, and then Attorney Lewis, who had raised this same question at the morning session, said:

"There isn't an oil man on earth who would disagree with that."

Attorney Gutheim then read an extract from the testimony of a witness in the dissolution case against the Standard Oil Company, in which it was stated that in Texas a system of transporting various grades of oils in the same pipe line had been perfected by running 300 barrels of water into the pipes between the different grades of oil, thus keeping the grades from mixing. The attorney then asked Mr. Moffet as to whether or not this system would answer the objection he had to the pipe line as a common carrier.

"I don't think that it would," was the response. "In our pipes we always have more or less water, and it is our experience that it will mix with the oil under pressure. It seems to me that the cost of transporting the water, and then separating the water from the oil at the other end, would be as costly as the loss resulting from the mixture of different grades of oil."

The Tidewater Pipe Company, which is the Standard Oil Company's only pipe line competitor in this section, operates 831 miles of pipe from Stoy, Ill., to the Tidewater Oil Company's refinery at Bayonne, N. J. C. W. Burdis, Controller of the company, took the stand in the morning. He was questioned concerning a statement of the company's operations last year, which showed that an average of 5,000 barrels of crude oil was transported daily to the Bayonne refinery, all of which is the property of the transporting company. The value of the pipe line he placed at about $10,000 a mile.

Only Feeders for Refineries.

W. I. Lewis, counsel for the Tidewater Companies, explained the necessity of a refinery to a pipe line company, saying that the crude oil must be brought to a refinery to find a market.

"When the Tidewater Pipe Company was first organized," he said, "it was to have been operated as a transporting company. We soon ran into trouble. We had no place to transport the oil to, because we had no refineries. Then we built some small refineries and found that, in order to keep the refineries running, we had to keep the pipe lines filled to capacity. Finally we extended the pipe line to Bayonne and built our large refinery there, with a capacity identical with that of the pipe line. We had to purchase our oil to keep the pipe lines filled to keep the refineries running."

He asked permission to submit affidavits which he said would show that it was practically impossible to conduct a pipe line as a common carrier.

Theodore Westgate, Secretary of the Producers and Refiners' Oil Company, which has a pipe line in West Virginia, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, testified that his company, which was formed by refiners and had paid a charge of 20 cents a barrel for transportation, had never paid a dividend.

No Price Fixing, Says Milburn.

Mr. Westgate said that his pipe line was not large enough to supply the needs of the original subscribers, and was questioned by Attorney Gudheim, representing the commission, as to whether the operation of pipe lines as common carriers would help his company's refining business. He was unable to say.

During the examination of F. B. Eaton, an accountant of the Producers and Refiners Oil Company, there was a tilt between Commissioner Lane and Attorney John G. Milburn, representing the common carrier pipe lines controlled by the Standard Oil Company. The Commissioner had raised the question that a producer after using the common carrier lines had no choice except to sell to the Standard Oil Company and at a price fixed by the Standard Oil Company.

"It is an impossibility," declared Mr. Milburn, "for a man to think that some one can sit down here in New York and dictate the price of oil. Competition is too keen and the independent refineries are too anxious to get oil. The purchasing agents of the Standard Oil Company enter the field on the same basis as any other purchase and pay the same price."

The hearing will be resumed this morning.

WOULD PROTECT EX-CONVICTS

Bill to Make It a Misdemeanor to Publish a Man's Prison Record.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Two measures of an unusual nature were introduced to-day by Assemblyman Brooks of New York. One makes it a misdemeanor to publish in the case of any one who has been convicted of crime and who has paid the penalty a statement to the effect that he is an ex-convict.

The other bill amends the Civil Code by providing that in New York County no jury shall deliberate upon a verdict after 6 P. M. If at that hour a jury has reached no decision it shall either be discharged or excused until the next morning.

Senator Saxe and Assemblyman Allen introduced bills to-day to repeal the Frawley law, which legalizes ten-round boxing exhibitions in this State.

Assemblyman Adler will introduce a constitutional amendment that a three-fourths vote of a jury suffice for conviction.

SAY MARGINS PROVE TRUST.

Government Surprises Defendant Packers with Original Documents.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 25.—Controverting the contention of the defendant packers that margins were a necessary part of their business, the Government brought out to-day that they were never figured for hundreds of cities of the East, South, and West. This evidence was given today by Steiner G. Langher, former margin figurer for the National Packing Company, soon after he admitted figuring margins for several other cities in the Western territory.

The Government hopes to show that shipments were made to the towns for which no margins were figured, and then establish the point that margins were figured only for points where the defendants had control of the market. The Government also contends that where the alleged combination was harassed by keen competition from outsiders the margin system was not used.

Pierce Butler, conducting the Government examination, surprised the packers by producing thirty-five weekly margin summaries of the National Packing Company in support of the Government's contention that the defendants, who attended the weekly meetings in the offices of the National, went there to exchange information, and for the alleged purpose of determining margins and shipments for the following week. The summaries were identified by Langher as one of two he prepared each week from Jan. 1 to Aug. 27, 1910.

Langher read from books of the G. H. Hammond Company, under which corporate title the National operates, in an endeavor to explain to the jury the margin system. When a car of meat was received at the branch houses, the witness said, he would receive a telegram telling him of the estimated price the manager thought he would receive, and then a telegram showing what was received. The margin would be the difference between the test and closing prices. If it was below the test price, it would be minus, and if above it would be a plus margin.

During the questioning of Langher Mr. Butler made an aside remark to M. W. Borders, who made a suggestion regarding papers similar to those being identified by the witness. Butler said he thought they were burned by some concern.

"No, they are not burned up," retorted Borders, "but they will burn you up before you are through with them, don't be alarmed about them being burned up."

Judge Carpenter stopped the unpleasantness.

Some People Here Live on Things Some Others Never Heard Of.

Owing to the variety of taste of New York's diversified population many articles of food are regularly sold by some merchants which seem exceedingly foreign to others, says the National Provisioner in its current issue.

"Oriental liver and bacon is the most expensive article in that line in America, retailing at half a dollar a pound. It is bought up by the numerous Chinese and Niponese hordes which crowd certain sections of our cities; by the Oriental legations and consulates; by the chop suey restaurant trade, &c.

"Tasajo reaches the Manhattan markets from two quarters of the globe—Latin America and China. From tropical and subtropical America it is always beef that comes sun-dried; from China it is only pork, reaching here in thin slices or strips. 'Biltong,' from the Afrikander land, has also been imported experimentally, but proved a failure. Some sun-dried mutton is brought from central Asia; it retails at sixty cents per pound among our Arabic-speaking communities.

"Jerked beef is usually a tough proposition. It can be obtained sun or air-dried in both unsalted and salted conditions. The price is high at retail—about thirty cents per pound. It is in demand by the prosperous body of Ibero-speaking citizens in our midst, who have a penchant for the viands they fattened on in their native lands.

"Dried beef importations—largely from Kampana (Plata)—to the port of New York, for the shipping trade, are on a scale which surpasseth belief almost. Whole one-piece sun-dried unsalted carcasses, entirely bone free, of 150 to 200 pounds weight, are in demand for long-distance sailing vessel use. It also comes in thin sheet form, about one metre (forty inches) square; also in 'lariat,' or continuous strip form of five to twenty metres' length (sixteen to sixty-four feet), of the thickness of hide, and in different widths—two and one-half to five centimetres (one to two inches). This is often eaten by members of the crews with biscuit, without cooking. The sun has given it sufficient 'cooking.' It is quite tasty thus prepared.

"It has been said that the oat bread of Scotland made its people famous. Few have heard of the oatmeal sausage. It is made in Manhattan. It is a pure oatmeal product with just enough meat and fat seasoning to render it appetizingly interesting. It retails at sixteen cents per pound, being put up in ordinary hog casings. It can be eaten as sold, cold, having already been properly cooked, but most persons prefer to have it cooked anew. Each oat sausage is about a dozen inches long and weighs about half a pound."

The statistics are in running bales, including linters, except foreign cotton, and exports have been reduced to 500 bales.

Returns of cotton consumed and of stocks held at mills and in independent warehouses and public storage places were collected through canvasses by agents and by mail. The stocks shown under the classification "Elsewhere" were not ascertained through actual canvass, but by deduction, this quantity being the difference between the total supply and the sum of the exports and that consumed in the period and held by manufacturers and warehousemen at the close of the period.

Verdict Against Mrs. Waldo Set Aside

Supreme Court Justice Gerard set aside yesterday a $250 verdict against Mrs. Gertrude Rhinelander Waldo, mother of the Police Commissioner, which had been obtained by a discharged maid, Mary Madden, in her suit for damages for false arrest. Mrs. Waldo had the maid arrested when she refused to leave the house after her discharge. Mrs. Waldo's attorneys said they had not received proper notice that the suit was to be called for trial.

Ask $515,000 from State for Springs.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A claim for $515,000 damages was filed against the State to-day by Emily H. Hawthorne and Frank H. Hawthorne for mineral springs property taken for the State reservation at Saratoga Springs. Amy A. Clark filed a claim for $22,960, and Ida E. Traver for $27,500 for property taken for the same purpose.

C. VANDERBILT DENIES BIG RUBBER PROFITS

DIDN'T UNLOAD THEIR STOCK

Answers London Truth's Charges That They Got $5,000,000 by Selling Out a New Jersey Company.

Cornelius Vanderbilt and Robert Goelet issued a statement last night through their attorney, J. Frederick Eagle, of the firm of Krauthoff, Harmon & Mathewson, denying the charges made by London Truth that they reaped a profit of $5,000,000 by the sale of stocks in the Malaysian Rubber Company of New Jersey, said to have been worthless, to the United Malaysian Rubber Company of Great Britain.

London Truth asserted that the British company was formed for the purpose of buying the New Jersey concern, capitalized at $4,000,000, and having concessions which the Malay authorities said were worthless. At a stormy meeting of the shareholders of the British company in London last November, as told in THE TIMES at that time, the American vendors were asked in resolutions to refund 1,000,000 out of the 1,600,000 shares paid to them when the company was formed in 1910. Cornelius Vanderbilt said then that he and Mr. Goelet had been induced to invest in the company by a promoter name Elliot, and that he had been putting money into the venture ever since, expecting that the project would work out successfully.

According to London Truth the United Malaysian Rubber Company of Great Britain was formed with a capital of $10,000,000, and the stock of the company was boosted to $7 a share until the insiders unloaded, when it fell to 50 cents a share, the present price.

The statement issued last night by Mr. Vanderbilt and Mr. Goelet is as follows:

"The Malaysian Rubber Company was a New Jersey corporation which owned or controlled directly or through subsidiary companies a process for making rubber, a rubber concession, believed to be very valuable, in British Borneo, a plant in New Jersey, another plant and a factory in Borneo, where its main operations were conducted, and other properties, including in 1910 over $250,000 in cash, together with other liquid assets in the shape of rubber, resin, jelutong, and supplies.

"The company's prospects appeared particularly bright; so much so that some stock of the New Jersey company sold in this country for twice its par value. Messrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Robert Goelet were stockholders in this company, and Mr. Elliot became interested in the company and was instrumental in securing its concessions.

"It was believed, however, by the Directors and stockholders of the company that a British company could operate the concessions in British Borneo to better advantage than an American company, and it was therefore decided to organize an English company, to which all the assets of the American company might be transferred. Thereupon the United Malaysian Rubber Company, Limited, was incorporated in England, and the stockholders of the American company exchanged their stock for shares in the English company at the rate of two and one-half shares of the English company for each share of the American company.

"The management of the English company during its first year of operation did not prove so successful as had been anticipated. This was due in large measure to the great drop in the price of rubber. Messrs. Vanderbilt and Goelet, not feeling satisfied with the progress of the company, sent their representatives to London in May last and subscribed approximately $250,000 for preference shares in the English company on the understanding that there should be a change in the management. Mr. Elliot thereupon retired as Managing Director, and Mr. L. G. Haas was thereupon appointed to that position on the nomination of Messrs. Vanderbilt and Goelet.

"Mr. Haas was an expert of exceptional experience and ability, and in order to relieve the company from too great expense Messrs. Vanderbilt and Goelet volunteered themselves to pay half of such manager's compensation. During Mr. Haas's management there has been great improvement, and the prospects for the future are most encouraging. Messrs. Vanderbilt and Goelet have not sold a share of their stock in the United Malaysian Rubber Company, nor have they made any profit in the entire transaction. On the contrary, they have invested a large amount in the enterprise, which they can only recover in the event of its success. They do not hold a majority of the capital stock, but somewhat less than 30 per cent.

"In summary, at no time have Messrs. Vanderbilt and Goelet made any representation respecting the enterpirse which were in any way untrue; they have not made $5,000,000 or any other amount, but at present stand at a loss, and they have never unloaded or sold a share of any stock which they ever owned to any one. They have no knowledge as to the sources of inspiration of the malicious and untrue statement which have appeared in the press in this connection."

PURE FOOD BAN ON SUNDAES.

Maraschino Cherries Must Give Place In Them to a Non-Alcoholic Kind.

People who call for a Maraschino cherry in their ice cream sundae may not get their order filled in future, but they need not feel sad on that account, for there are compensations. Says The Soda Fountain in its current issue:

"The Demon Rum has recalled his own, The seductive Maraschino cherry, stolen from the cocktail to give life and color to sundae and fountain dainty, and to nestle snugly amid the creamy content of luscious confection, can no longer legally add savor to the temperance beverages at the marble and onyx soda fountains of the land. The pure food authorities and the Internal Revenue officials have placed their ban upon it.

"To be a Maraschino cherry it must be a Marasca cherry preserved in Maraschino, an alcoholic liquor of high spirit content, and while this does not forbid their use as 'golden globules of delight' in the cocktail glass, it does banish them from soda confections.

"But there is still savor in the soda fountain menu. The consumer has lost nothing—he is the gainer. The cherry is still the crowned king of the sundae. But it is an American cherry, without foreign savor and without entangling alliances. The soda fountain cocktail will now be in name as well as in fact a purely temperance beverage, healthful, luscious, satisfying, and not owing either zest or vogue to the distillate of some foreign province, from fruit gathered by underpaid peasants, and handled and sold under conditions which would disgust the purveyors and purchasers of such products as have made soda water the American National beverage, and have won their way into the respect and affection of foreigners on their native soil."

TO HEAR UNTERMYER TO-DAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—It was announced this afternoon by Chairman Henry of the House Committee on Rules that the appearance of Samuel Untermyer of New York before that committee to-morrow morning on the Lindbergh resolution for an investigation into the so-called "Money Trust" would not be as a witness, but for the purpose of submitting a statement in the nature of an argument. Mr. Henry said that Mr. Untermyer had expressed a preference not to appear before the committee, and had, in fact, declined to do so on the ground that unauthorized reports have been spread linking his name with the investigation, with which he had, in fact, no connection whatever.

Mr. Henry added that it was never contemplated that Mr. Untermyer should be asked to appear as a witness or to furnish testimony, but that Mr. Untermyer had responded to the summons to appear before the committee for the public good.

BIG BUSINESS IN STEEL.

Republic Compares with Its Best in Volume, but Prices Never So Low.

The report of the Republic Iron and Steel Company for the six months ended Dec. 31 compares in volume of business with the best previous period in the company's history, but as the summary submitted to stockholders points out the average prices for shipments were the lowest in the company's experience. An encouraging item in the report is that "substantial reductions in costs were generally effected, and present operations reflect greater efficiency and lower costs than at any previous date in the history of the company."

In actual figures the net earnings after deducting charges for maintenance and repairs, amounting to $737,501, were $1,470,812, compared with $1,951,454 in the same period of 1910. In 1910 the maintenance and repair charges were $56,871 less. After allowances for mineral exhaustion, depreciation, and renewal of plants, net profits for the six months were $1,168,110, against $1,558,731 in 1910. The allowances in the past six months were $130,977 less than in 1910. The report says:

While full maintenance charges have been made, some reduction in depreciation charges was thought proper in view of previous liberal allowances on this account. All provisional funds, however, have been fully maintained. The net profits applicable to dividends are $798,772.31, and the net surplus as of Dec. 31, 1911, is $5,286,218.16.

Speaking of low prices and increased volume of business, the report says:

"The shrinkage in values indicated is the natural result of the restricted demand, incident to disturbed conditions of general business. The increase in gross volume of business we obtained is due entirely to additions to our capacity and to greater diversity of products manufactured. Had it been possible to have operated the works to full capacity, a substantial increase in volume of business would have resulted.

All important new additions or extensions to works mentioned in previous reports have now been completed. The last of the improvements authorized were the 90-inch plate mill and the 14-16-inch continuous merchant mills, and these mills were placed in operation during the month of December, 1911.

Deductions from working capital on account of new construction during the six months increased the capital assets by $1,343,865, leaving the balance of net working assets as of Dec. 31 at $12,510,213.

LONG HOURS, HARD WORK.

Laundry Worker Tells Experience at Meeting of Consumers' League.

One of the striking women laundry workers was present at the annual meeting of the Consumers' League yesterday to tell of the laundry conditions as she knows them. She was Sarah Smith, a worn-looking woman, who said she had been doing laundry work for the last twenty-five years, and she showed the strain of it, in spite of a new, long velour coat in which she had dressed up in honor of her public appearance.

Sarah is one of the piece workers, and she makes better wages than the girls who are paid by the week, but the hours are strenuous. She told the women that on Monday of each week she went to work at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and worked until 1 o'clock that night. She was up and at work again the next morning at 7:30, working again until 1 o'clock. Wednesday it was the same—the three hard days in the week. The latter part of the week the hours are shorter, and Saturday she was free. She stated that she worked from seventy-five to eighty-five hours under hard pressure the greater part of the time. Younger girls working by the week, she said, had hours daily from 7:30 in the morning until 9:30 and 10 o'clock in the evening.

The woman's story was told in a few concise words, and in conclusion she said with plaintive directness:

"And so we are out for a shorter day, better pay, and better sanitary conditions, and God knows we need it."

Mrs. Frederick Nathan in her annual report told of the investigations made by the league, which showed that reforms were greatly needed, in addition to guarded machinery.

The league has also been waging a war against cellar bakeries. Henry Moskowitz was one of the speakers on this subject at yesterday's meeting.

State Senator Robert F. Wagner, who was to have spoken, was detained in Albany. In a letter of regrets he said that he was in sympathy with the work of the league, as were many of his colleagues.

There was an exhibit of articles of tenement house manufacture after the meeting, and the system of work was explained with a lantern slide talk. The meeting was held in the Ethical Culture Meeting House, Sixty-fourth Street and Central Park West.

PURSUE FONCIER AMERICAINE.

American Creditors File Bankruptcy Petition and Get New Receiver.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States Court yesterday against the Société Crédit Foncier Americaine, which had an office at 27 William Street, and which was organized to trade in real estate in the United States and to sell bonds in France. The petitioning creditors are Isabelle MacNabb, $1,500; Samuel Gordon, who holds an assigned claim of $100, and Jeanne Shibley, $2,000, all on debenture bonds.

It is alleged that the corporation is insolvent and removed a large part of its assets. Walter L. Butler of Wilmington, Del., was appointed receiver in November last by the Chancery Court at New Castle, Del., and admitted the insolvency. Liabilities of the bank are given as $50,000. The assets are not stated. Judge Hough appointed William Lesser receiver.

It was charged that since the appointment of Mr. Butler nothing had been done toward collecting the assets. It was asserted that in the application made for the appointment of Mr. Butler bonds and stocks to the total amount of $200,000 had been wrongfully disposed of.

In the application filed yesterday it was alleged that the corporation had not been organized in good faith, but was really organized to float a stock and bond scheme. Most of the creditors are in France, and it was declared that the French creditors are clamoring for their money.

On Aug. 8 a warrant was issued at Paris for the arrest of Marius Jean, the Paris manager of the Société Crédit Foncier Americaine, and on that day the police of that city raided the Paris offices. Previously the police had searched the homes of the Directors in Paris and had seized all of the bank's papers.

Since its organization, the police said, the bank had issued bonds to the extent of about $10,400,000, its method of doing business being to exchange shares of the bank for rents and other high class securities, but as the bank shares were not quoted on the Bourse the holders were unable to dispose of them and the bank refused to take them back. The bank professed to own 2,000,000 acres of oil and mineral lands in Virginia in addition to other real estate in France and the United States. In reply to a cable message the Attorney General of Delaware said that he had made an investigation, the result of which was not reassuring.

OUR INCREASING LUXURIES.

Imports of This Nature Show a Remarkably Rapid Growth.

Some new light is thrown upon the increased cost of living when it is remembered that $20,000,000 worth of perfumeries, cosmetics, and other articles of this character were imported into and exported from the United States in the last dozen years, and more than $2,500,000 worth of it in the single year 1911. Speaking of the rapid growth of this industry The Practical Druggist in its current issue says:

"This rapid growth indicates the increasing disposition of the citizens of the United States to draw upon all parts of the world for comforts and conveniences and of the citizens of foreign countries to look to the United States for articles of higher grade of manufacture and luxuries.

"France supplies by far the largest part of our imports of the class under discussion. Of the $1,500,000 worth of articles classed as 'perfumeries, cosmetics, and toilet preparations' imported in 1911, $1,333,333 worth came from France; Germany and England, ranking next as sources of supply, but far below France, the total from Germany being $53,450 and from England $52,199."

SAYS BOSTON'S TRADE IN EXPORTS SUFFERS

Due to Having the Same Differential as New York, Its Counsel Contends.

WANTS BALTIMORE'S RATE

That City and Philadelphia, He Says, Divert Trade from Boston Through Favorable Differentials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The full effect of the differential fight before the Inter-State Commerce Commission, with five competing cities either seeking advantage or a maintenance of the present export inland freight rate, was shown to-day when Boston abandoned its issue with New York and began its fight to get the same export rate enjoyed by Baltimore.

This has resulted, in the opinion of counsel representing respective interests, in sidetracking New York's entire fight for equality with the other cities, and places Baltimore and Philadelphia in the position of struggling for a continuance of the present differential on exports as well as making permanent the status quo decision on imports imposed in May last year.

Philadelphia cannot fail to get the same relative freight advantages should the present rates be disturbed, because of the Boston contention that the placing of Boston on the same basis with New York on the export inland rate has caused that port to lose business. Should the differential be changed, authorities say that Philadelphia would necessarily obtain a lower rate than at present. Judging by the frequent questions of Commissioner Clarke, it is not likely that the differential will be altered.

Boston's case, as outlined by W. S. Hamill, counsel for the Chamber of Commerce, is that the placing of that city on the same basis as New York has forced trade, which has gone from that port to Baltimore and Philadelphia by reason of the three-cent and two-cent differential enjoyed by these respective cities over Boston and New York. Boston seeks to be placed on the same export freight rate basis as Baltimore, and wants the New York rate to remain the same as at present.

The Baltimore rate is 3 cents below New York on first-class freight, while Philadelphia's on the same class is 2 cents below New York. On flour Baltimore is 2 cents below New York and Philadelphia 1 cent. On grain Baltimore has a differential of 1½ cents below New York and Philadelphia a one-cent differential. On the grain lake traffic Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore have a differential of three-tenths of a cent over New York.

Baltimore, which will present its side of the contention to-morrow, will try to show why the present differential should be maintained and will demand in addition that the grain lake differential be eliminated so far as Boston is concerned. Because of the phase the dispute has taken by the change of front of Boston, Baltimore may virtually abandon its lake differential battle and seek to have the present import differential retained.

Mr. Neall declared that the ocean rate was not fixed, and that New York had a better rate by 4 cents on flour to Liverpool than the other cities. He said that the steamships did not want shipments from Baltimore to Hamburg, and made a very heavy charge to that city above the New York rate.

It was suggested by Mr. Neall to the commission that the differential fight could be settled if the commission injected itself into the ocean rates.

"We would probably get drowned if we did. We have no authority under law to do so," replied Commissioner Clarke.

Mr. Neall said that the rate of flour from Minneapolis to Liverpool through Boston was 1 cent cheaper than the inland freight rate from that city to Boston. He then took up the rate on steel rails and showed by his tables that the Pennsylvania Railroad carried steel rails for export for nothing from a point beyond Harrisburg to New York. This, he said, was a disadvantage to Philadelphia.

David O. Ives, representing the Chamber of Commerce of Boston, presented figures to show that Boston was falling off in exports. He said that this was due to the differential operating against that port.

The trade which had previously gone to that port, he said, was being divided between Philadelphia and Baltimore. He said that every other port had made a relative increase, while Boston was making a relative decrease in its foreign commerce.

In reply to a question from Commissioner Clarke, whether the ocean rate did not equalize conditions, Mr. Ives said that the ocean rates were not always the same, and that Boston always got the worst of the situation.

"We cannot do business with the rate the same as New York," Mr. Ives added, "and we claim that from geographical and other reasons we should have the same inland rate as Baltimore."

"Has the differential diverted flour exports from Boston to Philadelphia and Baltimore?" asked Mr. Patterson.

"Yes, in large amounts," Mr. Ives replied.

"It is fair, then, to reason that the elimination of the differential would remove the present business of Baltimore and Philadelphia?" asked Mr. Patterson.

"Not necessarily. These cities would retain some of their business," said Mr. Ives.

MORE STORES FOR DR. PETERS

To Open Two Groceries for the Poor in Brooklyn Next Week.

The Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters, pastor of the Pilgrim Church in Harlem, who is going into the grocery business for the benefit of the poor, and with the avowed object of eliminating the middleman's profit, went marketing yesterday, preparatory to opening his first store at 443 East 123d Street at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Dr. Peters said last night that he had under consideration establishing stores in all the congested sections of the city, and that he would begin to branch out next week by opening a store in South Brooklyn and one in East New York.

"Accompanied by Louis Steinfeld and George A. Limber," Dr. Peters said last night, "we covered the market and big supply houses yesterday and found out that we can sell much better stuff at half the price now charged in the grocery stores. We bought apples at 2.75 a barrel which generally retail at from 40 to 50 cents a dozen; we got potatoes at $3.30 a bag, and cabbages, carrots, and other necessities at correspondingly low prices. I also found out to-day that the market in New York, because of a combination, is closed against the farmers who cannot sell direct to the stores.

"Fresh eggs are to be had in Franklin County this very day at 30 cents a dozen, but the farmers can't sell, and there are creameries with butter and milk for sale that are also barred. We are not going into the butter and milk business right away, but we expect to do so soon, and when we do we will buy direct from the farmers.

"The stores in Brooklyn, which are to be opened next week, have been given to me rent free by Mr. Steinfeld, and I am getting encouragement from all sides. Many rich men have come to me to-day and offered to help in the work."

YONKERS COMMUTERS' PLEA.

Ask Public Service Commission to Lower New York Central Rates.

The commuters of Yonkers, represented by Mayor Lennon and counsel, appeared before Public Service Commissioners Stevens and Sague yesterday to protest against the passenger rates imposed by the New York Central Railroad. George S. Rice, an engineer, was the principal witness for the commuters, and L. E. Vosburg, General Passenger Agent of the railroad, appeared to defend the established rates.

Mr. Rice came well armed with commutation statistics for New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and other cities. He presented a comparative table of rates of twenty-three railroads. He said the Harlem Division of the New York Central charged the highest single-fare rates to a point within thirteen miles of New York.

When he had finished with New York Railroads, Mr. Rice called the attention of the Commissioners to the Boston commutation rates. He carefully unfolded large blue charts showing the details of suburban transit there, but he was stopped short by Mr. Stevens.

"If you go into conditions in Boston," said the Commissioner, "you will make this hearing interminable. Conditions are different in all large cities. You can't compare Boston with San Francisco or New York with Chicago. You might as well try to bring in Berlin and St. Petersburg."

"Cities should offer equal advantages in transportation," said one of the counsel for the commuters, "or one will outstrip the other."

"Then," replied Mr. Stevens, "a line which cost $1,000,000 to build must conform to the rate which might give a profit to a line which cost only $100,000? Is that your argument?"

"That is what Massachusetts has done."

"Well," returned Mr. Stevens, "New York has never done so, and I don't believe New York ever will. Railways are entitled to a reasonable return on investment."

ENGINEERS WANT INCREASE.

Locomotive Men to Ask New York Central for 25 Per Cent. Raise.

A delegation of locomotive engineers of the New York Central Railroad will come to this city to-day to frame a demand which will be submitted to the officials of the railroad asking for a 25 per cent. increase in wages. The conference is part of a general movement now under way on all roads east of Chicago and north of the Ohio River.

The engineers say their wages are too low to meet the increase in the cost of living which has taken place in the last two years. Negotiations were begun several days ago between representatives of the New York Central and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, but no decision has yet been reached. It is to further the demand made at that time that to-day's conference was decided upon.

Two months ago a similar demand for an increase in wages was made by engineers on all of the railroads west of Chicago, with the result that a readjustment of the wage scale was made and the requests of the men granted. The Western engineers now receive 25 per cent. more than the men employed on Eastern roads. In the East the average wage of a locomotive engineer is $4.14 a day of 100 miles on passenger trains and $4.75 for a day of 100 miles on freight trains.

The trainmen and conductors of the New York Central, on the division east of Baltimore, have opened negotiations with the officials seeking a change in working conditions. The desired changes, the men say, have been made necessary by reason of the numerous changes of schedule in the last year. There is no demand for an increase in wages.

TRUSTS AT LOW EBB.

Responsible for Resentment Against Capital, Says Thurlow W. Barnes.

The United Society of the Civil War held its third annual meeting and dinner last night in Delmonico's. Previous to the dinner a resolution was adopted thanking Col. Henry Hersey Andrews, the retiring President and organizer of the society. Walter S. Morton, son of Oliver P. Morton, the war Governor of Indiana, presided.

Thurlow Weed Barnes answered the question, "Is there a higher law than the Sherman law?" He said the whole country is paying the accumulative penalty for turning a deaf ear to the better angles of our nature, and while he pointed out that the trusts are the logical embodiment of industrial progress, the management of trusts has sunk to a low ebb and is to blame for much of the resentment against capital. He added that the trusts should be restrained, especially from interference with the conduct of administration.

Mr. Barnes said he wished there was a man as calm as Seward or Lincoln or Grant here to-day to cope with the trust situation.

The other speakers were: Rev. Allen D. Carlile, son of S. O. Carlile, war Senator from West Virginia; J. F. Houtchins of West Virginia and Charles E. Hamlin, grandson of Hannibal Hamlin, Vice President with Lincoln.

Gen. Walter S. Morton was elected President.

CITY CLUB TO ALDERMEN.

Asks Them to Pass the Ordinance Regulating Motion Picture Shows.

The City Club has written to the Aldermen requesting favorable action on the ordinance relating to motion-picture shows now before the board, and which embodies recommendations made by the Mayor's committee. Three items are pointed out as being especially desirable for the public good. The first relates to increasing the seating capacity from 300 to 600. This, says the club's letter, will enable profitable motion-picture enterprises to be conducted in entire accordance with the code, eliminating moral and physical hazards which now exist. The second has to do with the requirements as to construction, ventilation, and heating, and the third to concentration of responsibility.

"Responsibility for the enforcement of the proposed ordinance, if enacted," says the letter, "will rest upon the License Bureau, and its action and the action of various city departments with regard to motion-picture shows will all be made a matter of record."

Lynchburg Bond Issue Sold.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Jan. 25.—The Lynchburg Council Finance Committee to-day awarded the entire issue of $550,000 4½ per cent. thirty-four-year bonds to Townsend, Scott & Son of Baltimore at .583 above par. A representative of that firm stated the bid was made jointly by his firm and Breed & Harrison of Cincinnati.

TOBACCO COMMON LISTED ON EXCHANGE

VALUES NEAR OLD FIGURES

When Trust Dissolved Its Stocks Were Worth $211,989,360—Its Parts To-day Are $196,063,603.

American Tobacco common stock, the amount of which is $40,242,400, was listed yesterday on the Stock Exchange. It opened at 250 and closed at 260. Before the reorganization the stock was dealt in on the Curb, and its listing on the Exchange followed the distribution of its holdings in its subsidiary companies. It also followed the listing in the last few days of its preferred stock, and the stock and bonds of the P. Lorillard Company and the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, which were created by the transfer of part of the plants and business of the parent company.

The preferred stock of the American Snuff Company, a former subsidiary, and the common and preferred stock of the Weyman-Bruton Company and the George W. Helme Company, corporations created in the same way by the division of the business of the American Snuff Company, were also listed yesterday on the Exchange.

No particulars of its assets and business were given in the application for listing American Tobacco common, these having been fully set forth when application was made for listing its preferred stock. The American Snuff Company gave its manufacturing tangible assets retained after conveyances to the Helme and Weyman-Bruton Companies as $8,223,590; trade marks, brands, &c., $10,126,096, and investment securities $2,620,843, a total of $20,980,428. The value of sales in 1910 on the business retained was $5,520,422. The earnings on the business retained were $1,591,280, and the income from investment securities, $176,680, a total of $1,767,960. The amount of the preferred issue is $4,000,000.

The Weyman-Bruton Company listed $4,000,000 common and $4,000,000 prefered. Manufacturing tangible assets, including stock in the De Voe Snuff Company and the National Snuff Company, Limited, is given as $3,691,588, trademarks, brands, &c., $4,308,412, a total of $8,000,000. The sales for 1910 were $4,297,487, and the net income $1,293759.

The Helme Company listed $4,000,000 common and $4,000,000 preferred stock. The manufacturing tangible assets are given as $4,909,000, trademarks, brands, &c., $3,091,000, a total of $8,000,000. Sales in 1910 were $4,494,557, and net income $1,259,281.

With the appearance of many of the new issues on the Stock Exchange preceded by trading "when issued" for some time on the Curb, brokers have begun figuring the values of the shares which now represent the properties formerly held by the American Tobacco Company as compared with the value of the American Tobacco stock before the disintegration was effected. While the new shares have been rising in the recent course of the market, they do not yet aggregate the value set on the shares of the American Tobacco Company, with subsidiaries included, in the trading just before the distribution of the shares of the subsidiaries.

The following table shows the present prices of the shares of the former subsidiaries and of the new companies formed out of the business of the American Tobacco Company, fractions being eliminated, the number of shares that were held by the American, and the total value of these shares at the prices quoted:

	Price.	Shares.	Total.
American Snuff com.	130	75,908	$9,[illegible]
American Snuff pf.	108	23,764	2,[illegible]
George W. Helme Co.	160	27,002	4,[illegible]
Weyman-Bruton Co.	170	27,602	4,[illegible]
MacAndrews & Forbes	170	21,129	3,[illegible]
J. S. Young Co.	175	7,043	1,[illegible]
Conley Foil	260	4,950	1,[illegible]
Johnston Tin Foil	135	1,800	[illegible]
Reynolds Tobacco Co.	188	50,000	9,[illegible]
United Cigar Stores	192	60,000	11,520,000
Porto-Rican-American	230	13,236	3,044,280
British-American	17	2,330,012	39,610,904
American Tobacco com.	260	402,424	104,630,240

As against this total of $196,063,603, the value of the 401,824 shares of American Tobacco outstanding at the time of the distribution, figured at 515, the price prevailing early his month was $211,989,360.

BUTTER INQUIRY SUBPOENAS.

Six Members of the Mercantile Exchange to Face Grand Jury.

Assistant District Attorney De Ford took the first step yesterday in the investigation ordered by District Attorney Whitman of the charge that the prices of butter in New York are fixed. He subpoenaed six members of the New York Mercantile Exchange to appear with their records and books before the Grand Jury next Tuesday. Mr. De Ford received instructions to start an inquiry similar to the investigations of the prices of poultry and ice. The fact that the price of butter has recently been as high as 57 cents a pound, and the scheme for boycotting the city markets suggested by Mrs. Julian Heath of the Housewives' League, led Mr. Whitman to institute an investigation.

The members of the Mercantile Exchange who have been subpoenaed are E. E. Martin, President; S. M. Knopp, Secretary, and W. G. French, Treasurer. Patrick Quinn Foy and L. Frank Barry of the firm of Urner & Barry, 175 Chambers Street, will also be witnesses. The Mercantile Exchange officers are instructed to bring with them records showing the names of persons, firms, or corporations which were members of the Exchange in 1910 and 1911, and of the members at the present time. Also the books containing the records of the quantities of butter and eggs offered for sale in this Exchange under the rules and regulations in 1911, and the month of January, 1912; the book recording the sales of butter and eggs under the same rules will also be brought.

The Central Council of the Housewives' League, which, under the guidance of Mrs. Julian Heath, has been waging a boycott war to lower the price of butter, held a meeting yesterday and decided on further action. Dr. Arthur Randolph Greene said that butter was as great a carrier of tuberculosis and typhoid as milk, and that the present agitation offered an occasion to arouse the public conscience on this point.

"This much at least can be said of the butterine preparations," said Mrs. Heath, "that they are made from sterilized substances, whereas no one seems to think of sterilizing the milk that is made into butter. It is Dr. Greene's opinion that only certain grades of milk should be used for butter."

Acting on the suggestion of Mrs. Heath the Council will to-day send a letter to Commissioner Lederle of the Board of Health, requesting that the analysis of milk now in force be extended to butter.

"There is no doubt," said Mrs. Heath, "that certain substitutes of butter are hygienically safer than much that passes for butter in our retail shops."

Mrs. Heath said that while the commission merchants' price of butter has materially fallen in the last few weeks, many retailers persist in charging 57 cents and 60 cents a pound, relying on the women's ignorance of the reduction.

"It is the purpose of our publicity methods," she said, "to advise the housewives of the city that the retailers no longer have any excuse for selling butter at more than 45 cents a pound."

The league has written to the Department of Agriculture requesting that a bulletin be issued which will deal thoroughly with breakfast foods, for which it is believed exorbitant prices are asked.

SILK TRADE REFORMS.

Scheme to Control Overproduction Among the Plans Discussed.

Several reforms are being considered by leaders in the silk trade here. One is that a complaint bureau be maintained at the office of the Silk Association of America, Broadway and Broome Street, where complaints may be lodged by any member against any buyer whose character or credit is not what it should be. A news bureau, with a publicity department, is also advocated.

Perhaps the most important reform under discussion is a method to control over-production and the consequent periodic depression of prices. It has been suggested that a board be appointed which would collect up-to-date statistics of production and be able to foretell a glutting of the market. Each manufacturer would be bonded to obey the orders of the board.

ST. PAUL DIVIDEND CUT TO 5 PER CENT.

No One Surprised, as the Action Taken by the Directors Had Long Been Expected.

EARNINGS FELL OFF HEAVILY

Not Enough to Meet a 7 Per Cent. Dividend Without Drawing on the Surplus—Prospects Not Disclosed.

The expected happened at yesterday's meeting of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Directors when a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent. was declared in place of the customary 3½ per cent., putting the stock on a 5 per cent. basis. It had been predicted before every meeting of the board in the past three years that this reduction would be made. The cut will lessen the road's dividend requirements by $2,135,000 a year.

Wall Street had accepted the cut from 7 per cent. as a foregone conclusion. Many persons believed that influential Directors had deliberately gone about the task of preparing the public mind for yesterday's action by letting it become known weeks ago that unless earnings should show a sudden upward turn there would be no excuse for maintaining the old rate. That earnings were not displaying any improvement has been extensively advertised since then. For the first five months of the new fiscal year, which is the latest period for which figures are obtainable, the St. Paul's gross revenues of $28,045,000 were less by $2,069,000 than the earnings for the corresponding five months of the year previous. Expenses and taxes were reduced to a slight degree, but not enough to prevent the net earnings at the end of November from showing a decrease of $1,871,264.

It was an open question until a few months ago whether the St. Paul board would make a readjustment of its dividend rate at this time or make up any deficiency in the current earnings out of the surplus carried from previous years, when railroading was more profitable. It has long been evident that the company would either have to adopt this expedient or reduce its payments, for revenues have been running behind last year's, and it was only by making an unusual shift in credits from the Puget Sound to the St. Paul that the latter was able to show a surplus sufficient for paying its dividend last year. As it was, the balance in 1911, after the 7 per cent. disbursement, was only $125,000, although there was included in "other income" an extraordinary credit of more than $5,000,000 received as dividends on stocks owned, most of which came in the form of accumulated profits on the Puget Sound. In the first five months of the current year the Puget Sound has had net earnings which were not sufficient for meeting five months' share of the year's fixed charges, so that it was evident that the St. Paul could not hope for a repetition of the Puget Sound's assistance in 1912.

Yesterday's action was well received in the financial district. Bankers and others concerned in the St. Paul's welfare believed that the road's position would be materially helped by a reduction in its dividend, and little surprise was expressed when it was learned that the rate had been reduced. Although the board went into session at 2 P. M., one of the Directors intimated that no announcement would be made until after the close of the market. The meeting broke up at just 3 o'clock. A large crowd of reporters had gathered in anticipation of a statement from William Rockefeller, but he limited himself to the expression of a regret that he had not missed the reporters. When John D. Ryan came out he was besieged with requests for an opinion on the St. Paul's future. Mr. Ryan returned to the board room to see if President Earling cared to make a statement. Mr. Earling did not, and Mr. Ryan hastened back to the Amalgamated Copper offices.

The St. Paul has been a dividend payer off and on since 1867. In 1893 and 1894, after a lapse of four years, it paid 4 per cent. In the year following this was reduced to 2 per cent., but 5 per cent. was paid again in 1896. In each of the next four years the dividend remained at 5 per cent., and in 1901 it was again increased to 6 per cent. From 1902 to date 7 per cent. has been paid without interruption.

The Puget Sound was completed in the Summer of 1909. Business has not been as good in the Northwest since the panic as it was when the new Pacific extension was authorized, and the new line has not developed traffic as rapidly as had been expected.

PENNSYLVANIA RAIL ORDER.

Total of 150,000 Tons Will Be Required This Year.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—The Pennsylvania Railroad to-day announced that it had placed an order for 150,000 tons of steel rails for the lines, east and west of Pittsburgh, for delivery the present year. This is about the same amount as was contracted for last year.

While railroad officials decline to discuss the price, it is believed to range from $28 to $33 a ton, the highest quotation being for rails of specific character.

It is understood that the bulk of the order goes to the Cambria Steel Company and the Pennsylvania Steel Company, which are allied with the railroad, but that the Steel Corporation will make part of them.

Promotions in Nassau Bank.

Several promotions in the executive staff of the National Nassau Bank were announced yesterday. N. D. Alling, Assistant Cashier, was elected a Vice President. Gilbert Thomas, assistant to the President, was elected Assistant Cashier to succeed Mr. Alling, and A. W. Gilbart was moved up from the position of Loan Clerk to that of Assistant Cashier.

Mr. Alling has been connected with the bank about twenty-four years. He has been prominent in the affairs of the American Institute of Banking, having been President of the New York Chapter in 1904 and National President of the institute in 1909-10.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

All Grains Rule Strong—Cotton Holds Steady, Coffee Quiet.

Wheat was very steady, despite easier foreign markets and liberal receipts, with more talk of light reserves both Northwest and Southwest. Corn and oats continued their upward movement. Profit-taking sales were well absorbed, and bulls seemed encouraged by the cash situation. Provisions reacted under realizing. Cotton maintained a steady undertone, with dry goods advices generally more encouraging and the foreign trade situation also good. Weather at the South still favorable, but hedging is not heavy.

Coffee shows little feature, the valorization sale not differing greatly from expectations.

WHEAT.

The market was very firm all the session, closing at a small gain in American markets generally. Foreign markets were quiet and easier, both English and Continental. The Argentine market was slightly higher. There was an absence of export business reported, although the claim is still made that the export demand for Manitoba wheat is still good. The official estimate of the Argentine crop placed the total at 170,824,000 bushels, against 139,625,000 bushels last year, but the quality is inferior and the movement is delayed, as shown by an estimate of only 240,000 bushels for Argentine shipments this week, against 3,360,000 bushels last year. The Price Current report stated that the promise of the American Winter wheat crop was not essentially changed; it claimed, however, that a heavy snowfall would benefit the entire region. Receipts of wheat in the Northwest continue on a liberal scale, and the primary movement in four days shows 700,000 bushels gain. Fear, however, that the estimate of only half as much wheat in farmers' hands as last year might be correct prevented any pressure on the market. Cash wheat was generally higher, and offerings during the afternoon were small in all markets. A report on the crop of wheat in Oklahoma gave it as showing a very promising appearance. Cash wheat was firm, with No. 2 red quoted 103½, f. o. b.; No. 1 Northern, 121½; No. 2 hard Winter, 112¼, and No. 1 Manitoba, 114⅞.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—Trade was active, with the market strong, advancing to new high levels, and closing with a considerable portion of the advance maintained. Good speculative demand for futures, and a strong cash market stimulated demand, and prices were further influenced by pronounced strength in oats, and reports of good demand for all feedstuffs. Receipts were again very liberal, showing a gain of 1,100,000 bushels in four days at Western points, but this has been nearly offset by a large gain in shipments. Export demand was curtailed by the advance, and no business was reported. The Argentine crop available in Europe by midsummer was officially estimated as 272,000,000 bushels, against 276,000,000 bushels last year. Cash corn was firm, with No. 3 quoted at 73c, elevator, export; steamer, 72½c; No. 2, 72¾, free on board.

OATS.—New high levels for the movement were made in the oats market, and prices were very close to the previous high record for the season. The advance in the market was stimulated by continued large speculative demand and strong cash markets. Receipts, while showing some increase compared with last week, still do not bring any pressure on the interior cash markets. Cash oats were very firm, with standards and No. 3 white 56¼c; No. 2 white, 56¾c.

PROVISIONS.

Trading in hog products was slow, with prices slightly easier. Hog receipts were somewhat smaller, 117,000 at all points, but the packing the past week, 875,000, was of record proportions, exceeding last year by 330,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

In sympathy with higher crude markets at the South, the tone of the local future market was distinctly firmer. There was buying credited to refiners in the near positions, which demand had a sympathetic effect on the deferred months. Speculative inquiry has not abated entirely, encouraged by the strength of feeding stuffs, while the easier lard market failed to induce much liquidation. Private authorities assert that offerings of seed are small, some claiming that this is due to prices with continued reference to the condition of the seed, while others are of the opinion that the favorable weather recently has not had its influence as yet. Crude quoted at 4.40 to 4.47 in the Southeast and valley.

COTTON.

The tendency of the cotton market was less decisive during the session, the list fluctuating within a radius of ten points, closing changes being devoid of significance. News was complex in character, and while bears emphasized their attitude with assertions that an upturn at this time is premature, tending to lessen the disposition to curtail acreage and conducive to good soil preparation, also calling attention to the large amount of unmarketed cotton at the South, their aggressiveness was not notable.

Advices from dry goods centres are not without contradiction, but in the main the reports coming to hand are encouraging. In some instances it is averred that mills are fairly well sold up and are refusing business for a few months hence, the inference being that expectations are for prices more remunerative. Against this is the talk of the continued prospects of stocks being maintained at a low ebb pending the Presidential election, settlement of the tariff schedule, and prospects of the new crop.

The Census Bureau report issued during the day was construed as slightly bullish. Manufacturers' stocks as of Jan. 1 were given at 1,332,000 bales, or 30,000 bales below those of last year. Inasmuch as prices have declined considerably, this was a surprise to many. The South, according to these statistics, consumed 825,000 bales to Jan. 1, against 765,000 bales last year, while mills in other States used 812,000 bales against 809,000 bales a year ago.

Liverpool advices yesterday accounted for the initial declines of from 2 to 5 points, but the volume of spot business there is still large, and cables relative to conditions at Manchester are optimistic. Undoubtedly the advance in the silver market has had much influence affecting purchases by India. Private cables were received confirming the unfavorable political situation in China. The Egyptian market yesterday advanced very sharply, which was thought to be partly in sympathy with the strength of Sea Island cotton, this having advanced about 7c per pound over the levels prevailing six weeks ago.

Weather conditions at the South are still favorable, and dispatches claiming that ginning and picking operations had been renewed at various points were numerous. The volume of hedge pressure is still comparatively light, however, and it has been pointed out that in some sections spot cotton has shown greater strength the past few weeks than the future market. Presumably the fulfilling of January commitments has been partly accountable for this, but in several quarters it is declared that new business has also been larger.

Exports yesterday were about 50,000 bales, making the total so far this season 6,490,000, against 5,275,000 last year. Official Southern spot advices were unchanged to ⅛c higher, and the local market unchanged, with middlings 9.65. New York warehouse stocks are 159,000 bales, against 284,000 last year. Intosight for the week was estimated at about 395,000 bales, against 352,000 last week and 243,000 a year ago, reflecting the larger movement resulting from the better weather.

COFFEE.

The report of the valorization sales failed to be much of a factor in the coffee market, sales amounting to only 52,000 bags. Prices were easy at times, but abroad were generally steady to firm, and values rallied late, closing steady at 1 point down to 2 points up. Havre, at one time ½ to ¾ francs higher, closed net unchanged to ¼ lower, while Hamburg advanced ¾ to 1¼ pfennigs. Rio was unchanged, and Santos unchanged to 50 reis higher.

Cost and freight offers from Brazil were in some cases slightly higher.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading Restricted, Though Bonds Are Active.

Curb trading was much restricted, and the loss of a number of the Tobacco issues helped to curtail the outside market's business. Interest centred in Chicago Elevated 5s, which, after rising from 98 13-16 to 99⅛, closed at 98⅞. Sales reported totaled $190,000. The coppers moved narrowly, many issues closing even with the opening levels.

Indifferent Day's Trading While Stock Exchange Awaited St. Paul Dividend.

RATE CUT TO 5 PER CENT.

Action Regarded as Conservative—Republic Iron and Steel's Showing—Rise in Foreign Exchange.

The Stock Exchange had no opportunity yesterday to reflect the action of the Directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul in reducing the dividend on the road's common stock from 7 per cent. to 5 per cent. It was after 3 o'clock when announcement of this action was made, and such influence as the St. Paul situation exerted was by way of effort on the part of traders to anticipate the result of the afternoon's meeting. St. Paul itself was strong, selling throughout the day above the closing price of Wednesday and ending with a fractional net gain. This did not necessarily reflect any dissent from the generally accepted view that the dividend would be reduced to 5 per cent., but may rather have resulted from short covering in expectation of the announcement, which at last came after the Stock Exchange had adjourned for the day. The earnings of the St. Paul in recent months had made it almost certain that the dividend would be reduced. This action does not, therefore, come as a surprise, nor is it necessary to look upon it as an indication of other similar reductions. It was doubtless more conservative to reduce the dividend than to draw on the company's resources for the payment of an unearned distribution on the common stock, and it is not necessary to go further than this to explain the action which the St. Paul Directors took. Doubtless, however, the cut in the St. Paul dividend will be looked upon as a public indication of the view of the future taken by the interests most closely identified with that property. Apart from any such consideration, the frank acceptance of the situation which confronted the St. Paul commends itself to conservative sentiment.

For the first time in many days Reading was only moderately active, and did not greatly overshadow the dealings in other parts of the list. There was, however, no expansion in trading in other issues, and the total for the day was correspondingly reduced. The strength of St. Paul exerted favorable influence on the general list, and for the most part the more active stocks closed at some net gain. The bond department was again very active. During the present apathy of the stock market the demand for bonds has been broadening, and large amounts have been absorbed by institutions and other investors. The $10,000,000 of Baltimore & Ohio equipment trust bonds were taken as quickly as they were offered. An indication of the extent of the present market for bonds is found in the ease with which large blocks have recently been placed. This week one international banking house placed in a single day over $6,000,000 of bonds in two or three large lots, suggesting the presence in the market of buyers whose requirements call for very large investments. The demand for New York City bonds has been particularly good, and some large blocks of these which had been held by dealers are understood to have been disposed of to investors. The possibility of a new issue of city bonds is under discussion in the financial district, but it is to be recalled in this connection that the change made in the law last year puts the city in a position to bide its time in placing bond issues and to seek the best possible market.

The semi-annual report of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, published yesterday, throws some interesting light on the results attained by this company during a half year in which its output was sold at the lowest prices in the history of the company. Its net earnings fell only a little short of the preferred dividend requirements, which must be regarded as a favorable result under the conditions which prevailed in the steel trade during the second half of 1911. As a suggestion of the position of independent steel manufacturers the report shows a very considerable degree of vitality in the elements upon which the country depends for healthy competition in the steel trade.

A further advance in sterling exchange rates yesterday, without, however, a corresponding degree of firmness in Continental exchange rates, suggested the flow of funds toward London, where money rates remain higher than in the other international markets. The weekly statement of the Bank of England showed a slight reduction in the proportion of reserves to liability, which now stands at 48.69. While a large amount of loans was repaid to the bank by the market after the first of the year, the market was again a borrower this past week, as is indicated by the increase of $6,500,000 in loans. Of our own loans abroad, particularly to Germany, some are being renewed, while others are being paid off, it being doubtful if any large net reduction in our advances to the foreign markets is being made. The low rates for money here, as well as the firmness of exchange, militates against the assumption that these foreign loans are being much reduced in the aggregate.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Atchison Earnings.

Few of the railroads have reported their December earnings yet, and, if the statement issued by the Atchison yesterday is a criterion of the general trend, they will not be eager to do so. The Atchison reports a decrease of $408,000 in the month's gross revenues and a loss of $294,000 in net, as compared with the total for December, 1910. For the first six months of the year the company reports a total decrease of $740,000 in gross earnings and a considerable increase in operating expenses, so that net revenues for the half year show a decrease of $2,332,000.

Delaying Bad News.

The St. Paul Directors always go into session at 2 P. M., and as there is a working quorum within a few rods of the board room, the meetings have usually been characterized by the promptness with which they were started. When the newspaper reporters began to arrive at the St. Paul offices yesterday one of the Directors let it be known that no announcement of the board's action would be made until after the close of the market. This was not known throughout the financial district generally, with the result that crowds hung anxiously over the tickers for the best part of an hour. Promptly after the striking of 3 o'clock the meeting ended with the announcement of a reduction. Commenting on this, a broker of long experience in Wall Street said that yesterday was the first time since 1888 that announcement of a St. Paul dividend had been kept back until after 3 o'clock. On the earlier occasion the board passed the 2½ per cent. payment which had been maintained for several years, and dividends on the common were not resumed till four years later.

Small Savings Gains.

It has been generally conceded that the past year has been one of economies, but as far as can be judged by savings bank returns these have been rather in the administration of commerce and industry than by individuals. A compilation of the returns to the State Banking Department of the savings banks of this State shows that the increase in deposits during the year was little greater than the amount of interest credited to depositors. The increase of $34,368,811 was a trifle more than 4 per cent. There has been no great complaint of lack of employment in the State in the year, and the disappointing showing of money put by seems to be attributable entirely to the advanced cost of necessities, which has made saving a hard problem to the wage earner.

Gary Directorates.

The story that Judge Gary would resign from all Directorates save that of the United States Steel Corporation was revived yesterday but received little credence. It is nearly four months since he got out of the boards of Allis-Chalmers and American Steel Foundries because of hostile criticism of his position on these boards as making him an "interlocking" Director. Since that time he has been re-elected to the Southern Railway Directorate and criticism of his position in the International Harvester board may be considered to have been silenced by testimony that the "Harvester Trust" does not buy from the Steel Corporation and has not been manufacturing the bulk of its own raw material for a number of years. The Erie Railroad is about the only other board of which Judge Gary is a member that could by any stretch be connected up with the Steel Corporation. His other Directorates are in banks and kindred institutions. There is still a possibility of criticism of Judge Gary's position in the Southern Railway Board. The independent iron and steel manufacturers in the South, who have organized to compel a reduction in freight rates to Ohio River points, have given publicity to the fact that the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, the Steel Corporation's subsidiary, was the only one of the makers of iron and steel in the South which did not join the convention at which a petition to the Inter-State Commerce Commission was drawn up. It was asked at the time if Judge Gary, as a Southern Railway Director, might not have had sufficient tenderness toward the railroad to call off his subordinates in the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company.

Tobacco Stocks on 'Change.

The transfer of many of the tobacco stocks from the Curb to the Stock Exchange, notably of American Tobacco common, resulted in a sudden accession of activity in these issues. Fluctuations were just as wide as has been characteristic in the Curb's market, and, in fact, these gyrations, unusual on the big board, were something of a spur to the gambling spirit. At any rate it was not a sudden investment demand which brought the day's trading in Tobacco common up to nearly 3,000 shares, where a few hundred made a good day's business on the Curb. The first sale was at 250. The price ran up to 261½ and closed at 260.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

As the time drew near for dividend action by the St. Paul Directors, the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange assumed more and more of a waiting character. Business early in the day had been quite active, with strength developing in several important sections of the list. The firmness displayed by St. Paul stock was construed favorably. That stock touched a high price of 109½, which was ¼ of a point above the high quotation attained on the New York Stock Exchange. Just at the close, when the action of the Directors became public, prices sold off, with Reading in particular breaking to 155⅝.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

PHILADELPHIA ELECTRIC UP

Record-Breaking Activity Puts Stock to New High Record—Irregular Prices in Chicago.

The market was listless and heavy in Baltimore. The bond demand slackened. United Railways incomes still lead in point of activity, but with small sales. There was an improved tone to the stock demand, but prices changed only fractionally up or down. Houston Oil preferred certificates sold well at a top figure of 71¼.

Beyond the upward movement in land stocks East Boston and Wollaston, and further advances in several minor copper shares, the Boston market was uninteresting. Trading was conducted on a small scale except in specialties, with a minimum of public participation. Offerings were also light, so that prices were well maintained, and arbitrage business appeared to favor the buying side in Steel, American Telephone, and a few others. New York was said to be a heavy buyer of East Boston shares on the way to 15, taking several thousand shares just under that price. Old Colony, Mayflower, Chino, Hancock, and Inspiration led the copper group.

There was an upward movement on the Chicago Exchange in Illinois Brick and Pneumatic Tool, the latter selling at 50. In Swifts and Title and Trust there was a steady undertone, while Diamond Match shares and Can preferred weakened. There were sales of Match debentures at 109½, Armour 4½s at 91⅝, Metropolitan 4s at 85⅛, and Chicago Elevated 5 per cent. notes at 98⅞@99. These notes, maturing in 1914, have become active after several months' neglect. Revival of interest is due to the merger prospects after the surface lines shall have been merged and expectation of satisfactory terms with the city. It is stated upon what appears to be reliable authority that no definite policy has been adopted regarding the resumption of dividends on Illinois Brick stock. It is understood that the annual report to be submitted Feb. 5 will compare favorably with the preceding year, after making allowances for the practical suspension of manufacture during the eight weeks' strike of brickmakers last Summer. Dividends were suspended last July, when the bankers recommended that the floating indebtedness, aggregating some $700,000, be materially reduced before any payment is attempted on the stock.

The buoyancy of Philadelphia Electric issues stimulated the whole local list in that city. Record breaking transactions were reported in the Electric stock, over 25,000 shares changing hands before the close, and the quotation establishing a new high level in the history of the company at 18⅝. Other strong spots were Lehigh Valley Transit and York Railways preferred, Philadelphia Company, Huntingdon, and Broad Top preferred, Pennsylvania Salt, Philadelphia Traction, and West Jersey and Seashore, all of which moved up on light purchases.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Stock Market Dull and Irregular—Prices of Americans Advance.

TONE IS WEAKER IN BERLIN

But Steady on the Paris Bourse—Supply of Money Short in London—Discount Market There Quiet.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 26.—The Times in its City article to-day says:

"Rates for day-to-day loans and short fixtures were unaltered yesterday. The tendency of the market was less stringent, and the business done by the Bank of England was much smaller than on Wednesday.

"Short bills were in rather better supply, but discount quotations hardly altered.

"A moderate amount of sovereigns was withdrawn from the Bank for India.

"The Bank return showed a large increase in the reserve, but a slight reduction in private deposits, although the market has been obtaining accommodation freely from the Bank during the week.

"In the stock markets interest centred in home railway stocks and a few industrial securities. American shares were hardly mentioned, but toward the close Wall Street sent buying orders for Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific. International Harvester notes were dealt in at 100¾.

"London General Omnibus stock fell 5½ and Underground income bonds ¾ on the news that an injunction had been asked for to restrain the companies from carrying through the proposed amalgamation."

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The supply of money was short to-day. Discount rates were quiet.

The stock market was dull and irregular. Home rails had a good tone on dividend reports, and the bank statement helped gilt-edged securities, but further realizing before the settlement weakened speculative issues.

American securities were quiet and steady during the forenoon. Prices advanced a fraction on light covering. Later in the session New York buying caused additional gains, and the improvement was held throughout the late trading. The closing was steady.

Money, 3½@3¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¾@3 13-16 per cent.; for three months' bills 3 11-16 per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.95; at Lisbon, 9.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 95f 27½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 26½c for checks.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Unfavorable American reports caused weaker prices on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 51½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 2 per cent.

What Better Assurance of the safety of the money you invest in the Public Utility bonds we offer can you have than the fact that we are co-investors with you, and that we devote our ability and experience as engineers and bankers to the conserving and developing of the properties in which you and we are jointly interested? Besides being thus strongly safeguarded, the bonds we offer yield a larger income than the majority of other high-grade issues. Moreover, the properties securing the bonds are constantly increasing in value as a result of improvements and extensions and the constant growth of the communities that they serve.

COLORADO MIDLAND OFFER.

Blair & Co. Deny It Is Made for Denver & Rio Grande.

Blair & Co. denied yesterday that they were seeking to acquire the half interest in the Colorado Midland which is now owned by the Colorado & Southern for the Denver & Rio Grande, owner of the other half of both preferred and common stock. It is understood a syndicate will take over the operation of the line after the formalities have been gone through, with the idea of developing its local business and so making it profitable.

The Rio Grande and the Colorado & Southern acquired the Midland in 1900 for joint use. Most of the Hill traffic is now being sent via Pueblo, and the Colorado & Southern decided that the smaller road had no future. The Colorado & Southern gave $1,021,000 for half of the $4,954,000 of preferred and $3,421,000 common stock of the Midland, and deposited its beneficial certificate as part of the collateral under its new refunding mortgage. Blair & Co. have offered the Colorado & Southern $150,000 for this stock, and, believing that the money is greater security than the shares, the Colorado & Southern has started a friendly suit against the trustee under the mortgage to compel it to assent to the proposed sale.

In the complaint the Colorado & Southern alleges that the Colorado Midland will default on its interest, in which case its stock would be rendered practically worthless. The syndicate believes this view is not justified, and that under different management the Midland might become profitable. It has not succeeded in earning enough for its fixed charges in recent years.

Watch Parts When Shipped Separately Are Held to be Entireties.

In overruling a protest filed by Leon Hirsch, the Board of United States General Appraisers holds that a machine or mechanism which is for all practical purposes a unit, though made of separable parts, which parts are shipped in separated condition, must be treated for duty purposes as an entirety. It is held that the parts necessary to form, when asembled, a number of complete watch movements, imported on the same vessel and covered by the same invoice, though packed separately, are for customs purposes entireties and classifiable as "watch movements," under the act of 1909, rather than as "parts of watches."

There were 144 complete watch movements in the shipment, which were returned for duty at 70 cents per movement, whereas the importer asked for a rate of 40 per cent., under the provision for "parts of watches." Judge Fischer says in his decision that where a machine or mechanism is for all practical purposes a unit, such as the goods in controversy, it is quite clear to the board that it must be treated as an entirety. It is held that it is by intention and use an entirety. On this point the decision says:

"While a watch part always remains 'parts of watches,' no matter whether it forms an integral part of a watch movement, and so falls under the general provision for watch parts, yet when all the parts accessory to make movements for watches arrive at the same time, their character as 'parts' has merged into the entirety, and they become for tariff purposes watch movements. The fact that some work must be done on several of the parts to properly adjust the mechanism of the watch movement does not militate against their consideration conjointly as watch movements. All articles when assembled to form machines must be fitted and leveled up to put them in proper running order."

EDUCATING COMPETITORS.

Some Cases in Which Trade Secrets Should Be Shared.

Educating one's competitors has been generally considered unwise in the past, but a more enlightened view is gradually gaining ground, due to the prevalence of ruinous price cutting. Pleading for a wider adoption of this modern method, the American Machinist in its current issue says:

"Anyone seeking information of any kind in the industrial field must have experienced the tenacity with which many firms hold on to anything in the way of special information. There are, however, certain features of industrial administration where secrecy is detrimental. Take for an easy example the question of costs.

"The man who bids ridiculously low, and thereby loses money, not only injures his own business, but he also injures every other man who is doing business on a safe basis, but who cannot obtain contracts on account of the foolish competition."

An important deal in a block hitherto restricted to private residences in the Sherman Square district of the west side will result, in the near future, in the addition of still another apartment house in the Seventy-second Street locality. The Campagna Construction Company, Anthony Compagna President, has purchased the four private residences from 231 to 237 West Seventy-first Street, on the north side of the block, between Broadway and West End Avenue. The combined parcel has a frontage of 70 feet and is 102.2 feet deep.

Irish House of Lords for Theatre.

The Eighty-sixth Street Theatre Company composed of D. S. Moss and Sol Brill was the buyer of the old 25 foot stable at 161 East Eighty-fifth Street sold yesterday at auction by Joseph P. Day. The place has long been known in Yorkville as the Irish House of Lords from the fact that for many years it was the headquarters of many local politicians for the discussion of municipal politics. The property was purchased by John Sheehy about half a century ago and he became a popular character in the neighborhood. The house was sold at partition for the benefit of the heirs. It is assessed at $14,000 and was bought by the theatre company for $16,550. The place will be altered into a moving picture and vaudeville house seating about 2,000 persons.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—There has been a general fall in pressure except in the Northeast. The North Pacific disturbance has moved to North Dakota, and another is approaching the Oregon Coast. There are also moderate depressions over the Carolinas and Northeastern Texas, but there was no precipitation of consequence over the country.

Low temperatures continue from the lake region and Ohio Valley eastward, but elsewhere, except in the South Atlantic States, they have risen generally, and in the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions are from 10 to 25 degrees above seasonal. Owing to the tendency toward falling pressure over the country the weather is likely to be unsettled during the next two days, except in the Northwest, with scattered snows and rains over interior districts.

It will be warmer Friday over the eastern half of the country, and warmer Saturday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England. It will be colder Friday night and Saturday in the Northwest.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate north; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate north and northeast; South Atlantic Coast, moderate, variable, except east on the North Carolina Coast.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have moderate north winds with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair, slightly warmer Friday. Saturday unsettled and warmer; moderate north and northeast winds.

New Jersey—Fair, slightly warmer Friday. Saturday unsettled and warmer; moderate north and northeast winds.

Southern New England—Fair Friday. Saturday unsettled and warmer; moderate north winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Unsettled Friday and probably Saturday; somewhat warmer; light to moderate north and northeast winds.

Northern New England—Fair Friday, warmer in west portion. Saturday fair, warmer; moderate northwest and north winds.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

John H. Reinwell, who is employed by the Commissioner of Bridges, is permitted by the Municipal Civil Service to change his name on the records of the Bridge Department to Henry Reinwald. He served during the civil war under the name of John H. Reinwell, and filed an application with the Municipal Civil Service Commission under such name in order to take advantage of the rights of veteranship.

The commission has disapproved the application of the Commissioner of Street Cleaning for the transfer of Arthur E. Hull from the position of automobile engineman in the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity to that of machinist in the Street Cleaning Department.

John A. Schwarting, a stenographer in the office of the Commissioner of Licenses, whose increase in salary, in connection with his proposed transfer as court stenographer to the City Magistrates' Court, was recently denied for the reason that he had never qualified for the third grade, has written to the Municipal Civil Service citing as a precedent the case of Arnold Wisch, who was appointed from the same eligible list, and whose promotion to a salary of $2,000 in the Court of Special Sessions was approved. Examiner Murray reported that it did not appear that it was the desire to increase the salary of Mr. Schwarting in the department in which he is employed, and therefore his case and that of Mr. Wisch were not parallel. The commission has approved Mr. Murray's report.

The commission has decided against the proposed increase in salary of John F. Lucke, Inspector of Masonry and Carpentry in the Bureau of Buildings, Manhattan, from $1,650 to $1,800 a year. It was certified that Mr. Lucke was the only person employed under that title in the public safety division of the department. The increase in salary is denied for the reason that the office title, "public safety division," is not a separate subdivision of the Bureau of Buildings.

The commission has approved the action of the Police Commissioner in granting full pay to Patrolman James C. B. Mullen, 276th Precinct, from July 22 to Oct. 14, 1911, during which time he was on the sick list as the result of injuries sustained in the course of duty.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on Feb. 20, at the New York Custom House, to fill a vacancy in the position of nautical expert at a salary of $1,000 a year in the Hydrographic Office, Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department. The salaries in this position range from $1,000 to $1,800 a year, promotion being dependent upon the occurrence of vacancies and demonstrated fitness of persons in the service. At the request of the Navy Department applications will not be accepted from persons who have not attended (for at least two years) a nautical school of no less a grade than the schools maintained upon the schoolships of Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania, or who have not served for at least three years on board vessels navigating either the Great Lakes or the ocean. Each competitor should bring to the examination room a nautical almanac for 1911 and a copy of Bowditch's "Useful Tables." If the use of these books is permitted in the examination this fact will be stated on the examination sheets. The use of Bowditch's "Complete Navigator" will not be permitted. The age limit is 20 years or over on the date of the examination.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Secretary Palmer of the Board of Education said yesterday that there was misunderstanding as to the real facts in regard to the case of Miss Frances Coffey of Haverstraw, who was appointed by the board at its meeting on Wednesday a first-grade clerk in the office of City Superintendent Maxwell to fill a vacancy at $300 a year. This low wage she will receive was denounced as outrageous by Mr. Maxwell and members of the board at the meeting. Mr. Palmer said yesterday that he made a requisition on the Municipal Civil Service Commission for a typist, and stated that there was only $300 available in the City Superintendent's office to pay her salary. The Municipal Civil Service Commission thereupon appointed from its list Miss Coffey, who was the highest on it, and who was willing to accept the position at the salary named. Under the civil service rules she cannot for the space of one year receive any higher pay, no matter what funds may become available in the City Superintendent's department. At the expiration of a year, however, her salary can be increased.

Henry A. Potter, who has been appointed by the Board of Education as Principal of the Bay Ridge High School, is a graduate of Harvard and a linguist. The school will be opened on Feb. 1. His appointment takes effect Jan. 25. Kate E. Turner has been appointed Principal of the Bay Ridge Evening High School.

Jan. 25, Feb. 2, and Feb. 9 have been set as dates for special registration for students desiring to enter the Harlem Evening High School for Women. The hours for registration are from 7 to 10 P. M.

Requests have come from some of the women teachers who are to be retired that the length of their service in the school be not made public. It appears that the publication of such information is a handicap to them in seeking other employment. In two of the cases, it is said, the teachers are to marry.

The Associate Superintendents held a meeting yesterday afternoon. It was said that only routine matters were considered. It is believed that no successor to District Superintendent John L. N. Hunt will be nominated until some time later. Mr. Hunt and the Principals and teachers who were retired by the Board of Education at Wednesday's meeting wanted their retirement postponed until Sept. 1, so that they might profit from legislation now pending to increase their annuities. The board, however, disregarded their appeals, and the retirement will date from Feb. 1.

POLICE BLAMED FOR AUTO DEATH TOLL

BUT THE LAW IS PUZZLING

St. Nicholas Avenue Resident Declares That Reckless Drivers Have Driven Children from Uptown Park.

Because of the deaths of the two boys, Patrick Fay, Jr., and Dominicus Mahler, both of whom were run down by automobiles on the upper west side within the last week, complaints against reckless drivers of motor cars have arisen in great number. At the same time there have appeared contradictory opinions among the police, the Magistrates, and the District Attorneys of Manhattan and Kings as to whose fault it is that these violations of the motor vehicle law occur, and even as to the law itself.

District Attorney Whitman, when asked about the law, replied that, although there have been contrary opinions held by the City Magistrates, the Callan law, which does not fix definite speed limits further than to say that a speed above thirty miles an hour will be taken for granted as reckless, is operative in New York City. District Attorney Cropsey of Kings, who has been in office since Jan. 1, said that he understood it was unsettled whether the city ordinance or the Callan law covered automobile speed in Brooklyn.

In the case of injury to a pedestrian the Magistrates deny responsibility for the enforcement of the law, as their only duty is to hold the offender for Special Sessions or the Grand Jury on a charge of assault or manslaughter, as the case may be.

"The trouble is really with the police," said another city official yesterday, defending the Board of Magistrates. "Commissioner Waldo, in his enthusiasm for the fixed post, has overlooked the necessity for guarding against these offenders. Before his time there used to be twenty or twenty-five motor cycle police along Pelham Parkway. Now you won't find two. They're off doing fixed-post duty somewhere, I suppose.

"That section of the Callan law which sought to require any driver of a car which had struck a pedestrian to give his name to the police has been declared unconstitutional on the ground that it violated the ancient common law axiom that you can't make a man testify against himself in a criminal action. But these cases of injury do not concern the Magistrates, for they go to the higher courts for trial. When the arrest is made the offender is always held by the Magistrate.

"There is a provision in the Callan law which permits the operation in cities of the first class of their own ordinances, whether 'heretofore or hereafter made,' and that provision has been accepted by the Magistrates as applying to the speed limits set down by the city. Of course, that city provision has never been enforced to the letter. Who would escape if it were? A Magistrate takes the circumstances into consideration, the time and the place and the conditions of the streets, but very few of those arrested by the police ever escape without a fine."

So at present the matter stands, with the police blaming the Magistrates and the Magistrates blaming the police for reckless driving, and a wide difference of opinion between the Magistrates and the District Attorneys as to what reckless driving is—whether it is eight, fifteen, or thirty miles an hour, or a matter to be determined by the circumstances.

District Attorney Cropsey is also inclined to place the responsibility for the enforcement of the laws against reckless driving up to the police. No case had come up to his office, he said, since he took charge Jan. 1.

"Unless the police make the arrests," he declared, "and unless the Magistrates hold the violators of the law for trial, I can do little. The terms of the Callan law seem to me to be capable of enforcement. Carelessness is capable of legal definition. In actual practice you would probably get a wide variety of verdicts."

A typical complaint against speeders in the upper part of Manhattan is the following, which comes to THE TIMES from a resident of St. Nicholas Avenue:

> Ever since the bicycle policemen have been removed from the upper part of the city automobilists have been making a speedway out of the upper end of St. Nicholas Avenue. It is just a mile from 125th Street to 145th Street, with but one cross street, which is located at 141st Street, and it is at this particular point that the lives of so many pedestrians are endangered. Although complaint after complaint has been made, little or no attention has been paid to the matter.
> St. Nicholas Park is also located in this vicinity, running along the west side of the avenue. This place was formerly crowded on pleasant days with children, nurse girls, and mothers, but since the "joy rider" has taken hold of the avenue there has been a marked falling off of children, and that which was a playground for little tots is now practically dead. Mothers and nurse girls with their children must content themselves with playing and walking on some other street.
>
> The racing is not confined to pleasure automobiles, but commercial vehicles play a prominent part in the day's sport and recklessness. The light delivery trucks which are used to a certain extent by department stores apparently are the chief offenders.
>
> The drivers of these vehicles seem to wait for a rival store car at 145th Street, going south, or at 125th Street, going north, and then challenge them for a race. As they near 141st Street they sometimes toot their horns, and again they don't. It depends entirely upon the intensity of the race.
>
> The residents in this vicinity are up in arms over the matter, and unless steps are taken to prevent the use of St. Nicholas Avenue as a speedway for automobiles a committee will be formed to watch the offenders and report the numbers of the vehicles to the automobile officials of this State.

The number of accidents where the driver of a car has escaped after striking and injuring a pedestrian is calculated by the National Highways Protective Association at from 20 to 26 a month.

FOR SOCIAL SERVICE WORK.

Permanent Conference of Hospital Heads Planned to Extend It.

Plans for a permanent conference on hospital social service in this city were completed last night at a meeting of hospital officials and social workers at the Academy of Medicine.

The conference is to be attended by delegates from all the hospitals in this city which have already installed social service departments in connection with their regular work of treating the sick. Delegates from such other organizations in the city as desire to assist in this work will also be recognized.

Dr. John Winters Brannan, President of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, was elected permanent Chairman of the conference. The conference, according to resolutions adopted last night, is to hold three meetings a year for the interchange of ideas. These meetings will take place in November, January, and April.

The purpose of the conference is to stimulate the growth of social work departments in all the hospitals of the city, and also to standardize the work of these departments after they have been established.

JADITE VASE SOLD FOR $620.

First Day of Yamanaka Sale at American Galleries Yields $4,065.

A vase 11½ inches high and 6 by 3 wide, fashioned from a flawless block of rock crystal, with wizard-like dragons carved in relief, ring handles supported by grotesque heads, and a pyramidal cover surmounted by a coiled dragon, went to a buyer giving the name of Frothingham at the Yamanaka sale at the American Art Galleries yesterday. The collection on sale is made up largely of jade, with carved objects of other hard stones. The first day's sale yesterday brought $4,065, the crystal vase bringing the highest price.

Col. Robert B. Woodward bought a beautiful jadite vase, green and white with tree peonies, magnolia blossoms, birds, and insects carved in relief, and loose ring handles with boldly carved flower supports, the cover surmounted with a Fu lion, or, as it is sometimes called, the dog Foo, for $620. This was 12½ inches in height, and a white jade vase 10½ inches high went to the same buyer for $550. It was ornamented with delicate relief carvings, similar ring handles, the same dog Foo on the cover, with an archaic dragon design in low relief.

A delightful imperial green jadite perfume jar with cover of gold, a piece of rose quartz set en cabochon in the cover, went to Mrs. C. B. Alexander for $350. This was a globular shaped jar, carved in delicate relief from a single block of the material with the highly prized emerald green mottling. The stand was of green nephrite. Mrs. Henry Clews paid $200 for a shallow water dish of greenish-white jade with grotesque mask and animal handles, a soft polish finish, and in the interior a pair of fishes carved in low relief, emblems of conjugal felicity. Another purchase by Mrs. Alexander was a large amethyst coupé carved in the design of a cluster of peaches, the cover also of the amethyst in the form of a duck and a lotus stem, a favorite symbol for a scholar's desk. This was $175.

Mrs. F. C. Havemeyer paid $100 for a white jade bowl with a cover, showing the design of the lotus flower with scrolls in low relief, the cover surmounted with a cluster of floral sprigs in pierced and undercut carving. A brilliantly polished duck cut from a single perfect piece of rock crystal went to Mrs. Fritz Achelis for $125. Mrs. W. Earl Dodge, Mrs. George B. Post and Mrs. F. F. Thompson were among the buyers. The sale continues this afternoon.

FEAR WORK AMID EXPLOSIVES

Girls Refuse 50 Per Cent. Wage Increase After Their Comrade's Death.

Special to The New York Times.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Jan. 25.—After an investigation to ascertain the causes of the explosion yesterday in the factory of the United States Cartridge Company, Coroner James J. Flynn issued to-day a statement completely exonerating the officials of the company from all blame. Capt. Thomas B. Doe, a graduate of West Point, who is the Superintendent of the factory, assisted the Coroner in his inquiry.

Less than half the usual number of employes appeared at the factory to report for work to-day, and of the hundred girls employed in the packing room, where the explosion occurred, only a baker's dozen reported. The company endeavored to bring back the frightened girls by offering an increase in the usual wage scale, but without success.

McCONNELL CONVICTED.

Lecturer Who Shot Wife Tells Court He Was Under Hypnotic Influence.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Jan. 25.—Andrew McConnell, author and lecturer on "Human Electricity" and kindred topics, was convicted before Judge John E. Foster to-day of attempting to kill his divorced wife, Marion Daniels McConnell.

McConnell told the jury that working from 8 o'clock A. M. to 12 o'clock midnight to save the afflicted of Chicago from graves of despair had produced an effect upon him that he could not explain, but he was certain that there was some mysterious hypnotic influence exerted over him that caused him to do things which he did not wish to do.

McConnell was remanded to the county jail for sentence next Thursday.

KILLED AS AN INFORMER.

Dead Man Found in Harlem Vacant Lot with Tongue Split.

Laborers on their way to work yesterday morning called the attention of Patrolman Taylor of the East 104th Street Station to the mutilated body of a man in a vacant lot at Pleasant Avenue and 108th Street. The man had been stabbed several times in the back. His face was cut to pieces and his tongue split. This the police said, indicated that he had been killed as an informer by members of some Italian secret society.

Police Raid on Barren Island.

Detectives Weyman, Blake, and Ryan of the Sheepshead Bay Police Station went by police launch last night to Barren Island. They raided the home of Charles Smalley, a boatman, and seized several thousand dollars' worth of silver, china, linens, and other household goods which they said had been stolen from Summer bungalows. They arrested Smalley and another inmate of his house, Frank Weinberg of Avenue I and Ninety-fourth Street, Canarsie, as suspicious persons.

GOOD PRICES AT GRIGSBY SALE

Grace George a Buyer of Silver Plates—Zorn's "A Bather" Brings $8,500.

Miss Grace George bought six of Miss Emilie Grigsby's large silver plates yesterday at the Anderson Galleries for $275. They were gold lined, and had pierced borders. S. H. Valentine paid $1,020 for two dozen Sevres plates with portraits of French court beauties, Diane de Poitiers, Marguerite de Valois, and others. Mrs. Rouss gave $300 for 12 octagonal Royal Vienna plates with classic scenes: "The Toilet of Venus," "Offering at the Shrine of Venus," "The Graces," &c. W. H. Barnard bought other Royal Vienna plates at $300 a dozen, one lot having more classical scenes: "Daphne and Apollo," "Birth of Venus," "Carrying Off of Helen," "Pan and the Nymphs."

Hugo Reisinger was a buyer in the evening and paid the third highest price of the day, $4,250, for the most attractive of two pictures by Anders Zorn, one, "The Bather," said to have been bought of the artist. In this there was the contrasting colors of the dark waters, with the steep white rock rising up on one side; on one of these in the foreground the nude figure of a woman holding in one hand white drapery while steadying herself with the other in what looks to be an uncomfortable as well as dangerous position for a bather. A little above is an interesting dash of color, a companion to the bather, in a scarlet gown.

The other Zorn, "A Bather," shows another nude figure of a woman, also with a liking for steep places, climbing up a vividly green bank, supporting herself with equally vivid branches of the trees. This was bought on order and brought $8,500, the highest price of the day.

An Albert Stevens, "Wating," went to Knoedler & Co. for $1,700, Albert Herter's charming "Garden of Dreams" brought $635, and a Claude Monet, "Highlands of the French Coast," went to Durand-Ruel for $4,900. "Port of Bordeaux," by Eugène Boudin, went to G. R. McDougal for $800; "Environs d'Evagny," Camille Pissarro, was purchased by Durand-Ruel for $850, and the same buyers paid $1,100 for "Landscape at Veneux," by Alfred Sisley. N. E. Montross paid $550 for "Scene Along the Quai, Paris"; "Elizabeth de Vos," by Franz Pourbus, the Younger, went to N. Snead for $435.

The pictures did not all bring prices in proportion to their size, and one, 50 by 37½, with a heavy and elaborate frame, a large figure picture, "Madonna and Child, with St. John and an Angel," by Salviati, went to Lichtenstein for $110. W. C. Thompson paid $450 for "Mary, Princess of Orange," 60 by 45, by William Wissing.

The sale goes on to-day, beginning with some of the big Braun-Clement carbon photographs, large copies of pictures by famous artists, which decorated Miss Grigsby's studio on the upper floor of her house at Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street. Louis XV. and Empire furniture will also be sold, with a carved, gilded piano, and in the evening the decorations of Miss Grigsby's own room, lace and objects of art.
